Pupils ..... MISSES ARRIGONI, HILL, PAYER, CUNNINGHAM, BANKS, FARRANT, W. and D. TAYLOR
Dandies ..... MISSES COURTLAND, DAWSON, BOULLRIGHT, KAYGILL, REEVES, and RUBY
Mme. Lafleur ..... MISS PASTON
Mimi Lafleur ..... MLLE. LYDIA KYASHT

The above ballet—which is an elaborated version of the first scene of that delightful divertissement The Débutante—was produced with great success at the Empire last Monday night, under the personal supervision of Mr. Fred Farren, and went with smartness and swing from start to finish. The quaint and pretty old-time costumes of the period, the excellent dancing of Mlle. Lydia Kyasht, Mr. Fred Farren, and Miss Phyllis Bedells, and the bright and tuneful music of Mr. Cuthbert Clarke all added to the success achieved, and the ballet was received with great applause by an enthusiastic audience. The action takes place in the year 1840 in the rehearsal room at the Paris Opera, where M. Pirouette, the maître de ballet, aided by his son Armand, his assistant, is initiating the pupils in the difficulties of their art. Baron Salomon, a patron of the ballet, appears, accompanied by dandies of the day, who dance a merry step with the girls. The Baron attempts to do likewise, but is quickly reminded of his gout. Mme. Lafleur and her daughter Mimi then arrive, the latter bringing a letter of introduction to M. Pirouette, who thereupon asks her to dance. He engages her on the spot, being struck by the evident signs of talent in her delightful pas seul. There is to be a new ballet at the Opera, and the première danseuse is being put through her paces by Pirouette, but she takes exception to the brusqueness of the maître de ballet, and walks off in a huff. Who shall take her place? The understudy is tried, but is suddenly overcome, and sinks into a chair. After some persuasion, Mimi Lafleur offers herself for the part, to the evident pleasure and relief of M. Pirouette. She is led off by Pirouette's wife, Celestine, to change into costume, and on returning astonishes all by her winning grace and fairy-like movements; after which M. Pirouette takes her in hand, and they do a dainty dance together. Then Celestine, with Armand Pirouette as partner, gives a delightful exhibition of figure dancing, consisting of a pas de deux of enchanting delicacy. Mlle. Lutine then presents a graceful pas seul, the scene concluding with a tasteful scarf dance by the entire corps de ballet.

Mlle. Lydia Kyasht as Mimi danced her way straight to the hearts of her audience, the charm and poetry of motion being apparent in her every movement. Mr. Fred Farren as the maître de ballet, M. Pirouette, cut a quaint figure, and was greatly responsible for the success of the show, his active and untiring efforts being much admired and applauded. Miss Phyllis Bedells danced with her accustomed grace and ability in the part of Mlle. Lutine. As Mlle. Rosita, Miss Beatrice Collier was an excellent exponent of the rôle of the première danseuse, dancing with great taste and skill. Mr. Adolf Bolm was an effective Armand Pirouette, taking with great success his share in the pas de deux with Miss F. Martell, a graceful Celestine. The part of the Baron Salomon was done full justice to by Mr. L. Hunter. Miss Osmond enacted with success the son Rafael. The characters of Coulisse, a call boy, and Jasmin, a costumier, were well undertaken by Miss L. Hewitt and Mr. Lewington. Miss Paston looked picturesque as Mme. Lafleur, and Mr. Girard was good as the scenic artist La Brosse. The parts of the chef d'orchestre, Signor Pesante, and Chevalet, the first violin, were excellently played by Mr. Jameson and Mr. Perkins; and the friends of the Baron and the dandies were in the safe hands of capable members of the company. After the curtain had been raised several times in response to repeated plaudits, bouquets were received by all the principals. The entire production was designed and invented by Mr. C. Wilhelm.

DANCERS AT DINNER.

At the Hotel Cecil on Tuesday evening a banquet was given in connection with the Congress of the Imperial Society of Dance Teachers. Mr. Cecil H. Taylor, of Leeds, presided, and early in the proceedings announced that in reply to his telegram to King George, expressing their humble, loyal, and devoted greetings to his Majesty, the following reply had been despatched from the Royal yacht at Torquay:

"The King thanks the members of your society for their kind message of loyal and devoted greetings.—A. BIGGE."

Amongst the company present were Mrs. Taylor, Mr. R. M. Crompton (past president), Mr. Charles D'Albert (vice-president and hon. secretary), Herr Rudolph Knoll, Mrs. Knoll, Mr. F. Gilbert Webb, Mrs. Webb, Mr. Emil Chandoux, Mr. and Mrs. Kehl, Mrs. Chandoux, Mr. F. W. C. Lester, and Mrs. Bedford.

A presentation of a handsome silver tray was made by the president to Mr. R. M. Crompton, who for five years occupied the position of president of the society. The president also asked Mr. Emil Chandoux's acceptance of a number of silver table ornaments, remarking that Mr. Chandoux had done very useful work for the society by translating three works on dancing into English. Both recipients having suitably responded,

Mr. F. Gilbert Webb, in proposing the toast of "The Society," remarked that the origin of dancing was undoubtedly in religious rites, and this was at present seen most clearly in Japan. Among some teachers of dancing the art of gesture and its significance were not sufficiently realised. The points that attracted the multitude were the significance of the dance, and what was in the dancer's mind. The importance of this significance showed the enormous value of that society, because it was only through that and kindred societies that the true elements of dancing could be handed down and inculcated. Dancing made people more polite, and its value to young men was not properly realised. He thought the more the world danced the better it would be.

The President, in responding, said that their society was on an absolutely sound basis, and in every way it had constituted a record this year. It was doing its utmost to bring dancing to the condition that they considered it ought to occupy, and the members would not rest until they got the State to say that no man should teach dancing unless he had satisfied the society that he was qualified to do so.

After dinner an interesting exhibition of dancing was given by members of the society and their pupils.

THE Arthur Gallimore Trio, who are appearing at the Palace, Glasgow, this week, open at the London, Shoreditch, on Monday next. The clever trio have an effective comedy act, admirably staged, with electrical effects and gorgeous dresses.

"NED, THE DEVIL."

Sketch, in One Act, Produced at the Surrey Theatre on Monday, July 25.

Ned Fenton ..... MR. ROYSTON KEITH
Fordham ..... MR. ALFRED CUTHBERT
Richard Elmar ..... MR. HERBERT OAKLEY
Flash Sam ..... MR. GEORGE SUMNER
Sergeant Bracey ..... MR. JAMES BURRELL
Nan ..... MISS GWEN STEWART

The above sketch, which has been produced at the Surrey Theatre this week, has considerable dramatic power. It abounds in "thrills" and exciting episodes, which are ably emphasised by Messrs. Royston Keith and Alfred Cuthbert's excellent company. The action opens in the "Rat Hole," a public-house near one of the London docks, which is kept by Ned Fenton and his companion Nan, and is the headquarters of a rascally gang. It is closing time; and Fordham, a detective, feigning drunkenness, is on the watch for Ned, against whom he has a deadly grudge owing to one of his companions having been slain by Ned's hand. Nan is endeavouring to persuade Ned to leave the place and start life afresh, when a traveller arrives, a certain Richard Elmar, from the Gold Coast, bringing with him a large amount of cash. This Ned determines to rob him of. Elmar then speaks of a girl whom he loved in the past, and who jilted him for another man, and says he will spend his whole fortune in tracking the seducer down. Nan's voice is heard in an adjoining room, and Elmar recognises it as that of his old sweetheart. Ned locks the door, which arouses Richard Elmar's suspicions, and leads him to think that Fenton is her betrayer. A struggle follows, in the course of which Ned knocks Elmar senseless, and is preparing to "bolt" with the money, when a knock is heard at the house door. It is Fordham, the Lynx," who has come for Ned. Nan, alone with Fordham, conveys to him, by writing on a slate, that if he will wait outside he may secure his man. Twelve o'clock strikes, and Ned is about to leave Nan and the "Rat Hole" for ever. But the Lynx seizes him, and a terrific struggle takes place. Ned, the Devil, is overpowered, and is taken away to suffer punishment for his numerous crimes.

Mr. Royston Keith as Ned Fenton does some powerful acting, which is greatly appreciated by the audience. Fordham, the Lynx, has a firm and strong exponent in Mr. Alfred Cuthbert, and Mr. Herbert Oakley creditably enacts Richard Elmar. The part of Nan supplies good scope for the dramatic power of Miss Gwen Stewart; and Messrs. George Summer and James Burrill are good as Flash Sam and Sergeant Bracey respectively.

"THE SIREN'S CALL."

Jose ..... MR. FRANKLIN DYALL
Captain Gaussier ..... MR. GEORGE SILVER
Jean Rodriquez ..... MR. J. W. MACKIE
Mimi ..... MISS NELL DU MAURIER
Lu-Lu ..... MISS GERTRUDE LESLIE
Tara ..... MISS MABEL ADAMS
Silu ..... MISS CECIL

A much-travelled war correspondent, the author of the above sketch is no doubt well acquainted with the locality in which his little piece is placed, and has thus been able to secure a remarkably realistic atmosphere for his story of love and jealousy. Prompt measures and short shrift are the rule in the gambling house, situated on the shores of Delagoa Bay, in which the action passes, and the sharks that abound in the bay soon dispose of the evidences of any crime committed within its walls. Among the singing girls that form the attractions of the gambling house is Mimi, with whom Jose, the keeper of the house, is madly in love. Captain Gaussier, a pilot, pays marked attention to Mimi, whose obvious delight arouses the jealousy of Jose. He resorts to a sort of "spinning jenny" dubbed the "Siren's call," to which occult powers are ascribed by the natives, and after being

In the House of Commons on Tuesday Mr. supposed to denote death. Jose accordingly challenges Gaussier, and a duel with clasp knives takes place. After a desperate encounter Jose is disarmed, but defends himself with a shawl, and eventually deals Gaussier a fatal blow. The noise of the guard is heard outside, but Mimi, seizing her mandoline, begins to sing, and the patrol passes, leaving the crime undiscovered.

The dialogue of the sketch is dramatic and terse, and the action rapid—too rapid, perhaps, to be easily grasped. The piece was powerfully acted. Mr. Franklin Dyall invested the jealous Jose with passionate intensity, and his ferocity in the duel scene, when the disarmed man bounded like a panther at his adversary's throat, was quite sensational. Mr. George Silver played equally well as the amorous Captain Gaussier, carrying out his share of the fight perfectly. The part of Mimi, the young singing girl is not particularly well drawn, but Miss Nell Du Maurier availed herself of her opportunities, her pretty soprano voice sounding effectively in the weird snatches of the song which she has to sing. The sketch was mounted completely, and received an attentive hearing, Mr. Dyall being cordially recalled at the close.

"THE DEVIL'S WORLD."

Sketch, in One Scene, Produced at the Chelsea Palace, on Monday, July 25.

Blake Latimer ..... MR. CYRIL VERNON
Ashley Winn ..... MR. DOUGLAS IMBERT
A Waiter ..... MR. CECIL CALVERT
Paul Harman ..... MR. LORING FERNIE

A very clever sketch is that produced here this week, under the direction of Mr. Lennox Pawle. The scene is in an upper room of the café of the Three Revellers, Paris. The story opens with Blake Latimer returning from a fancy dress ball in costume, he representing the Devil and his friend a pierrot. Entering the room of the café he recalls old times, and when the waiter brings refreshments they are surprised to see they are not alone. Winn does not like the atmosphere of the place, but his friend, recalling scenes there eight years ago, speaks of a friend who had every promise of becoming a great painter. He had married a model, who was a "good woman," and although they starved together in an attic they were happy because of their love. Then Latimer begged her to leave her husband and come with him to a wider and fuller world. The woman consented, but Latimer soon tired of her continual talk of "Paul," her husband. And now she was dead and buried in a strange land. All this time Paul Harman, the husband of the woman Latimer had ruined, lies asleep in a chair in the room, and Latimer decides to awake him and frighten him with the impression that the evil one is really before him. Latimer is successful in his trick, and Paul, who has become a "wastrel," shakes with fear, declaring his soul is not worth having. Latimer taunts him, and Paul, whose blood is a-fire, locks the door and then threatens to kill him. Latimer, full of fear, pleads friendship in olden days, but to no effect. There is a scuffle, and Paul stabs him, then calls on the world to be happy and lovers to come out, "for the devil is dead."

The sketch is skilfully written, and just as cleverly acted. Mr. Cyril Vernon's representation of the roué was characterised by a cynicism and cruelty which at once repelled and attracted, while Mr. Loring Fernie's interpretation of the wastrel was marked by dramatic ability of a high order. Mr. Douglas Imbert and Mr. Cecil Calvert contributed in no small measure to the success of the production.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

IN the House of Commons on Tuesday Mr. Sydney Buxton asked leave to bring in a Bill to amend and consolidate the law of copyright, and to carry out the recommendations of the committee, presided over by Lord Gorell, which lately examined the Revised International Copyright Convention signed at Berlin in November, 1908, and considered whether the law of the United Kingdom should be altered so as to give effect to that Convention.

It will be remembered that at the above-mentioned Berlin Conference several changes were agreed upon in revising the Berne Convention of September, 1886. The contracting States constituted themselves into a union to protect the rights of authors over their literary and artistic works, the expression including—this is the part of the Revised Convention in which most of our readers will be interested—dramatic or dramatico-musical works, choreographic works, and pantomimes, the acting form of which is fixed in writing or otherwise; musical compositions, with or without words; and translations, adaptations, and arrangements of music.

The stipulations of the Conventions applied also to the public representation of dramatic or dramatico-musical works, and to the public performance of musical works, whether they were published or not. "Authors of dramatic or dramatico-musical works," said the Convention, "shall be protected during the existence of their right over the original work against the unauthorised public representation of translations of their work; and to enjoy protection, authors in publishing their works shall not be bound to forbid the public representation or performance thereof. Authors of musical works shall have the exclusive right of authorising: (1) The adaptation of those works to instruments which can produce them mechanically; (2) the public performance of such works by means of these instruments."

With reference to cinematographs, the Convention said:—"Authors of literary, scientific, or artistic works shall have the exclusive right of authorising the reproduction and public representation of their works by cinematography. Cinematograph productions shall be protected as literary or artistic works if, by the arrangement of the acting form or the combinations of the incidents represented, the author has given the work a personal and original character. Without prejudice to the rights of the author of the original work, the reproduction of cinematography of a literary, scientific, or artistic work shall be protected as an original work. These provisions apply to reproduction or production effected by any other process analogous to cinematography.

The Government is introducing a Bill in order to allow the public to form an opinion on its proposals. If a substantial agreement is arrived at it is possible that the Bill may be passed in the course of the autumn session of Parliament.

In asking for leave, Mr. Buxton briefly explained the effect of the alterations involved by the ratification of the Convention and by the proposals contained in the Bill. "In the first place," said he, "there is the abolition of what are called 'formalities'—registration and the like. Secondly, there will be uniformity of treatment of various works coming under the operation of copyright law. Thirdly, certain species of works will receive improved treatment, such as translations, lectures—I believe at present a lecturer has to go before two magistrates before he can protect his lecture—original adaptations and arrangements, and works of artistic novelty, including architectural works of art. On the other hand, the rights of dramatising novels, and, if I may coin a word, the 'novelised' drama, and the public performance of musical works will be reserved. Musical works are to be protected against unauthorised reproduction by mechanical means without payment. On the other hand, the record itself will receive protection."

Dealing with the duration of copyright, Mr. Buxton said: "The proposal of the Convention was life and fifty years. It was quite clear that that was the only basis upon which anything like international agreement could be arrived at. The Convention proposed the adoption of such a period, and with a view to obtaining international uniformity, the period proposed in the Bill was the period adopted by the Convention."

One of the clauses of the Bill would provide that on the death of the author, if the work were withheld from the public or published at too high a price, or if the reasonable requirements of the public were not met, a licence might be granted to publish or perform the work. Leave being granted, Mr. Buxton's Bill was brought in and read a first time.

"THE KING O' THE ROAD."

A Romantic Episode, Produced at the Bedford, on Monday, July 25.

Captain Dick ..... MR. C. DOUGLAS CARLILE
Clegg ..... MR. C. A. CARLILE
Colonel Willoughby ..... MR. J. DUNCAN
Barebones ..... MR. LEE GILBERT
Sir Rupert ..... MR. J. LANGFORD
Kitty ..... MISS HOWARD

This highwayman episode, dealing with life in the time of Charles II., had its initial production on Monday evening, and Messrs. Charles and Douglas Carlile, who are responsible for it, may be congratulated on the success it made. It has a little story running through it of love and intrigue, and revolves round the person of Sir Rupert, who is falsely accused of high treason by Colonel Willoughby, who is in love with Sir Rupert's sister Kitty, and hopes to force her into marriage by proving Sir Rupert's innocence. Captain Dick—a highwayman, but full of courtesy to the fair sex—discovers the plot, and to gain the good graces of Kitty he, at the risk of his life and through many adventures, proves Willoughby to be the scoundrel he is, and brings him to justice. He likewise secures free pardon for himself and joins the King's Army. It is a thrilling little play, and full of life and vigour, and is capitally played by a well-chosen company.

Mr. C. Douglas Carlile, whose Sexton Blake adventures are well-known, appears as Captain Dick, and gives a fine impersonation of the highwayman who risks his life so freely; Mr. C. A. Carlile is seen to advantage as Clegg, the good blacksmith who helps Captain Dick so much; and Colonel Willoughby is in good hands as played by Mr. J. Duncan. Mr. Lee Gilbert is amusing as the smug Barebones, and Mr. J. Langford makes a picturesque Sir Rupert; while Kitty is charmingly depicted by Miss Howard. The sketch is well mounted and dressed.

In addition to this production Mr. B. P. Lucas and his genial manager Mr. Arthur Edwards have a good company of variety artists on the bill, and Bert Errol, the lady impersonator, is again a big favourite with his clever vocalisation and comic side-play. Bert sings "Il Bacio" delightfully, and his turn is greatly applauded. The Four Broadway Boys—winners of the recent carnival at Crouch End Hippodrome—are sure of a successful future, for their dancing is splendid. The Four Sparks are a quartette of dainty little ladies, who sing and dance in a captivating manner and score heavily.

Belrose and De Velin, operatic duettists, sing in a most accomplished manner, and their turn meets with much appreciation; Vera Crackles has a sprightly song, "Don't look at me like that," and contributes a neat dance; while Jack Lowe is a comedian who appears as a dame, and patters amusingly. The Maro Duo are a couple of comic clowns, who do some clever bar work and give an attractive turn. The Bernices, harmony vocalists, and the Bioscope conclude.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Miss Marie Lloyd, who has been recently enhancing the merriment of Margate in the course of a triumphal tour, returns to the Metropolis on Monday. The "Queen of Comediennes" will star at the Oxford and Chelsea Palace.

Miss Cecilia Loftus underwent an operation on the 22nd inst., and is reported to be going on quite satisfactorily. We trust she will soon be restored to robust health. On her return to the stage Miss Loftus promises "an impression" of Mme. Pavlova, the famous Russian dancer, who is appearing at the Palace.

The Finsbury Park Empire will be opened on Monday, Aug. 29. The new hall, if report may be trusted, will be the finest in the suburbs, and will accommodate 3,000 persons.

No opposition was offered to the London County Council (General Powers) Bill, which passed through the Committee of the House of Lords on Tuesday, only eight drafting amendments being effected in that portion of the measure dealing with agency business. After being reported to the Upper House and returned to the Commons the Bill should receive the Royal signature and become law in the course of next week.

"A Supreme Moment" has been selected as the title of the sketch by Mrs. W. K. Clifford which Miss Margaret Halstan will produce at the London Coliseum on Aug. 8. In addition to Miss Halstan the cast will comprise Mr. Dawson Milward, Mr. Harvey Braham, and Miss Emily Lovett. The action passes at a salon of a Paris boulevard.

The monument raised in Highgate Cemetery by his comrades to the memory of Mr. Charles Wilson, producer and stage-director for the Moss and Stoll amalgamation, will be presented to the family of the deceased on Thursday morning next at eleven o'clock.

A few evenings since, according to our contemporary London Opinion, Mr. Harry Tate was asked by a well-known aviator, who is a rigid abstainer, if he would like to accompany him on a flight. Mr. Tate, however, firmly refused. "I am like you," he said. "In what way?" inquired the teetotal airman. "Well, I am afraid of taking a drop too much," said Tate.

On the recommendation of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, the London County Council, at its meeting last Tuesday, agreed that the meeting for hearing applications for licences for music, dancing, and stage plays should be held at the Sessions House, Clerkenwell, on Friday, Nov. 11, and the following day if necessary.

The Council approved the transfer of the licence of the Paragon Theatre of Varieties from Edward Rawlings to David Jacob Cashstein. In connection with this theatre, it was found at a recent inspection that the external gates of the exitway leading into Eagle-place from the stage and orchestra stalls were secured by means of a hasp and padlock during the time the public were on the premises. The Music Halls Committee were of opinion that notice should be served on the person keeping open the premises so as to enable proceedings to be taken should the exit doors or gates again be found to be improperly fastened.

Dramatic developments have occurred since our last issue in connection with the atrocious crime by which Belle Elmore lost her life. From information received by wireless telegraphy the latter end of last week, the Scotland Yard authorities learned that Crippen and Miss Le Neve were on their way to Canada, and Inspector Dew was immediately despatched by a faster vessel, which would overtake the fugitives before they reached port. Crippen, it is stated, is travelling under the name of Robinson, Miss Le Neve, who is dressed in male clothes, passing as his son. The Laurentic, with Inspector Dew, was expected at Rimouski yesterday afternoon, and the Montrose, which carries Crippen, will probably not arrive there until to-morrow, when the arrest will be made.

In the House of Commons on Thursday Mr. William Thorne asked the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he was aware that there had been grave neglect of duty on the part of Inspector Dew in not having the Hilldrop-crescent house watched after June 30 and in not having the movements of the man Crippen under observation after the interview he had with him; if he was aware that if the movements of Crippen had been shadowed in the same manner as those of the Russian Social Democrats whilst they were in London during last year it would have been impossible for him to have left the country; and if he intended taking action in the matter.

Mr. Churchill replied: "I have already intimated to the hon. member that at the present time it would not, in my opinion, serve the interests of justice to discuss the points raised. Meanwhile, I do not think it is fair to make a charge of dereliction of duty against a police official who by reason of his being engaged on special duty abroad is not in a position to make any answer."

Mr. John Lawson produces The King of Palestine at the Olympia, Shoreditch, on Monday. Mr. Lawson will be supported by Messrs. Arthur Royston, J. H. Clyndes, Arthur Rose, Charles Stafford, Aubrey Fitzmaurice, and Miss Lucille Sidney.

Mr. George Barrett will, at the termination of the run of The Whip at Drury Lane, appear at the Tivoli in a seaside scena, which has been specially written for him by Herbert C. Sargent, the author of many of the popular tabloid comedies which form so prominent a feature in music hall programmes. Mr. Barrett will be supported by Miss Joan Burton and Miss Ray Vivien.

A committee meeting of the Music Hall Home Fund will be held at the Three Stags, Kennington-road, on Thursday next, at 12 o'clock. Thanks are tendered to Mrs. O'Brien, Rule's, Maiden-lane, for a box collection of £1 5s.; to Mr. Jack Wolff, of Wonderland, for a donation of £2 2s.; and to Simmons, Palace, Reading, for a box collection of £1 1s. 6d.

The well-known sketch artists, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Meymott, sail on Friday next, Aug. 5, by the Orient liner Osterley from Tilbury for Australia to fulfil their second engagement with Mr. Harry Rickards. If they can procure release from their English engagements they may accept a good offer to visit America before they return.

The Copyright Bill, which was introduced in the House of Commons on Tuesday by Mr. Buxton, President of the Board of Trade, will make the law uniform for the British Empire, and, indeed, for the greater part of the world, by incorporating the recent Berlin Convention. The Bill will not however, be passed this year. Copyright is given for the life of the author and fifty years after; but if after death reasonable facilities to the public are not given, the authorities may intervene. Copyright is secured as well for artists and architects, for composers against mechanical records, and, on certain terms, for moving pictures. At present copyright in books extends only for life and seven years after, or forty-two years, whichever is the longer period.

The new music hall at Gillingham is to be called the Grand, and will be erected at a cost of over £4000. It will be devoted to animated pictures and varieties.

Mrs. Arthur Lennard, who has undergone a most serious operation at her home in Streatham, and has been confined to her bed for the past two months, is now on the high road to recovery, thanks to the care of Dr. Sandford Arnott and to skilful nursing.

The Palace Music Hall, Durham, re-opens, after extensive alterations, on Bank Holiday. The chief improvement has been made to the proscenium opening, two marble columns having been erected at the sides, and the top being elaborately decorated in fibrous plaster. Adjoining the columns two elegantly fitted boxes have been erected, and will fill a long-felt want. The walls have been plastered and decorated, and the place transformed into what is now certainly one of the prettiest and cosiest halls in the North of England, upon which the proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes, is to be congratulated. The company opening on Monday includes Geo. Sheldon and company, in Before the Dawn, Chas. Grantley, Tiny Wilmot, Sisters Lylle, Zaid Trio, The Royal Quintette, and the Cathedoscope.

Cormack, the remarkable high diver, who has just finished an engagement at the American Park, Brussels, has another contract for two months at double salary. On Bank Holiday he goes to Leeds for Aug. 1 and 2, performing at the Hospital Gala, and the four following days will find the intrepid diver at the Coventry Gala. He then returns to Brussels to complete an engagement with Bolossy Kiralfy, extending to five months in all.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten's staff at the Leicester Pavilion Theatre held their annual outing on Sunday last, when a happy and merry party of between forty and fifty left the Great Northern Station at 8.20 for Skegness, where they arrived at 11 o'clock. The party were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence (acting-manager), Mr. and Mrs. Verdo, Mr. Fred Britcher (the musical director of the Pavilion), Mr. Frank Burdett, and a number of patrons of the hall.

The headquarters for the day were made at Hildred's Hotel, where a first-class dinner and tea were served. Mr. Joseph Lawrence presided at the dinner, and in proposing the health of their esteemed employer, Mr. Frank Macnaghten, spoke of the many good qualities of that gentleman, who always took a kindly interest in anything that appertained to the welfare of those who had the pleasure of serving under his banner. He also extended to Mr. Macnaghten their very best thanks for that gentleman's generous contribution towards their outing. The toast was accorded a most hearty and befitting reception.

In the afternoon the party enjoyed a drive in landaus to Chapel, situated some miles from Skegness, afterwards returning to the hotel for tea. The outing was a pleasant one, and the party reached Leicester safely at 9 o'clock. Praise should be accorded to Mr. Joseph Lawrence and Mr. Frank Burdett for the excellent arrangements made.

Whilst playing for Carlisle St. John's C.C. against the Post Office on Wednesday, Mr. John Power (of Reid and Power) accomplished a fine bowling feat, taking seven wickets for four runs.

St. Luke's Parish Church, Cradley Heath, Staffs., was the scene on the 16th inst. of the wedding of Miss Edith Adelaide Levaine, daughter of Mr. Gus Levaine, head of the troupe of artists appearing that week at the local Empire Theatre, and Mr. Billy Glenn, character vocalist, son of Mr. Edwin Cox, of Birmingham. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a charming dress of pale blue silk relieved with white lace and a wreath of orange blossom and forget-me-nots. She also carried a bouquet of white orchids and sweet peas.

The Sisters Collins were the bridesmaids, and they were prettily attired in amethyst silk and brown silk respectively, with cream hats, and carried choice bouquets. Miss Ruby Collins and Master Jimmy Goode (in nautical costume) attended the bride as pages. Mr. Tommy Williams was the best man. Mrs. Levaine, mother of the bride, was also present. After the ceremony breakfast was served at the Chainmakers' Arms, Mr. Gus Levaine presiding. The numerous presents included a marble clock from the members of the company, and a silver-mounted walking stick and an umbrella from the stage hands at the theatre.

The complimentary benefit to Mr. Horace Livermore, who is retiring from the position of manager of the People's Palace, Bristol, will be given at the Large Colston Hall on Saturday, Aug. 27. An influential committee has been formed for the purpose, with Mr. Fisher as chairman, Mr. E. B. Wood as vice-chairman, Mr. H. C. Alty as treasurer, and Mr. David Crombie as secretary. There will be two performances, one at a matinée and one in the evening.

The Chelsea Palace will have a sterling attraction on Bank Holiday in Marie Lloyd, the Queen of Comedy. Kitts and Windrum will appear in their effervescing sparklet entitled What a Night! and the Bros. Horne will once more be seen in their comedy boxing sketch entitled The Biter Bit. Others in the holiday programme will be W. S. Wyndham, Will Driscoll, Madge Osmond, Henri Bekker, The Calcottis, Lily Hayes, and Ruffell's Bioscope.

The suburban Moss-Stoll Empires next week boast attractive programmes. At the Hackney Empire the principal items of the bill will be Phillips' airship under wireless control, Ben Albert, the Sutcliffe Family, Millie Hylton, Verno and Voyce, and the Piccad Troupe. The Holloway Empire will have Phil Ray, Staley's Transformations, Ethel Newman, and the Du Cros Trio among its chief attractions.

In the New Cross Empire programme will figure Eugene Stratton, Albert Whelan, Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery, and the Grassis. At the Stratford Empire Le Roy, Talma and Bosco, Franco Piper, Thora, and the Albert and Edmunds Troupe will provide the principal turns. The Shepherd's Bush Empire includes among a well-selected list Charles Austin in Parker, P.C., Barrett and Knowles, Binns and Binns, Cissie Curlette, and Tom Edwards.

A tempting array of artists will be provided in the holiday bill at the Oxford, where Joe Elvin appears in another new sketch by Wal Pink, entitled W(h)ines and Spirits. Miss Marie Lloyd heads the bill, which will be contributed to by Milt Wood, Warsaw Bros., Daisy Dormer, Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, Herbert Shelley, Queenie Essex, King and Benson, Barney Armstrong, Kitts and Windrum, Edna Latona, Tom Woottwell Chirgwin, Talbot and Pearce, in Over the Garden Wall, Victoria Monks, Harry Grey, W. S. Wyndham, Devon and Earle, and Ruffell's Bioscope.

Mr. Joe Elvin, having enjoyed a well-earned rest, opens his London season on Monday, and will produce at the Oxford a new sketch called W(h)ines and Spirits, the title of which bears the touch of Mr. Wal Pink's witty pen. Mr. Elvin also appears at the Empress and the Poplar Hippodrome.

Mr. Neil Kenyon, whose fun has been the feature of The Islander at the Apollo, where it registered its 100th night on Monday, will soon be welcomed back to the halls, the musical comedy vacating the theatre next Saturday to make way for the Follies. The genial Scottish comedian will snatch a short holiday before opening in the provinces, and is due at an important West End Hall shortly.

Miss Millie Hylton, the attractive and versatile comedienne, will produce no fewer than five new songs on her reappearance on Monday next at the Empire, Hackney. The novelties will comprise "She was a Dollar Princess," from the pens of the well-known authors of "The Zuyder Zee," "U-li-i-atee," which Miss Hylton is confident will prove a second "Rowdy, dowdy boys," so closely allied with her fame, and three numbers by Harrington and Powell, viz., "I couldn't help being a lady," "The Dawn of a To-morrow," and "Puff, puff, out went the moon," the last-mentioned being enhanced by splendid moon effects. Special scenic effects will be provided by Mr. Francis H. Bull.

Miss Katie Laurence is making a hit at the Rotherhithe Hippodrome this week. This clever comedienne is in excellent voice, and has secured two and three calls nightly.

Miss Maidie Scott was highly gratified on Monday night at the South Shields Empire by the presentation of a beautiful bouquet of roses, with a card attached, bearing the inscription, "With the compliments of the directors, Richard Thornton and Frank Allen."

Mr. Georges Egbert, of Piccadilly-mansions, Shaftesbury-avenue, London, has been appointed sole booking agent for the Royal Hippodromes, Eastbourne and Dover.

An interesting matrimonial engagement just announced is that of Miss Sadie Simpson, the smart young comedienne, with Mr. Leo Montague, who is in England making bookings on behalf of Mr. Gardner Brown for whom he acts as manager. Hearty congratulations!

At the 668th meeting of the M.H.A.R.A. Executive Committee Mr. Fred Herbert presided, and there were also present Messrs. E. W. Edmonds, Arthur Rigby, T. C. Callaghan, Tom Packer, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The addition to the roll of twenty-one new members were reported. Mr. Downing, of the Bull Hotel, Nuneaton, was appointed agent in that town.

Mr. Fred Leigh, who, with his partner, Mr. H. E. Pether, is responsible for so many song successes, is just now indulging in a holiday by the sea. Anyone who chose to wander into a small hamlet a mile or two from Westgate last week would have found the clever author sampling the joys of a rural fête. Whether or no he will reproduce in verse any of the curiosities of a village carnival remains to be seen.

J. A. Wilson and his wonderful dog "Private Towser" have had many tempting offers to go to America, but the droll comedian has made up his mind to stay at home for at least another year. "The Troubles of a Recruiting Sergeant" afford Mr. Wilson and his canine comedian ample opportunity to display their distinctive humour. The animal seems instinctively to realise that it is an important feature of the turn, and displays an extraordinary degree of intelligence.

Miss Louisa Peach will be back again at the Victoria Hall, Walthamstow, next week, with a big sketch dealing with "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab." Miss Peach will appear as Sal Rawlins, supported by an excellent company, which includes Messrs. E. Howard Templeton, Charles Daly, C. C. Calvert, H. Gray Dolby, Jack Collison, Mrs. Charles Daly, and Miss Gladys Hastings Walton. Special music has been provided by Mr. T. A. Hannaway.

Mr. Ernest Shand, who was increasing his popularity in Newcastle last week, was taken in hand by a local scribe, to whom he confided the fact that nineteen years ago he appeared in pantomime in Newcastle, playing the Dame in Little Bo-Peep at the Theatre Royal. They had a record run of fourteen weeks, with about three matinées a week, and the house was filled at every performance. "You know," added Ernest, facetiously, "I only sing comic songs to enable me to go salmon fishing and buy the children boots. I have been on the vaudeville stage twelve years; before that I was an actor for two thousand years."

Mr. Shand then went back to his amateur days, and told of the humiliation he once suffered at one of the Saturday evening concerts organised by Dr. Frazer. "There were many talented performers there on the evening I turned up, such as Brandon Thomas (author of Charley's Aunt), Oriel B. Spurr, and a host of others. My mother used to play the piano for them. I was there, ready to paralyse them and knock them silly. I went on with my first recitation, but lo! I couldn't remember a word of it. Think as I would, it was impossible. I had three or four goes at it, but it was hopeless. Gave it up; walked away.

"I went to my room and said, 'I will make it up in my second half; I will do it on 'em in the second half!' I got dreadfully worked up, and was simply itching to go back and retrieve my fallen fortunes. In the middle of it, Brandon Thomas, a popular man, came in and said he would say a few lines for them. He spoke for about twenty minutes. Here was I, dying to go on. Then Dr. Frazer got up and said, 'The next item on the programme is Mr. Ernest Shand. As it is getting very late I don't think we shall require his services!'"

A novel offence was charged against a youth at Liverpool Police Court on Tuesday, viz., committing a technical assault upon one John Cookson, by causing him to sneeze. On Monday night, during the second house of the Empire Theatre, Miss Harriett Vernon was on the stage when the audience began to sneeze violently, necessitating the performance being temporarily stopped. "A panic might easily have been caused," said Cookson, who was an attendant at the theatre, "and from information I received I turned the young man out." The accused then produced a bottle of snuff from his pocket. The bench thought the incident only a silly joke, and bound the defendant over.

Mr. Bert Levey, the clever Australian artiste-entertainer, is responsible for one of the most enjoyable varieties in the fine Palace programme this week. On a darkened stage, and working on a small glass, with the aid of a lantern the picture he draws is reflected in the making, and when complete greatly enlarged on a sheet at the back. A fine portrait of the late Mark Twain was quickly executed on the night of our visit, and a study of a dog and other subjects were skilfully drawn. The humorous "remarks" which accompany most of the pictures add considerably to the attractiveness of a novel and interesting turn, the undoubted success of which must be very gratifying to the talented artist.

Grand opera has yielded two of its most distinguished representatives to the variety hall this week, Mr. Charles Manners and Madame Fanny Moody appearing at the London Hippodrome in selections from popular ballads. Mr. Manners excelled in his singing of "In cellar cool," and in Tosti's "Good-bye" Madame Moody's vocal gifts and artistic expression were fully appreciated. "Father O'Flynn" and "To-morrow will be Friday" are old favourites that cannot be resisted by any audience.

A new introduction to the bill is also the troupe of Russian dancers headed by Madame Knipper-Rubeneck, whose evolutions exercise a fascinating effect. Grieg's "Death of Asa" from Peer Gynt, the barbaric dance to the strains of an excerpt from Gluck's Iphigenia in Tauris, and the entrancing movements illustrating Chopin's Grande Valse are among the selections which delight the eye. Another novelty of the week is the miniature musical comedy A Ward in Chancery, a tabloid version of A Gipsy Girl which was produced at the Waldorf in the January of 1907. Miss Sybil Arundale makes a captivating appearance in the title-rôle, and receives admirable assistance from Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald and Mr. Charles Danvers, who appears as an old showman.

Bank Holiday brings its customary constellation of stars to the variety theatre. The London Hippodrome will next week welcome Mr. R. G. Knowles, the comedian-lecturer, who has recently been pursuing an instructive tour in Hungary, gathering material for his "travel laughs." His entertainment at the Hippodrome will be up to date and novel. Miss May Chevalier, Mr. Hubert Wills, and Master Jack Hobbs also appear in the sketch A Boy's Proposal. Other newcomers are the Sisters Doherty, the Willy Pantzer Troupe, Jules Moy (the celebrated Parisian humorist), and the Mezettis (gymnasts). Ferry Corwey, Miss Helen Trix, Mme. Knipper-Raberneck's Russian dancers, and Charles Manners and Fanny Moody remain on the bill.

A bright holiday programme has been arranged for the Coliseum. Little Elise Craven returns to the scene of former triumphs, this time in company with Bert Clerq in selections which include a Greek dance duologue. Miss Ada Reeve, Messrs. Bellew and Stock's company, with Master Arthur Garratt, in Mortimer Magnus, M.P., the Five Mowatts (club throwers), Lovely Lily Burnand, the O'Brien Bros. (gymnasts), Lily Flexmore (the flexible girl), Goodfellow and Gregson (comedians), Montgomery and Moore (American entertainers), and Tom E. Finglass (the coon singer, with new songs by Hermann Darewski, jun.) complete a strong and diversified bill.

Mr. Alfred Butt has arranged at the Palace Theatre a programme which contains the best talent from America, the Continent, and England. One of the principal newcomers is Mlle. Henriette de Serris in a series of living art reproductions, representing some of the most famous paintings, etchings, and bas-reliefs in the world. Mlle. de Serris has just returned to this country after a lengthy tour on the Continent, and so successful was she in Spain that the act was retained in one house no fewer than fifteen weeks, and was witnessed on many occasions by the King and Queen of Spain and members of the Royal Family. Another performer new to England is Mr. Nat M. Wills, who comes with a great reputation as a raconteur and humorous vocalist. Mlle. Pavlova and her brilliant company of Russian dancers enter upon their last week, special matinées being given on Bank Holiday and the following Wednesday and Saturday.

The general programme is particularly strong. Mr. Bert Levy, the Australian caricaturist and a contemporary of the late Phil May, varies his unique drawings each evening. Merian's Canine Actors will enact a distinct playlet without the visible aid of any trainer or assistants. Other features of the programme are Miss Lily Hall, a dainty comedienne; Mr. George Melvin, the new Scotch comedian; Mr. J. P. Ling, the society entertainer; and a comprehensive series of pictures on the Urbanora Bioscope and also by the Kinemacolour process.

Each of the eight beautiful girls who comprise the Russian troupe of dancers appearing at the London Hippodrome this week belongs to well-to-do Moscow families, and each is a pupil of Mme. E. Knipper Rabeneck, a noted professor of æsthetic dancing at the Theatre of Art, Moscow. Madame does not believe in the conventional in dancing, or, indeed, in the conventional in anything: in the street she wears sandals and art draperies. When she heard of the vogue for fine dancing in London she determined that England should see the work of her pupils, and, selecting the eight most accomplished, she came to this country, not to make money, but to show that ballet dancing is not the limit of Russian art.

The programme at the Empire for Bank Holiday is headed by the new ballet The Dancing Master, which has gained a popularity equal to that of any divertissement ever produced at the Leicester-square house. Clarke and Hamilton make a welcome reappearance with many novel items; George Mozart remains with his most amusing cinematograph act and his series of humorous themes; Smite and Smote are another new turn; and Emerson and Baldwin in their refined comedy juggling act; Johnson Clarke, a ventriloquist of exceptional cleverness, will also be in the bill. In Hullo, People! with Miss Valli Valli and Mr. J. F. McArdle in the leading parts, still further topics will be dealt with, including the new Prison Regulations and other subjects of burning interest. Mr. Lawrence Grossmith will make his first appearance in this most successful of Empire revues, which is now approaching its 150th performance.

The Standard, Pimlico, will have the following attractive aggregation for its Bank Holiday programme: Gertie Gitana, Dale and O'Malley, May Henderson, Grete Hahn and company in Enchantment, the Lyric Mummers, the Langleys, Jack Worman, A. E. Mayne and company in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, Michel Brothers, Edgar Budden, Julia Gilbert, Jack Straw, &c., together with the Edisonograph pictures.

Seasonable fare will be provided at the Alhambra by the production on Monday of the new "frolic" On the Sands. Another speciality of the programme will be the first appearance in England of Olympia Desvall with her trained ponies and dogs. The ballet Femina is retained in the holiday bill, the remainder of which will consist of the Colibris; Merlin, card and coin manipulator; Henry Helme, chanteur; Français; Schichtl's Marionettes; the Uessems; and Jury's Pictures.

A feature of the Bank Holiday bill at the Tivoli will be a new sketch by George Grossmith, jun., entitled The Night of the Garter, in which Mr. Ben Webster and Miss Mona Harrison will appear, added interest being given to the production by the fact that the popular actor mentioned will make his first appearance on the variety stage. Another turn new to London is that of the Tenka Troupe, clever Japanese jugglers. Little Tich returns to the scene of many triumphs, and Violet Lloyd and Horace Lane, Tom Clare, the Two Bobs, Dutch Daly, Max Waldon, Sam Mayo, José Collins, May Moore Duprez and others complete a programme which may be accounted strong even for a Bank Holiday.

The front-of-the-house staff of the Alhambra, some eighty strong, went for their "annual" on Sunday, and experienced the lot that has fallen to most similar excursions this year. Under the guidance of Mr. William Roberts, the organiser, the party reached the Lion Hotel, Guildford, where the rain fell heavily. But once inside the comfortable hostelry, thanks to the efforts of Miss Beddington, the manageress, everything became merry and bright, and continued so till luncheon was served. Over this function Mr. Harry Woodford presided, as usual, supported on either side by Mr. Clarence Hunt, stage manager, and Mr. A. H. Corrick, treasurer.

In the course of the speeches which followed, Mr. Woodford handed Mr. Roberts a silver cigarette case inscribed: "Presented to William Roberts with all good wishes from the boys of the staff in the front of the house. July, 1910." Mr. Roberts, in thanking his associates, remarked upon the assistance he received from Mr. Corrick in arranging the annual outing, and Mr. Corrick replied that anything he did in this respect gave him nothing but pleasure. Mr. George Mitchell, on behalf of the company, presented Mr. Alfred Oxley with an umbrella, for which the veteran box-attendant, who has accompanied the Alhambra excursionists for forty-six years, returned thanks in touching terms.

Although the rain continued to fall after luncheon, a start was made in brakes for Godalming. At Newland's Corner, however, it was deemed advisable to return to Guildford by way of the Silent Pool. During a halt on the road, Mr. A. Williams, the Alhambra's master carpenter, known to his intimates as the "Surprise Packet," created a small sensation by stopping a runaway horse and trap which threatened to race to destruction over the downs. After tea Mr. Woodford introduced a star turn in "Mr. 'Tubby' Turner, raconteur," and the tales told by the manager of the Playhouse made the room ring with laughter. There was the customary collection for the Fresh Air Fund, which was benefited to the extent of five guineas.

Mr. Arthur Norton has just been appointed manager of the New Empire, Aberdare, which re opens on Monday next.

Miss Kitty Loftus has been secured as the star attraction with the Bric-à-Brac vaudeville company at the Felix Hall, Felixstowe, during the holiday week.

We are asked to state that if H. Anderson will send his address to Carl Lynn, Empire, Worcester, he will receive a handsome Waltham watch for winning third prize in the flip-flap race.

Mr. Harry Bancroft is scoring a decided success with his latest song, "Our wedded life over again," at the Empire, Liverpool, this week. The song is published by the Star Publishing Co.

Miss Fannie Robina and Miss Florence Cooper will resume business on Monday next at the Palace, Worcester, after several weeks during which the barring clause has been in operation.

Mr. Fred E. Tonge, whose now well-known Lyric Quartette have popularised the illustrated numbers on the music halls, will produce at Birmingham next week a new vocal and spectacular act entitled "The Garden City." The chief feature will be the rendering of Hamish McCunn's "Wreck of the Hesperus," with dramatic effects.

Miss Emmie Ames is making a big success on tour. She opens at Southport on Monday, followed by the Empire, Birmingham, Merthyr, Portsmouth, and Margate, and then returns to London to the Canterbury and Edmonton. She has no vacancies this year or next, and is almost fully booked for 1912.

On behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, Miss Melinda May (the secretary) gratefully thanks the following for making collections:—Mrs. Frank Peskett, 17s. 6d.; Mrs. Chas. Coborn, 2s. 6d., towards which Mr. Elliott gave 2s.; Mr. Baldwin, Birmingham, 2s. 6d. (per Mrs. Vernon Cowper); Mr. Samuel H. Berwitz, Belfast, donation 2s. 6d.; Miss Louie Davis (Ward and Davis), 12s. 6d.; and Miss Vera Wootton, 5s. Thanks are also due to Mrs. Ernest Collins and Mrs. Northcott for useful parcels of clothing, a parcel (anonymous) from a friend, and a fishing-rod from Mr. Osborne. It should be noted that a prize will be given to anyone, in or out of the profession, collecting the most money for this deserving charity in twelve months commencing from Nov. 4 last.

Mrs. Arthur Hatton is asked to communicate at once with Miss May, at 61, New Oxford-street. The handsome portière curtain is hers (ticket No. 50). Friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and reception held every Wednesday four to five o'clock. Will anyone make an offer for fifteen large-sized band books, given by Messrs. Dennis and Morris (per Sisters Macarte)? Funds, boots, and clothing are urgently needed. Subscribers are requested to make cheques and postal orders payable to the Music Hall Ladies' Guild.

Mr. Thomas Howard Ward (Ward and Davis) was initiated into the mysteries of the Order of the Terriers' Association on Sunday. The ceremony was performed by Terrier Fred Hooper, W.T., assisted by Terrier Russell Brandon, V.T., who also officiated as organist. The following candidates for membership of the Association have successfully passed the ballot:—Messrs. Harry Luck, James Lecardo (Lecardo Bros.), and Carl Hamlin. Terrier D. M. H. Hoffman was elected W.D., and Terrier Barry Hope Y.B. A hearty welcome was extended to President Griff (after two years' absence), Terriers Harry Nelson, Harry Brown, Harry Barnard, Syd Walker, and Berry Hope on their reappearance in the kennel.

A cricket match, to which ladies are specially invited, has been arranged by Terrier W. R. Dunkley to take place at Cranford Bridge on Sunday, Aug. 7. Brakes are being supplied by Terrier Dunkley, and will leave headquarters, Three Stags Hotel, at 10 o'clock sharp, for the field, arriving at Cranford Bridge about 12. The match starts at 12.30, and the luncheon interval will be at 2 o'clock, a hot lunch being supplied at 2s. a head. All Terriers wishing to take part in the match, or being desirous of enjoying a ramble round the beautiful country, should send names in at once to Terrier Tom Packer, the secretary pro tem.

Dr. Walford Bodie is selling one of his hotels in Macduff. Owing to his numerous engagements, he has not the time to devote to all his enterprises, and has decided to dispose of the principal hotel in Macduff, the Fife Arms. It is freehold, and fully licensed, and has also a big hiring trade, billiards, fishing, bowling, golfing, &c. Macduff is a rising town fifty miles north of Aberdeen, and Duff House, lately presented to the towns of Macduff and Banff by the Duke of Fife, has just been opened as a high-class hydro., bringing many extra visitors to the town. The upset price is £3,300. Further particulars may be had from Dr. Bodie's son, Mr. Albert Edward Bodie, the Manor House, Macduff. Dr. Bodie is also sole proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, Bay View Hotel, the Corporation Marine Baths, and other large properties in the town.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE enormous demand for copies of Messrs. Francis and Day's Twenty-ninth Song Annual and for its pendant the Twenty-ninth Dance Album, still obtains, and edition after edition of each continue to be struck off. The Annuals and Albums have been called for from every quarter of the globe.

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT, the chocolate-coloured coon, has this week at the Palace, Leicester, been repeating his triumphs of the prior week at the Sunderland Empire, where nightly he occupied the stage for thirty-three minutes, having to sing no fewer than four and five songs in each house, including his famous "I want to go to Idaho." Both of his new songs, "Mister Owl" and "There's a little Black Cupid in the moon," are among the most admired numbers of Mr. Elliott's extensive répertoire.

BLACKPOOL at the present moment is the envy of Douglas, for the news has been borne across to Mona of the extraordinary enthusiasm evinced nightly by delighted multitudes at the Palace Theatre at the first-mentioned place while Miss Florrie Forde has sung "Flanagan," the rage of the present year. At Douglas they know the song already, but they want to hear their idol sing it as they know only she can. Miss Forde has just disposed of her latest tried hit, a humorous song entitled "I've never had my licence cancelled yet," to the publishers of "Flanagan" and "'Tis a faded picture," Messrs. Francis and Day. It is by Arthur J. Mills and Maurice Scott.

MISS HETTY KING'S two newest ditties have been requisitioned for the purposes of publication by Messrs. Francis and Day. One—a "policeman" song—is entitled "I'm afraid you'll have to come along o' me" and the other "I suppose she knows," and both are by J. P. Harrington, E. W. Rogers, and Orlando Powell.

MISS ADA REEVE'S new humorous song, "And just then he fell out of bed," has been now added to Messrs. Francis and Day's series of "Sixpenny Pops."

THE Hon. Evie O'Connor, who at the Metropolitan has won all hearts by her arch rendering of Herbert E. Haines' song "I'm coming back to Erin and to you," is adding to her répertoire Messrs. Francis and Day's other well-known ditty 'Top o' the mornin', Bridget McCue."

THAT fine comedienne Miss Maidie Scott, whose song—specially written for her alone—"Our Martha Jane can't read," is being expedited through the press, has acquired from Charles Ridgwell and Geo. A. Stevens a number named "If I'd had my mother to guide me!" Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers.

R. P. WESTON is still writing the humorous songs for which he is noted. Mr. Harry Bedford's new number, "Brown, breezy, and broke," is from his pen, and the genial comedian, who is a melodist of no mean order, is proud of his collaborator, they having written the number betwixt them. Messrs. Francis and Day have the song in the press. The same house are putting on the market a song entitled "Anastasia," from R. P. Weston's pen.

MISS AMY CLEVERE'S new song, "Belle, Belle, I'm sorry you're a coon," has been enchanting visitors to the Holborn Empire. It has the same melodious lilt as that possessed by her "Ain't you got a black moon?" and is from the same writer's pen—that of George A. Stevens.

MR. HARRY CHAMPION—who for so many years has been in a state of "galloping consumption of time," judging by his anxiety to let the next turn have a chance—has acquired a song which suits him to a nicety. It is called "The old high hat that I got married in," is by A. E. Sheppard and Chas. Collins, and will be published immediately by Messrs. Francis and Day.

A REMARKABLY pretty song has just been secured by Messrs. Francis and Day entitled "Only a passing shadow," by Leonard Cooke, who as a balladist is bad to approach, let alone beat, and Fred Elton. Messrs. Francis and Day are publishing the same.

MR. AND MRS. E. H. LUCAS IN HARROGATE.

THE KURSAAL.

Undoubtedly the principal item of interest at the Kursaal this week has been the welcome visit of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas, who have presented scenes from the works of Charles Dickens. The impersonations were presented in their usual histrionic style, and received loud and well-deserved applause. To-night (Saturday) Mr. and Mrs. Lucas, in addition to their usual programme, will give a sketch entitled "Mrs. Caudle," which should prove even more humorous than the "Cough Mixture" sketch, which has been received with marked success during the earlier part of the week. These talented artists are undoubtedly the best impersonators of the characters from the works of Charles Dickens that have ever appeared at the Kursaal. Their impersonations are thoroughly artistic—so high-class, in fact, as to come in the nature of a surprise to the patrons of even such a high-class place as the Kursaal. Certainly no more thoroughly artistic acting has been seen in the building than that of Mr. and Mrs. Lucas in their various scenes from the great master of English fiction. Ranging from the exuberance of merriment to the pathos of deep emotion, it is the same high standard of histrionic skill, and lovers of the dramatic will not fail to avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing and hearing Mr. and Mrs. Lucas to-night.—Harrogate Times, July 25, 1910.

"AN ARTFUL WIDOW."

Farcical Sketch, in One Scene, Written by R. S. France, Produced at the Standard Music Hall on Saturday, July 23.

Major Wellington de Montmorency ..... MR. ARTHUR CURZON
Pompey Piplin ..... MR. FRANK WALLER
Tisa ..... MISS SADIE BUSH
Clorinda ..... MISS LILY ANNESLEY

A testy elderly Major advertises for a housekeeper, and a widow puts in an appearance, charms and weds him, and then instals herself as absolute mistress of the house. One of the servants, a negro, appears as a ghost of the lady's first husband, and makes her confess that she murdered him by feeding him with heavy pastry. This subdues the widow, and all ends well. Mr. Arthur Curzon as the Major and Miss Lily Annesley as the Widow caught the spirit of the play and of their parts cleverly, and Mr. Frank Waller as the black servant and Miss Sadie Bush as the housemaid were effectively farcical. An Artful Widow will bear a little revision.

THE performances for the benefit of the Amalgamated Railway Servants at the Palace, Neath, were a great financial success. The mayor and corporation were present, and his worship, in proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. Vint for his many kindnesses since his opening at Neath, wished him every success in his new venture, the Hippodrome, which opens next month. Mr. Noice suitably responded on Mr. Vint's behalf.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

Topping the bill at Hammersmith this week is that popular comedian, Mr. George Mozart, who, with a fund of humour, keeps the audience in roars of laughter throughout his turn. Mr. Tom Stanley and company, in the sensational Cornish tragedy, The Candle, meet with great success. The sketch is most dramatic and thrilling, and is exceedingly well interpreted, Miss Barbara Gott as the wife giving an exceptionally clever portrayal. The scenery is effective, the storm effects being very realistic. Mr. Frank Harwood, smartly dressed, wins much applause with a chorus song, "Can you find room for a little boy?" but in his second—a humorous descriptive song—entitled "On early-closing day," he proved even more popular, and was recalled several times. Miss Eileen Northe, the Cullercoats fisher lass, is blessed with a charming voice, which she uses with much effect in Tosti's "Good-bye."

Mr. Harry Pleon's skit on The Bad Girl of the Family is laughable, the comedian working hard to secure his comic effects. One of the successes of the programme is the turn provided by the Columbria Trio, who mix some very clever comedy business in with their tuneful and well-harmonised trio singing. Their make-up and costumes add considerably to their success. Merlin is as mystifying as ever with his card tricks. His lucid explanations to the volunteers from the audience who helped him raised much laughter.

Lydia Dreams's ventriloquial turn showed considerable originality. This item concluded with a clever charcoal sketch of Mark Twain. Mr. Frank Boyce does well in a racing character song, and as Jimmy Josser, the cowardly burglar, are outstanding features of this playlet.

Alix Dukos presents some character creations which are well received, one number, entitled "King George the Fifth," written and composed by the artist, being specially worthy of mention. Eddie and Ethel as comedy artists are good, and Miss Vera Saunders gives a really clever exhibition of clog-dancing. Mr. Harry Knox, comedian, and Miss Anna Gold and her dancing boys are also appearing here, and the entertainment is brought to a close by a particularly fine portrayal of The Corner in Wheat on the Bioscope.

THE GRANVILLE.

Although the week preceding a Bank Holiday is generally a quiet one in the entertainment world, very little evidence of this was manifest at Walham Green this week, for the patrons of the Granville turned up in goodly numbers to applaud the several excellent turns provided by Mr. Robert W. Duce for their amusement. Perhaps the principal reason for this is to be found in the fact that figuring at the top of the bill is Mr. Bert Coote and his company, presenting a smartly-written episode of the New York Stock Exchange, entitled A Lamb on Wall Street. This up-to-date playlet was received with remarkable enthusiasm when played at the Tivoli a few months ago, and a no less cordial reception was given to it at Walham Green now. Mr. Bert Coote fairly revels in his impersonation of the guileless Harold Tapsley Frumingham, his many quaint conceits and irresponsible mannerisms evoking hearty laughter. Mr. J. C. Aubrey was determined and passionate as the scheming Randolph Horton; whilst Miss Ada Russell was entirely successful as the much-perturbed Eleanor Belding. The Franz Comedy applauded. Al. Passmore is extremely funny in his dame song and patter; Prof. Athlone, Sandow's model, assisted by Mlle. Una, in living art and statuary and novel feats of strength, is a prime favourite.

The Eight College Girls, in their vocal speciality "The Students' Concert," are very good indeed. Four of them dance delightfully, and in their concerted numbers their voices blend well together. Carl Howard is billed as the world's worst conjurer, and certainly if taken seriously the description is quite correct, the turn being very funny. Ward and Davis appear in an amusing musical comedy duologue, Wanted, a Typist.

Massona, a tramp eccentric juggler, supplies a clever and much appreciated turn. The Bioscope is up to its usual high standard of excellence, a new series of films being shown. Prominent in the entertaining programme is Clarice Mayne, who, assisted by her pianist-comedian, in selections from her répertoire, scores a big success. Her first song is "Put on your Ta-ta, little Girlie," this being followed by an imitation of Marie Lloyd. Miss Mayne also contributes the amusing "Georgie took me walking in the Park," and her reception is most flattering.

An amateur carnival has been held here this week, four money prizes being given by the management. They have also guaranteed that the winner shall have six consecutive weeks' engagement at the halls under their control.

GREENWICH PALACE OF VARIETIES.

This old-established and favourite place of amusement is enjoying a new lease of life under the able management of Mr. Bob Graham, who represents the new lessee, Mr. D. M. Kerr. There are some excellent artists on the bill. One of the most interesting items is the production of a new musical comedy sketch by Roy and Fenton. These clever performers show to great advantage in their smartly-written and admirably acted sketch, and were enthusiastically received by the delighted audience. Miss Gladys le Clair is a capital vocalist, and is warmly applauded in her chorus songs; Bob Lee is a capital comedian, and evokes loud laughter; Elvyn and Chip are smart and agile pedestal dancers; Miss Laura Maxted sings sweetly some excellent ballads; the Sisters Wayland give an attractive turn consisting of songs and dances; Harry Bent is a genuinely humorous comedian and clever mimic, who goes exceedingly well with the audience; Roelgin's Bird Actors are cleverly trained, and delighted all present; Miss Ruby Royal is a charming serio and dancer; Louin and Lake are an excellent turn, and give general satisfaction; Edward Thompson is a clever mystical entertainer; the Sisters Harcourt are attractive duettists and dancers; Merry May Mack makes a hit as a comedienne and dancer; Benetti and Bob Kellino Trio are capital risley and acrobatic performers; and the pictures conclude a capital programme.

WILLESDEN HIPPODROME.

The excellent programme at Willesden this week is drawing crowded houses. Mr. George Mozart heads the bill, and his humorous stories provoke a great deal of mirth. He also gives his well-known numbers "The Buskers" and "The Living Picture Drama," assisted by Corporal Slippery, both of these selections being greatly to the liking of his listeners, who respond with rounds of applause.

Rowland Carse's company are presenting The Roundheads, an entertaining interlude, in which a number of tuneful ditties are given. A toast to Cromwell, followed by toasts of a Soldier's Life, a Maiden's Eyes, and a Good Wine, all find the audience appreciative. The Sisters Draycott, looking very charming in blue, are attractive duettists, and their rendering of "Dear Heart" is heartily applauded.

Walter Bird's company is here in a comedy sketch, entitled Her Husband. The story deals with the appearance of burglars at a house in the country. The master has been called away suddenly, and in his absence the "wife" discovers that one of the intruders is her husband whom she had thought dead long since. The burglar-husband asks for money, and on being refused, a scuffle ensues, and in the melée the burglar is killed by his partner, who afterwards gets away. Upon the return of the master of the house his "wife" declares that she has shot the burglar, and thereby avoids the necessity of any disclosures. The humour and eccentricities of Ernie Lotinga, the Sisters Paget also appear. Ruffell's Bioscope are showing some good pictures, whilst the selection and the overture performed by the orchestra, under Mr. J. H. Cleve's guidance, are excellent. Mr. Jack M. Hart, the popular manager, is away holiday-making.

WOOLWICH HIPPODROME.

There is an excellent programme here this week. Minnie Paget is a pleasing singer, and quite an expert with the concertina, her turn being loudly

Five have a very amusing acrobatic scena, entitled Mrs. Wallop's Private School, in which some very clever feats are ably and neatly performed, and one of the juvenile ladies deserves special mention for her display of skilful strength; Vandinoff paints some remarkable pictures with lightning rapidity, and it is little short of marvellous how beautifully he depicts a bouquet of choice flowers on an easel revolving at a tremendous rate; Miss Dot Hardy is a singer of vivacious eccentric songs that always meet with approval here, and she has two good numbers in "Swimming the Channel" and "Mr. Douglas Trunk"; Burley and Burley are two great comedy acrobats, who feature many new tricks, several of the bending feats on an ordinary table seeming to be almost impossible, until one sees how easily this well-trained couple manage them; Mr. Ted Saunders, the mimic, although suffering from a severe cold, manfully stuck to his guns, and gave a good idea of George Lashwood's rendering of "My Latchkey," some good samples of R. G. Knowles' witticisms, and a finished and artistic rendering of "My pal Jerry's Dying Address to his Companion Nobbler"; Miss Hamid Alexander entertained at the piano in her usual refined and effective way; and others who appeared were Master Harry Clark, a precocious juvenile comedian and dancer, and Clyne and Clark, a vivacious couple of black and white comedy artists, full of life and go, and clever dancers as well. The films on the cinematograph were clearly screened, and the band, under the skilful baton of Mr. Frank Thomas, ably render their selections and give the artists every assistance with their songs.

TOTTENHAM PALACE

Tottenham boasts of billing two of London's latest comedy successes this week in Harry Tate's Flying and Fred Karno's Justice Perkins, with Albert Bruno filling the title-rôle. The boast is no vain one, as certainly they are proving two of the best attractions Tottenham has had for some time; whereat Mr. T. S. Mayne, the ever-courteous manager, is on good terms with himself. Albert Bruno's Justice Perkins is about as funny a conception as it is possible to imagine. Mr. Bruno fits the part exactly, and turns out a solid laugh-raiser of the most hilarious kind. In the Court scene, where a general stage licence seems to prevail, we get a feast of fun from the "impartial" Perkins. He dispenses the law with lavish hand, and provides counsel, witnesses, and jury—to say nothing of the audience—with a "real good time." Those who are conversant with the entertaining abilities of Harry Tate can imagine the possibilities of Flying. Mr. Tate's treatment of the subject is intensely funny. The Frasettis present a tasteful musical act, their violin and harp playing being an especially pleasing feature of their performance. Walker and May and Guy Ryder, a smart whistler, and May Fayre, are all good in their respective lines. Miss Alexandra Dagmar's stateliness impresses at first sight, and helps her to "hit them" with her renderings. The Alaskas do an exceedingly smart acrobatic act, and are certainly one of the cleverest troupes in their style of business. Mr. William Burgess still wields the bâton well, and well-chosen selections, while the pictures continue to prove a popular adjunct to the evening's enjoyment.

CROUCH END HIPPODROME.

Mr. Frederick Phelps, the popular resident-manager here, has every reason to congratulate himself upon the excellent business which is being done here this week. The programme is of an attractive nature, prominent among the many excellent features being the remarkably adroit and novel acrobatic and gymnastic exhibition given by the Tom Albertos. There is a freshness and originality about their feats which makes their display one of the most entertaining of its kind, and altogether their contribution is of a very enjoyable character. The Two Glenvilles provide a bright singing and dancing turn; and the Pemms are highly amusing in their songs and cross patter. Ross, Grace, and Elvio appear with success in a comedy sketch and miscellany of dance and acrobatic feats; and Jack Lowe causes much merriment with his "Advice" song.

Bob Pender's Bright Sparks in speciality dances are very smart; and the company includes Little Doris Pender, a graceful little danseuse. She gives several exhibitions of toe-dancing, for which she receives loud applause. Needless to say, Harry Tate's company in Motoring proves a great attraction and supplies one of the chief items of the programme. Kitty Crowther, winner of the recent Bedford Amateur Carnival, sings prettily "Rings on my fingers," concluding with a well-executed dance, and her efforts are loudly applauded. Belrose and De Velin's pleasing vocalisation is displayed in "The Call to Arms" and "Tell her I love her so," and these popular duettists score one of the chief successes of the evening. In view of the great interest taken in the Johnson-Jeffries fight and to show the many interesting points about the black giant's ability, the management are this week showing on the bioscope the complete film of the Johnson-Burns fight. A series of up-to-date pictures brings a very entertaining programme to a conclusion. An excellent overture and a selection during the evening are performed by the capital orchestra under the direction of Mr. Joseph Baker.

THE IMPERIAL, CANNING TOWN.

The excellent programme submitted by the genial Mr. Frank Clarke for this week is greatly enjoyed by the patrons of this cosy little East-End hall. A prominent position on the bill is held by the Six Brothers Luck, who are playing two sketches at each performance, viz., Lift'ems, Ltd., and their ever-popular The Demon of the Cellar. Plenty of good fun is seen throughout, the tumbling being especially good and greatly enjoyed. A particularly clever turn is given by the Three Videos, who prove themselves good skaters, their many difficult feats being greatly appreciated. Much laughter is caused by the partner in the pneumatic dress. Held and Sagar, the Soubrette and the Dude, are most amusing, the antics of the male partner being extremely funny. He has an ingenious property door from which he obtains many laughs, the finale being reached by the lady singing a tuneful song, concluding with a clever dance.

Laco and Leno, comedians and wooden shoe dancers, are a smart couple. The humorous portion of their act is quite original, and their dancing is remarkable, the many difficult steps being a distinct feature. An old favourite, Johnny Danvers, is also here, singing in his well-known style "If the missus says it's black" and "Why didn't you come before," a neatly executed dance also being included in a much-appreciated turn. Miss Lillian French possesses an exceedingly powerful voice, and sings in capital style "Rose Marie," and Joseph Gilbert (prize winner of the Amateur Carnival) is another good vocalist, and is heard with pleasure.

Miss Flo Cecil, a comedienne with a neat and taking style, renders well a cleverly written number, "As soon as Saturday comes." The Four Marzipans, a quartette of smart lady dancers, prove themselves experts at their business. Amongst many good films displayed on the Bioscope is the one showing the fight between Johnson and Burns, the exciting rounds being watched most intently. A capital orchestra is directed by Mr. H. A. Knight, the selection, "The Darkies' Dreamland," being excellent.

"A NICHT WI' BURNS."

Robert Burns ..... MR. DICKSON MOFFAT
Ralph Farrell ..... MR. SYDNEY BLAND
Sir John Seymour ..... MR. HENRY EARLESMERE
Mrs. Burns ..... MISS IVY ROSS
Miss Isabella Seymour .. MISS MILDRED HODSON

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Ralph Farrell has become enamoured of Miss Isabella Seymour, and having asked for the lady's hand from her father, is repulsed by old Sir John. The young couple plan an elopement, and set off in a postchaise on a wintry evening. On the road the chaise breaks down, and the lovers, seeing a light shining from a cottage window, seek refuge there, thinking the place may be an inn. The house, however, turns out to be the dwelling of Robert Burns and his wife, by whom the runaways are kindly welcomed on the circumstances of their flight being made known. Fate or fortune soon brings Sir John Seymour to the same cottage, having met with some mishap when in pursuit of his daughter and would-be son-in-law. Mrs. Burns promptly conceals the young people in an inner room as Sir John enters the kitchen, and Burns is now made the confidant of the angry father, who before long is engaged in the discussion of varied subjects with his unknown host over a bowl of punch. From one topic to another the conversation drifts to literature and poetry, and Burns, after rendering some of his own lyrics with some effect, works on the old gentleman's feelings by an impromptu flight of fancy, dealing graphically with the troubles and anxieties of the actual lovers, till finally Sir John melts. Then the youth and the maiden appear at the right moment, and receive their father's blessing. The strongest part of the little drama is, naturally, in the scene between Burns and Sir John Seymour, where Mr. Dickson Moffat in the rôle of the poet made the most of his opportunities with fine elocutionary skill; and Mr. Henry Earlesmere also, in the part of Sir John, acted with telling effect. Miss Ivy Ross was happy in occasional touches of humour as Mrs. Burns, and Mr. Sydney Bland with Miss Mildred Hodson respectively realised the ardour of Richard Farrell and the attractiveness of Isabella Seymour.

MISS KATIE MARSH will produce a new number, entitled "All for you, and only you," at the Canterbury on Monday.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Miss Ada Reeve has made a phenomenal success at the Coliseum this week with Feldman and Co.'s two numbers, "Foolish questions" (by William Lee and A. Baldwin Sloane, the special English verses of which have been written by John P. Harrington) and "Nobody knows—nobody cares" (by Chas. K. Harris), which charming ballad has been the hit of the bill at the St. Martin's-lane house.

At the Hippodrome, Brighton, this week those charming duettists the Kebbles have been enthusiastically received for their delightful rendering of Madden and Weinrich's charming song of the prairie, "Silver Bell," which Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. are publishing.

A furore is being created at the Tower, Blackpool, by Miss Pauline Rivers' talented troupe with the number "Cock-a-doodle-do in the morning," by John P. Harrington and John Neat, which forms the principal vocal feature of her charming production "Our Children's Farmyard; or, Chantecler in Fairyland." Messrs. Feldman and Co. have issued this number in music form.

That delightful chanteuse Miss Annie Schuberth is winning golden opinions at Yarmouth with Messrs. Feldman and Co.'s two exquisite songs, "Beautiful garden of roses" (by Dempsey and Schmidt) and James Wilson and Henrie Jaxon's "Though years go rolling by," both of which she will produce in London when she opens at the Standard, Pimlico, shortly.

At the Surrey Theatre this week Miss Vena Vaima has been the recipient of plaudits loud and long for her delightful rendering of "Have you met a girl named Mary?" by Fred Godfrey and Fred D'Albert. This Feldman publication certainly is hourly growing in popularity.

The Royal Osborne Minstrels at Llanfairfachen, North Wales, are at present featuring the following Feldman publications with success:—"Just like the dear old swing," "Playing the game in the West," "Come by the drum in the big brass band," "Molly O'Morgan," "It's a grand old world to live in," "In a waltz, waltz, waltz," and several others.

London will lose Mr. John P. Harrington August Bank Holiday week, as this well-known writer has accepted an invitation from Mr. George Lashwood to combine business with pleasure as his guest in South Wales. In Mr. Lashwood's new 25-h.p. motor-car we have no doubt this experienced comedian and writer will evolve many new ideas for the delectation of London in the near future.

Among the numerous novelties Messrs. Price and Reynolds have recently issued are to be found George Robey's "Somebody's got to go through it," Miss Maidie Scott's "Father started out to work this morning" and "Father's got a job," Miss Rosie Lloyd's "Moonlight on the Prairie," Miss Hetty King's "Follow the tramline" and "I've got the time—I've got the place, Miss Ray Wallace's "Won't you come rinking?" Miss Jennie John's "I like the little girl in the photograph," and the following American successes: "If I had a thousand lives to live," "If I had the world to give," "By the old oaken bucket," "I've lost my Teddy Bear," "Down by the huskin' bee," and "I wish I had my old girl back again.'

Miss Pauline Rivers's annual production at the Tower, Blackpool, Our Children's Farmyard, has scored an instantaneous success. Special songs have been written, including "The Greedy Gosling," "Underneath the bright blue moon," and "Good-morning, Mr. Sunshine!" The last-named song is the "hit," and is being encored at every performance. Price and Reynolds have secured the publishing rights of all three numbers.

Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford's song "Gwennie from Abergavenny" is in great request at all the leading seaside resorts, being specially featured by many, including Miss Mona Vivian, Miss Molly Watson, Alf Lawrance, Alwyn Sawyer, &c., and should be in great request for pantomime. Price and Reynolds are the publishers.

Mr. Herman Finck's popular two-step "The Polar Bear's Picnic" is being played nightly at the Tower, Blackpool. "Aviation" Waltz, "Valse Enchanting," "Brooklyn Belle" barn dance, "Operatic" lancers, "Toni" valse lente, "Songe des Sirènes" valse lente, are all in request, and played by the leading bands. Messrs. Price and Reynolds are the publishers.

Miss Kitty Clinton, who returned to London last Monday after a successful provincial tour, has quite captured the hearts of patrons of the Empress, Brixton, by her effective rendering of A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's popular chorus ballad "I wonder if you care?" Miss Clinton's success with this song has been exceptional both in the provinces and at the Empress. The Star Music Co. publish a special edition of the song adorned with its charming interpreter's photograph.

Miss Dorothy Sefton is another delightful singer at the Empress, Brixton, and has been achieving a triumph with A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's melodious descriptive song "When the war drums are beating." The Star Music Co. propose issuing this number forthwith.

Some people say: "Charles Whittle is a lucky man! He always gets such splendid chorus songs." The fact is, however, Mr. Whittle is a good judge of a song "in the raw," and he knows just what the public will take to. His latest winner is a case in point. "Fall in and follow me," written by those ubiquitous authors A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, is destined to equal, if not excel, in popularity any of this popular performer's previous numbers. The Star Co. are the publishers.

Mr. Rowland Hill, "Ye Dame," has just bought five new numbers, all from the pen of Tom B. Newsome. Three of the novelties Mr. Hill will produce next week at the Palace Theatre, Reading.

The staff and friends of the Holloway Empire spent a very enjoyable day last Sunday, the occasion being their tenth annual outing. Train was taken at 9 a.m. for Windsor, where a launch was in waiting to convey the party, numbering fifty, to Henley, which was reached at 4 o'clock, lunch and tea being served on board. In spite of the inclement weather everybody heartily enjoyed themselves.

The successor to Mr. Julian Graham, lately manager of the Hippodrome, Sheerness, who has been appointed to take charge of the Empire, Southend, will be Mr. A. Lingham Power, who goes to his new post with an excellent record. Nine years ago he joined Mr. Seymour Hicks's company at the Vaudeville Theatre, and there played in Quality Street. For two years he continued in the company, which, during that time, had been commanded to appear before the late King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra at Windsor. At the opening of the Royal Pavilion at Ramsgate he undertook its management under the Corporation of that town. Six years ago he became acting-manager of the Empire Theatre at Southend, under Mr. George Conquest, and on Mr. Pareener taking over the theatre Mr. Power became manager.

CHAT WITH MISS ALEXANDRA DAGMAR.

The same name and her parents of the same nationality as the Queen-mother, Miss Alexandra Dagmar, the popular and cultured vocalist and comedienne, was herself born in England. Very early in life she took to the stage, mainly because she liked it, studying singing and going in for a lot of concert, and, in fact, any work that came her way. During this arduous period of her career she played in many well-known dramas, including those perennial favourites, East Lynne, Uncle Tom's Cabin, and Lady Audley's Secret. Eventually she went with a concert party to America, first as accompanist and then as vocalist, travelling right through the States, afterwards appearing at Koster and Bial's, New York. Later on she appeared with her husband, Mr. Edmond De Celle, singing duets.

MISS ALEXANDRA DAGMAR.

It was that fine judge of talent, the late Mr. Charles Morton, who, knowing the fondness of London audiences for high-class vocalism, gave Miss Dagmar her first real chance in the Metropolis, and since then she has never looked back. She appeared with gratifying success at the Alhambra, the Palace, Empire, Tivoli, Oxford, and all the leading London halls—with, of course, many happy returns. The accomplished vocalist has but lately returned from a tour of the Moss-Stoll Empires, where she has been winning golden opinions with her song and story interlude, especially successful being the recitation "Forsaken," and "A Marriage of Mayfair," and is this week at Walthamstow and Tottenham.

In a pleasant half-hour's chat with an Era representative Miss Dagmar told of the many countries she had played in and the different experiences encountered. "At one place in America," she smilingly remarked, "I was billed as the Great Russian Beauty and Favourite of the Czar!' The manager was evidently unaware of my nationality, or, perhaps he thought it would be a good advertising dodge." Once while travelling with James J. Corbett, in Gentleman Jack, in 'Frisco, the company having a very long wait before going on by Pullman car decided to give a show. Miss Dagmar was requested to give some pianoforte selections to attract the multitude, and she recalls how the manager entreated her to "Play up, there's another two dollars just come in." South Africa, with Mr. Sydney Hyman, and all the leading Continental cities have also been visited by the fair traveller, and it is gratifying to know that she has always "made good." "No audience, however," she declares, "is quite so appreciative or enthusiastic as an English one, if they are pleased with your show."

Miss Dagmar's attractive personality and fine vocal abilities have, of course, been invaluable in pantomime, and her many successes in this direction will be easily recalled by all familiar with the stage. The late Sir Augustus Harris specially engaged her to play Dandini in Cinderella at the "Lane," a part in which she made a big hit, and she has also undertaken important characters in "annuals" at the Grand, Islington, the Dalston, Prince of Wales's, Birmingham, and other leading theatres.

Whilst in Berlin she studied Wagnerian opera, with a view to appearing therein, but circumstances—and engagements—prevented her doing so. Such a cultured singer would undoubtedly have succeeded in high-class work, but then the "halls" would have lost one of their finest vocalists. Last autumn Miss Dagmar enjoyed greatly a holiday visit to Coney Island—a splendid place to spend a happy time, to judge from the glowing account given us by the lady. She is very enthusiastic of American acts and American girls, the majority of whom, she declares, can sing—and sing well.

Miss Dagmar is by way of making a variation in her entertainment, and proposes giving vocal imitations at the piano. She holds engagements at the Tivoli and other halls, but would welcome a change—for a time at any rate—to the regular theatres, such as a comedy part in a musical play. To a lady of such varied accomplishments an opening should undoubtedly soon present itself.

CHAT WITH MISS MADGE TEMPLE

Firmly established as one of London's most popular songstresses, that delightful vocalist, Miss Madge Temple, should have no reason to regret the step she took when she deserted the ranks of musical comedy and comic opera for vaudeville. She first made her mark in the early days of the Coliseum as the romantic heroine of Fenella, singing with much charm of style one of the prettiest numbers in the operetta, "The Blackbird and the Dove." At the fine house in St. Martin's-lane, during Mr. Oswald Stoll's experiment with miniature opera, she also appeared with success in La Mascotte and A Cup of Tea, &c. Previous to this she had done much valuable work in the theatres, appearing in that popular musical play The Chinese Honeymoon at the Strand, and also in Stanislaus Strange's comic opera Dolly Varden, produced at the Avenue.

MISS MADGE TEMPLE.

The principal singing part in a pantomime at the Prince's, Manchester, with Mr. Robert Courtneidge, may also be numbered among her successes at the theatres, after which she was secured by Mr. George Edwardes for a part in The School Girl, that droll comedian, Mr. George Graves, being engaged about the same time. Circumstances, however, prevented the carrying out of the contract, and she resigned. Miss Temple next went on tour, playing the prima donna parts in Florodora and The Chinese Honeymoon.

She has also appeared with gratifying success on the concert platform, in association with some of the finest military bands and some of the foremost artists of the day, and in a brief talk with an Era representative referred with evident pleasure to one special occasion, on which she was complimented on her beautiful voice by Princess Henry of Battenberg and Princess Ena, now the Queen of Spain.

Since she has been working solus on the music halls she has appeared at most of the principal variety houses, her many ear-haunting numbers including "Pansy," "Esau, take me on the see-saw," "The tropical moon," "Rainbow," "I'm looking for Mr. Wright," and her present big hit, "On the silvery, silvery sands."

The last-named, which is sure to be numbered among the songs one will hear at the seaside, is published by the famous firm of Francis, Day, and Hunter, and is written by Arthur Findon and wedded to music by Hermann E. Darewski, jun. It has a fine, catchy chorus, and one of the verses tells of flirtations by the briny of a seaside boy, the song generally bringing the scent of the ozone to the tired toilers of the metropolis. Most of the melodies of Miss Temple's songs are composed by Mr. Hermann E. Darewski, jun., who is the lucky man privileged to be her husband. Miss Temple, however, is always on the look out for really good numbers by known or unknown writers, gratefully acknowledging how much of one's success depends on attractive material. The writer of the words, the melody-maker, and the interpreter are all dependent on one another, and neatly-turned lyrics and tuneful music need never go begging. But "winners" are scarce, as all those whose business it is to amuse the multitude are aware.

Miss Madge Temple has a happy way of "fixing" an audience directly she faces the footlights, and her fine voice, refined style, quiet sense of humour, and command of pathos when necessary, are responsible for the hold she has on the affections of the people. Her charming personality is always exquisitely clothed, her hats being triumphs of the milliner's art and her costumes the latest thing in elegance and good taste. For a mere man to attempt a description would be ridiculous.

Miss Temple was in the Scotch express disaster which occurred some years since, and as a result was confined to the house for some six months. This is her most thrilling experience, and one which she will never forget. Booked solid till 1913, the charming vocalist-comedienne's future would appear assured. But she has had to work very hard to attain the enviable position which is now hers. She delights in motoring, but finds her greatest pleasure in gardening—a health-giving and interesting recreation.

"BEWARE OF THE DOG."

Harold de Slopkins.....Mr. Fred Hilderson
Dick Johnson .....Mr. E. Chesney
Lucy Leightleigh .....Miss Clarice Gummond

Produced by Mr. Fred Hilderson, this new comedy sketch has greatly amused Sadler's Wells audiences this week. Brightly written and smartly played, Beware of the Dog can be strongly recommended to all who enjoy a hearty laugh. Harold de Slopkins is one of that class of young men about town who pester actresses with their unsought attentions. He pretends to be a devoted admirer of Miss Lucy Leightleigh, whose husband, Dick Johnson, is a strong man. Harold is unaware that his charmer is already married, and seeks to beguile the heart of the young actress by presents of bouquets. Moreover, he discovers where she resides, and, armed with a big bouquet, gains admittance to the home of the Johnsons. Hearing voices, he dives under the table, believing that the male voice must be that of the young lady's father. On entering the room she catches sight of Harold concealed under the table, and comes to the conclusion that he is the unknown admirer who has been persistently sending her bouquets. Lucy is determined to teach him a lesson for his impertinence, and, seeing his hat on a chair, she pours into it water from a jug, and then proceeds to make use of the headgear as a vase for the flowers. Harold emerges from his hiding-place, and loses no time in making love to his charmer, whereupon she informs him that she is the wife of a professional strong man. This information is anything but pleasant for Harold, and his fear of personal chastisement by a man of might and muscle is greatly increased when he hears a knock at the front door and a male voice. "My husband has returned, and he will kill you if he finds you here," exclaims the actress. He must conceal himself somewhere, and a box ottoman serves his purpose. The lady pretends to be asleep when her husband enters, but his suspicions are aroused by the discovery of a man's walking-stick upon the table. Has his wife had a visitor? He awakens her, and relates how he has just met an old friend who nearly killed a fellow for hanging around after his wife. Harold becomes so alarmed that in his agitation he causes the lid of the ottoman to bob up and down. The strong man asks for an explanation, and his wife tells him she has a dog in the box, and the unfortunate Harold is compelled to bark to keep up the deception. More merriment is evoked when Harold, having at last emerged from his hiding place, is chased round the room by Dick, until, rendered desperate, he makes for the window, but is gripped by the strong man. Harold disappears, but Dick retains possession of his nether garment. Lucy declares that he has killed the young man, and Dick, in his turn, becomes seriously alarmed concerning what has happened. Fearing arrest, he also seeks concealment in the ottoman, but Harold presently returns and accepts the apologies tendered him.

Mr. Fred Hilderson made excellent use of his opportunities in the part of the timorous intruder who is so severely punished for his attentions to an actress. Mr. E. Chesney was a capital representative of the strong man, his physique being well suited to the rôle; and Miss Clarice Gummond deserves a word of praise for her able embodiment of Lucy Leightleigh.

Mr. Tom E. Finglass, the cowboy coon, who has quite recovered from his serious operation, will make his reappearance in London at the Coliseum on Monday, constituting one of the features of the bill.

The generosity of King George in sending a donation to the venerable clown James Doughty, who for the past thirty years has appeared on the West Pier at Brighton with his performing dogs, recalls the fact that he is an old colleague of "Witty Watty" Walton, the well-known comedian. As long ago as 1873-4 and 1874-5 "Witty Watty" and Jimmy Doughty played together in the Covent Garden pantomime, where they were engaged for two years in succession. The last-named is 92 years of age next birthday, and it may not be generally credited that "Witty Watty" is within three years of sixty. Despite this, however, he is as brisk and versatile as ever, and has a series of contracts for the Moss-Stoll tours up to 1912.

American Vaudeville Artists in England.

AMERICANS IN LONDON.

[By AMERICUS.]

MANY American acts have arrived the past week, and most every boat has brought many good turns to this side. Some have come over to play contracted engagements, while others have made the trip to look over the vaudeville prospects and a vacation.

JOLLY AND WILD, in a musical offering called The Music Teacher, have been in London now over a week, and will play some time in the English music-halls.

GILDAY AND FOX, Hebrew comedians, are two late arrivals from the other side. They put their act on at Shepherds Bush last Saturday night for the managers to look them over. They have been offered some good time in the provinces, and will, in all probability, sign up for a tour before returning to the American side.

DONAVAN AND ARNOLDS, known in the States as the "King of Ireland and the Queen of Vaudeville," arrived last week for a short stay. This act played England last year.

DEVLIN AND ELLWOOD, a singing and talking act which has played the American tours, arrived last Saturday by the Cunard Line.

SAM GROSS is quite a busy person these days, and is dealing out some good musical stuff for the singers and dancers who want hits.

MISS ELLA SHIELDS, the clever singing comedienne from Baltimore, who has been on this side for some time, is playing Sheffield this week, and has been meeting with splendid success.

NAT WILLS is in London, and will open at the Palace in August. The famous tramp comedian brought along with him his big touring car, and says he is going to see England from one end to the other before he returns to Yankeeland. Nat has sure enough a big motor, and it was very much admired at the stage door of the Palace last week.

THE boxing bouts last Saturday night down at Wonderland drew a large crowd of American artists, and they all agreed that the English heavyweight Wells looked very promising, and showed evidence of a comer.

I RAN across a couple of the boys last week, who told me the boat sailed Wednesday. There is not quite so many over here this year, advertising steamship departures as last season.

RITCHIE and his troupe of cycling comedians are in Vienna this week, and will play the month of August at the Apollo Theatre. The act will be some little time on the Continent.

NAT LEIPSIC has invented a new card trick that he claims is a dandy. If it beats some of the rest he has, it must be a cracker-jack. For Nat is some boy with the cards and coins.

I WAS talking to Mr. Staley, who has the Staley transformation act at the Hippodrome, and he tells me that he had just received some good news from his brother relative to the Staley gold claims which they are working in Colorado. A good size pocket of ore was struck, and a number of good leads were discovered, which will be good news to all the performers who hold stock in these mines.

MAX RITTER is all smiles around the clubs. Mrs. Ritter (Grace Foster) arrived back from America on Monday night.

AL FRIEND AND SAM DOWNING are at Coventry this week, making them laugh with Panamas and other foolish jokes and gags. The team is well booked up, and are doing fine.

"CHUCK" has decided to go up to Holland Park Rink every day with Jimmy Britt and Earle Reynolds and train down to buck dancing weight.

ETHEL LEVY has been offered some fine engagements in the New York halls during the coming winter. Miss Levy was always a big head-liner in American music-halls.

JOE HAYMAN AND MAX RITTER are going to be real producers now, in addition to playing their own acts in the halls. They have a new skit called The Mischievous Boy, which they are rehearsing, and which will be ready in a few weeks for the managers to cast their eyes upon their efforts.

THE Two Boss have received offers galore for next season. They will sail for America after their Tivoli engagement, which will be the latter part of September, returning here next year for quite a stay.

MR. JARVIS BELL, secretary of the International Rinking Co., spent last Sunday and Monday in Paris looking over the rinks his company have in that city. Mr. E. B. Barnes, general manager of the company in England, also left Saturday night for a tour of the Continental rinks.

THE German Club back of the Queen's Hotel seems to be the headquarters for American artists. You can meet most any of the boys there after 11 p.m.

AFTER careful investigation, I find that the note in these columns relative to some artists in Germany copying Mr. Bert Levy's act was an error. Mr. Levy says there is no copy of his act as far as he knows, and as I have been over considerable ground the past two years, I have not seen anything resembling in the least way that the cartoonist is offering.

VARDON, PERRY, AND WILBUR, those three boys with a big répertoire of music, are making a most favourable impression all over the British Isles as entertainers extraordinary. Keep it up, boys; you are doing fine.

CHARLIE AHEARN and his troupe of cyclists will leave New York in a few days, coming direct to London, where he will open on the Stoll tour.

THERE is some talk of a White Rat scamper. The date has not been decided upon, but will, in all probability, be within a few weeks. There is quite an army of White Rats in London this year, and more coming on every boat.

MR. R. H. FITZSIMMONS, who has handled some of the best wrestlers both in this country and America, recently returned to England for a short stay.

Send in Your Permanent and Route Address.

I WOULD be pleased to have all the American acts now playing in Great Britain. Send me your permanent and route address. Address same to "Americus," c/o Era Office, London, W.C.

Pat Casey May Visit Here in August.

I RECEIVED a letter from New York last week which stated that Pat Casey, one of the foremost agents in America, will take a few weeks' vacation in August, and will spend some time in this country. We don't know of any better country one can spend the summer in than England. So come along, Mr. Casey. There are plenty of us here to show you the mother country of the English-speaking language.

MCLELLAN CARSON DUO have been booked for pantomime for the coming season, and will remain in England for some time to come. Their clever conception of Babes in Toyland will without a doubt make a big number for the pantomime season.

SAM STERN is booked for Birmingham next week. The Original Indian-Jew comedian has added a fine medley number to his act, which has proved quite a winner.

A VERY clever diving act called the Devine Myrma, is due at the Palace soon. This act played the Morris circuit in America for some months before coming to this side.

HELEN TRIX, the dainty American comedienne, is now in her third week at the Hippodrome, and has scored a fine success. Miss Trix opens her turn at the piano dressed in a stunning frock singing a rag-time song, the second number sees her in boy's clothes of a natty brown, concluding with a clever song entitled "Fifty years ago," dressed in crinoline. Altogether, Miss Trix has enjoyed a splendid season at the Hippodrome.

RUSSEL AND HELD, who have been doing great with their singing and dancing, are at Collins's this week. Miss Held makes six changes in ten minutes, which is going some. "Norah Malone," her clever song number, is as usual a big encore number.

THE splendid versatile Yiddish actor, Mr. M. D. Waxman, who is now playing the English halls, has not only been a fine success here, but was a big draw and great success in America. His clever sketch, Captain Dryfus, the Revolutionist, shows the ability of this capable American actor.

CHARLIE FREEMAN has assumed his brother's duties here in London as variety booster extraordinary for the American variety, and makes every effort to show the newcomers that arrive from the other side London. Charlie has two maps of London in his pockets most all the time.

I WAS asked what was the cause of so many American vaudeville artists making the trip to this side this season. I am informed that the terrific sun's rays have been partly the cause. The weather has been so warm in the States that the majority of the theatres have closed down for the summer; in addition, many of the big hippodromes in ball parks, which used hundreds of acts, have been forced to close down on account of the hot weather.

EARLE REYNOLDS has rented a place at Margate for the month of August, where Mrs. Reynolds will spend four or five weeks in recuperating before opening in Paris in September.

SHERRY AND BRAFF told me the other day that Mr. Andre Charlot would return to the management of their New York office about the 1st of September. Mr. Charlot has been taking his vacation on the Continent during July and August.

HER TWENTY-FIRST BIRTHDAY.

Thomas Murphy ..... MR. JOHN HERBERT
Peter Lewis ..... MR. TAYLOR VINSON
Lord Fairweather ..... MR. ST. A. BENTLEY
Limb ..... MISS MARGARET PARKER

The heroine of this interesting playlet is a hoydenish young lady known as Miss Limb. On the rising of the curtain she is seen discussing with the kind-hearted butler the "Wanted" advertisements in one of the professional papers, for she is determined to go on the stage. A lady with Shakespearean experience being required, Miss Limb, in order to show her suitability for the rôle, gives an excerpt from the Bard, much to the bewilderment of the butler. To prove her versatility, she also gives a well-rendered song, to her own piano accompaniment, but further exhibitions of her talent are stopped by the entry of her guardian, Peter Lewis. It is the young lady's twenty-first birthday, and her guardian soon gives her to understand that she must quit his house at once. Up to that day he had always treated her kindly, and the girl is quite naturally distressed at his heartless conduct. He tells her it is quite time she was earning her own living, but to help her along until she can find remunerative employment he offers her notes to the value of £100, which she indignantly tears up, and eventually departs. She, however, is determined to outwit him, for she rightly guesses that he has some ulterior motive in wanting to get rid of her so suddenly. She is, it transpires, heiress to £20,000, and the impecunious guardian means to appropriate this sum for his own benefit. The solicitor who has been acting for the girl is to call that day with the money, and Lewis is anxiously awaiting his arrival, meaning to forge the girl's signature to the cheque. Miss Limb, disguised as a boy, learns his scheme, and just before the solicitor arrives makes her guardian, who does not know her identity, promise not to rob the girl, telling him that honesty receives its own reward. When the solicitor comes he refuses to part with the £20,000 to anyone but the girl, and learning that Miss Limb has left is greatly agitated, revealing to her astonished protector that he is her father. He has been abroad for a number of years and amassed a large fortune, and intends to reward Lewis handsomely for his kindness to his girl. Ashamed of his conduct to Miss Limb, the guardian apparently has some reluctance about taking the money, and the young lady herself, who has come on the scene as the "boy," insists that her father shall make a donation of £200 to the Foundling Hospital—where she might have passed her early days had it not been for the guardian's kindness, also persuading her father to make a handsome present to the kind-hearted butler, Thomas. Finally the "boy" tells them that Miss Limb shall be forthcoming almost immediately, and going to the back of the stage quickly changes back into that lively young lady, much to the relief of her father and guardian.

The finish of the sketch strikes one as being rather unconvincing, but otherwise it is a creditable and entertaining piece of work, and provides ample scope for the versatility of the clever delineator of the principal part, Miss Margaret Parker, who is also the authoress. In the earlier episodes she gave evidence of her ability both as actress and vocalist, and her impersonation of a boy was also skilfully realised. An excellent portrayal throughout. Mr. John Herbert as Thomas Murphy, the kind-hearted old retainer, supplied an admirable impersonation, and the other parts were ably enacted. The sketch was produced under the direction of Miss Kate Rorke, and the music was composed and arranged by Mark Strong and Margaret Parker.

Laughter was in the ascendant during the presentation of the sketch Her Husband, the ludicrous behaviour of the burglar as impersonated by that funny comedian Mr. Ernie Lotinga being mainly responsible for the merriment. A very enjoyable interlude in Mr. Fred M'Evoy's bill this week is also that for which Mr. Fred Elton is responsible. In his scena at the piano, "On Board an Ocean Liner," he drolly sings of his courtship with "Kate"—a neatly-written and well-rendered number; contributes a funny medley; and also sings "Ta-hi-hi," his novel and attractive "rubber boom" ditty. "Messmates ashore," is also an entertaining vocal scena, for which the Harmony Boys are heartily applauded; and the Royal Delomes submit a particularly clever and smart dancing act. Miss Cissie Thompson, looking very pretty in turquoise-blue, told in song of the splendid opportunities for "spooning" afforded by the picture shows; the popular and always entertaining Miss Maud Courtney has a couple of humorous numbers that are much enjoyed; and Mr. C., vocalist and raconteur, rattles off his funniosities very effectively, his turn being particularly mirth-provoking. Also in the bill are Bombardier Wells, boxer, and Ruffell's Bioscope.

THE construction of a magic box made for a music-hall artist, named Fredk. Wilkinson, of Crieff-road, Wandsworth, formed the subject of an action at Wandsworth County Court recently. The plaintiff was Edwin Acworth, a builder, of Crieff-road, who claimed £5 17s. 6d. for the frame, which he said he made to Mr. Wilkinson's instructions. It was stated that the apparatus was intended to hold a girl, and when a gunshot was fired the girl was to appear suddenly through a paper screen. While the box was being made the defendant expressed satisfaction with it, and it was not until a year afterwards that he disputed the account. The defendant stated that he complained of the frame while it was being made, and when it was completed it was useless. It weighed over 3cwt., and could not be used on the stage. The Judge found for plaintiff, remarking that defendant had only got himself to blame for going to a builder and giving him such meagre instructions.

AT Marylebone County Court recently, before Judge Sir Wm. Selfe, John Grun Marx, a professional strong man, residing in Camberley-road, Brixton, claimed £57 15s. 4d. from George de Fel, described as general-manager of the Alexandra Variety Agency, Gloucester-mansions, Cambridge Circus, in respect of money lent. Mr. L. Tyfield, counsel for plaintiff, said the parties had been associated professionally, both being connected with the music-hall world. The plaintiff was well known at the halls, and advertised himself as "the Modern Hercules" and "A King of all Strong Men on this Earth." The defendant, as agent, undertook to get him engagements, and, in order to finance his (defendant's) wife, who carried on a millinery business in the West-End, he asked plaintiff to lend him £150. This the plaintiff did, and defendant had repaid £25 of the amount. He had also procured plaintiff engagements, the commission on which amounted to £57 4s. 8d., and the present action was for the return of the balance. Plaintiff, who displayed considerable nervousness in the box, bore out counsel's statement. The defendant did not appear and was not represented, but sent in a medical certificate. His Honour gave judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed and costs.

Dewsbury Feast.

With Dewsbury Feast begins the great circuit of Yorkshire Pleasure Fairs, lasting right away, week by week, until the middle of October. The centre of this circuit of popular feasts and local holiday fairs is Leeds. Bradford, too, has many suburban feasts. Around these two great industrial cities of Yorkshire the holidays of the people are governed by the dates of the local feasts. As the big cities have grown they have absorbed the villages that a few years ago dotted the highways between the large towns; the village has become a city suburb, and one excellent result is that the suburban fair of to-day (formerly the village feast) supplies the need of the workers in the great cities for popular open-air amusement. Although Dewsbury is one of the large towns of Yorkshire, its ancient feast still remains in the centre of the town. The advantage of a central site for a fair is well seen at Dewsbury. Nowhere are there greater crowds and nowhere else in Yorkshire is the fair better appreciated than it is in Dewsbury. On Saturday, when we paid our visit to the crowded fairground, unless you moved with the living stream of sightseers you were speedily forced back again. Shows, roundabouts, and stalls were all doing a brisk business, and the good people of Dewsbury were enjoying themselves to the full.

Machine Novelties, Great and Small.

Messrs. Farrar and Tyler's gigantic machine (the pioneer of its kind), the scenic railway, was the star attraction and supreme novelty of the feastground. Goldthorpe Marshall's scenic railway was also a big draw; Redfearn's flying motors—now changed to aeroplanes—were much patronised; Aspland's superb set, the Gordon-Bennett racing motor-cars, well maintained their popularity. P. Collins' Teddy bears and wheeley-whirley cars, Holdsworth's flying pigs and waltzing balloons and helter-skelter tower, and H. Waddington's racing cockerels found crowds of eager patrons. W. Shaw and Dunwell Johnson's sets of steam swings were thronged; Howden's, Seed's, and Gledstone's juvenile sets were the delight of the youngsters. There were also park swings and high fliers.

All Sorts of Shows.

Aspland's splendid cinematograph theatre and Farrar and Tyler's Palace of Light and Picturedrome divided the honours between them for animated picture display and popularity. Prof. Vallo, with occult mystery and conjuring show, C. Relph's abnormal exhibits, P. Collins' haunted castle, Hill's model exhibition, and J. Westray's animal jungle were the principal side shows—all of them good of their kind and doing good business.

Bazaars, Stalls, and Games.

A special feature of Dewsbury Feast is "Bazaar Parade," nearly a thousand feet long—bazaar joining bazaar, stall after stall, "Toyland at the Fair"—a pleasing vision of the children's paradise of fairings that only a few favoured places can show. The toy merchants with their long bazaars were Messrs. Seed, Gledstone, Parkinson, Howorth, and Mrs. J. Seed. Another characteristic feature of the fair was the gingerbread stalls—a big array—and included many local caterers. The travelling pannum firms were Messrs. Wright and Co., Howorth, Geo. Wright, and Parkinson. The funmakers and masters of the revels with throwing games, houp-la circles, watch-la stalls, coker sheets, dolly frames, variety stalls, and shooting ranges and bottle batteries were Messrs. W. Steward, A. Baines, W. Turner, C. Guthrie, J. Holdsworth, Middlebrook, C. Blake, E. Firth, Sowden, B. Duffield, W. Lee, A. Rhodes, and a full score of other caterers.

The Guild Meetings at the Feast.

Owing to the drenching rain on the Feast Sunday, the attendance at the Guild meetings both afternoon and evening were much below the average. At the afternoon meeting Mr. B. Howden occupied the chair, and the prominent showmen present included Messrs. Holdsworth, G. Wright, W. Steward, W. Turner, F. Sowden, A. Rhodes, J. Parkinson, C. Guthrie, J. Handy, J. Westray, and G. A. Howden. There were also present a number of the show employees.

The Guild Chaplain's Speech.

The Rev. T. Horne, Guild Chaplain and Organiser, addressed the meeting on the need for constant vigilance in the work of trade defence. The Guild was their most valuable agency for this necessary and important work. He dealt fully with the various departments of the Guild's Endeavour. He detailed the present highly satisfactory nature of their position—successful all along the line—in Parliament, both with regard to the Movable Dwellings Bill and Private Bills introduced by public bodies, their protective and preventive work with reference to proposed abolition of fairs and new by-laws.

The Difficulty of New By-Laws.

He explained the security of their position and the safety of their methods in dealing with Parliament and with corporations when fairs were attacked. He showed that so long as they kept their parliament scrutiny work effective that no material harm could come to them by inimical proposals under new Bills or by the abolition of Fairs Acts. Their greatest danger was in the possibility (always present under the present law) of bad by-laws coming into existence without the showmen concerned being aware of their proposal until it was too late to prevent their sanction. He asked every showman and stallholder to watch the Press for notices of new by-laws, and to send word at once to the Guild Secretary when such proposals were being discussed by corporations. It was satisfactory that the Guild did get to know through its members and friends most of the proposed new by-laws, but not all. He instanced a recent case where by-laws had been passed without even the saving clause exempting the fair. He hoped for the time to come when the Guild might make a step forward and introduce a Bill of their own remedying the obvious injustice of existing powers to make and enforce by-laws to penalise the show business.

The Increase and Onward March of Their Work.

The time had come, in his judgment, for showmen through their Trade Protection Society to go to Parliament and ask for the amendment of unjust laws that now cripple their industry, and make possible the persecution of showpeople by fanatics and faddists. The Acts of Parliament whereby by-laws might be framed to injure their Association in life ought to be so amended that at least the showman would be warned in time to petition against their manifest injustice.

Enrolment of Members and Subscriptions.

Mr. B. Howden, the chairman, appealed to those present to support the society. Dewsbury was a centre for Yorkshire showmen to join or to renew their subscriptions. He always paid his own annual subscription earlier in the year at Lynn Mart. He would, however, have pleasure in starting the subscription list with 10s.

Mr. G. A. Howden, acting as secretary to the meeting, enrolled the following members:—G. A. Howden, 10s. 6d.; F. Sowden, 10s.; W. Steward, 5s.; A. Rhodes, 5s.; J. Parkinson, 5s.; A. Baines, 5s.; W. Turner, 5s.; C. Guthrie, 5s. Additional subscriptions, B. Howden, 10s.; J. Handy, 1s.

Subscriptions for 1909.

By a mistake on the part of the committeeman who enrolled them, the following members' names and their subscriptions were not sent to the secretary in time to be entered in the list of members for 1909. The matter was put right at the Dewsbury meeting:—E. Firth, 5s.; C. Pullen, 5s.; C. Blake, 5s.; H. Neild, 5s.; E. Wood, 5s.; J. Anakin, 5s.; B. Duffield, 5s.; W. Lee, 5s.; W. Mitchell, 5s.; G. Tarbottom, 5s.; C. W. Webster, 5s.; J. H. Vanner, 5s. The committeeman in question was new to the work, hence the mistake. It will greatly help the Guild Secretary if committeemen will forward a quarterly list of members made to the Guild Office, The Era, London.

The Guild Service at Night.

Aspland's beautiful show pavilion was well attended by an attentive and devout congregation a good attendance of showpeople being noticeable. The choir of the Parish Church and members of the choir of St. James's Church led the singing, and the Rev. J. F. L. Orton, senior curate at the Parish Church and assistant hon. local chaplain intoned the service, which was choral throughout. The hymns and responses were most heartily sung by choir and congregation. The Rev. T. Horne was the preacher, and took for his theme the Holy Gospel for the day—the parable of the unjust steward. He applied its many lessons to the showman's use of his talents and gifts—for stewardship of God's good gifts as well as in its general scope to all sorts and conditions of men.

The Rev. T. Horne assisted at the Parish Church services morning and evening, and was the special preacher at evensong. The Vicar of Dewsbury, Canon Harvey, is hon. local chaplain of the Guild, and takes a keen interest in its work.

Sympathy with Alf. Ball.

The flow of subscriptions and expressions of sympathy with Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Ball and family continue with unabated fervour. The veteran showman, Lord George Sanger, in sending a donation of five pounds to the fund, writes:—"I have been confined to my bedroom with a severe chill, or I should have written sooner. I wish the fund every success." The local benefit fund and concert at Tilbury Docks is expected to realise about sixty pounds. The concert itself was an immense success, the new booth being crowded to its utmost capacity. Councillor Blair Williams, Esq., chairman of the District Council, presided, and was supported by the Vicar of Tilbury, the Rev. T. Horne (Guild Chaplain), and several members of the Tilbury Council. The chairman, in a sympathetic address, referred in warm terms to the respect felt in Tilbury and district for Mr. and Mrs. Ball. He had no doubt whatever that the crowded audience that night was a tribute of sympathy and respect to a worthy showman in the time of distress and great loss. He was glad to have present the showmen's Chaplain, the Rev. Thomas Horne. It was only right and proper that on an occasion like the present they should have a few words from the showmen's Minister. He therefore asked Mr. Horne to address the meeting.

The Guild Chaplain's Address.

Mr. Horne, on rising to speak, was received with cheers. He told the meeting that the showmen of Great Britain, like the good people of Tilbury, were coming to the rescue of Vice-President Ball, of the Showmen's Guild. They in Tilbury had showed marked kindness to Mr. and Mrs. Ball and family. He had known them all his working life. From the bottom of his heart he thanked the people of Tilbury for all the good help they had given Alf. Ball. He could assure them that Alf. was worthy of all they had done. Alf. Ball never spared himself for the good of others. It was hardly likely that now, in the dark hour of misfortune and adversity, that Alf. Ball would be forgotten. He expressed his delight at the excellent programme of songs, sketches, and music, and humorously regretted that his singing days were over, for, parson though he was, he loved to see the people in merry mood, and would just as soon help to make people laugh as evoke serious thoughts in speech or sermon.

The Concert a Big Success.

In addition to the regular variety company of Ball's new Lyceum, including such stars as Mme. Olga, Princess Pauline, Nellie Bashford, the inimitable comedian Harry Banford, and others, the world-famous Sully and Saroni, the two Deutchers, gave their Dutch sketch, and secured a double encore. The Misses Sully gave delightful song turns; and Mr. Carter, the author of many popular songs, rendered some topical verse with reference to the Ball's burnt-out show, that created quite a furore of applause. Harry Banford, the Tilbury people's own comedian, could very well have monopolised the whole evening; the same, too, may be said of that miniature pocket edition of Little Tich in petticoats, Petite Princess Pauline; the Brothers Ralston, and several members of Mr. Lill's variety company from Grays gave delightful turns; in fact, a galaxy of star talent. It must be a great consolation to Mr. and Mrs. Ball and family to witness the unanimous cordiality and genuine sympathy that meets them on every hand.

Revival of Village Plays and Morris Dances.

To showmen of the older generation the revival of the picturesque morris dancing will come as a pleasant return to the delightful experiences of fifty years ago, when almost all the Lancashire, Cheshire, North Yorkshire, Westmorland, and Cumberland village feasts and wakes were ushered in with dancing and singing by the lads and lasses in their bright-coloured costumes. The folk lore and dialect play is also a welcome revival. The Yorkshire Post of July 23 has the following interesting account of a dialect play and morris dancing at Hyning, Westmorland:—

"There, in a picturesque garden, cloistered east and west by trees, with fair full view to the south of the estuary of the Kent and the grey waters of Morecambe Bay, it was my privilege to see to-day enacted a dialect play, entitled Welcome Home, which had been written for outdoor performance by Miss Margaret Cropper. Nothing could have been more natural than the opening scene. The hay was on the ground, the haymaking girls came in with their rakes, working in line as they do in our meadows, and, though the wind whistled a little shrilly in the trees above our heads, one was able to enjoy the racy dialect in which they 'cracked on' as they worked, about George Birkett, just returned from Canada with his two thousand pounds in the bank, and the lass he had left behind, fretting for him. Under the haycock, hid from the girls, lay, listening to their talk, a scamp of a tramp, Jimmy Bush by name, who determined before the arrival on the scene of the real 'catch' from Canada, to personate George Birkett and to become the hero of the village.

"The men came very naturally over the wall from the neighbouring hayfield to their mid-day meal and rest, and one watched with great interest the coming of the tramp, who had 'donned' some 'bettermen' clothes, which he had found under a tree, and personated the real traveller from a distance with such success as to be made welcome to the village heart. He drew a long bow at a venture, and told several travellers' tales about a land he had never seen, and the dénouement of the play, when the real Birkett appears upon the scene, was excellent. Lovers of the dialect must congratulate Miss Cropper on the accuracy of the writing, and those who heard it spoken, while delighting in the acting, noticed with interest that there was great difference between the speech of the Northern Dales and the speech of the Southern littoral.

"The play ended, the lawn was cleared of its seats, and the morris dances began. The performance of these morris dances, with the old songs accompanying them, was divided between a band of younger children and the elder girls and men. We have to thank Mrs. Lund for her assiduous teaching and care of the elder group, and Mrs. Argles and Miss Walker for their training of the children, who were very fortunate, too, in having the help of local musicians, who were experts in the matter of accompanying; and the picturesqueness of the red bandana handkerchief of the violinist, with its gypsy look, and the smock and shepherd's hat of the piper, made a fitting addition, giving a finishing touch to the pastorality of the performance.

"A feature of the dress of the men was the old top hat with its gay ribbons, for which, we were told, Eton College had been put under contribution. The sun-bonnet of Westmorland was a fitting headgear for the girls. Among the dances that were given were 'Bean-setting,' 'Country gardens,' 'Riggs of Marlow,' 'Princes Royal,' and 'Trunkles,' and amongst the songs were the well-known ones of 'Mowing the barley,' 'Hares on the mountains,' and 'Blow away the morning dew.'

"In a pause, a man and two maidens showed us how Westmorland clog-dancing should be done. From first to last, the delight of the performers themselves added to the pleasure of the onlookers, and the refinement and simplicity of songs and dance made one feel glad to think England could be well mannered and merry at the same time. The Hyning Fête had a secret for us all, a secret of class mixing with class with a determination to share a common pleasure."

Fossett's Circus on Tour.

Sir Robert Fossett and Sons' circus paid their first visit to Salisbury on Monday last, and were located on the very central site, the Gaol Ground. The weather was very stormy, but did not interfere with the attendance, the tent being packed to its utmost limits in the evening performance. The programme of twenty-three items was one of the best ever seen in the district, and reflects the greatest credit to the management. Mr. Robert Fossett, jun., and Mr. Thomas Fossett gave some marvellous exhibitions of riding, and received a tremendous ovation. Miss Emmie Fossett, who is a very smart horsewoman, introduced two highly trained horses. An excellent wire-walking turn was given by the Two Rennies; the Four Zolas gave a marvellous display of acrobatic feats. Amongst the other artists were the Two Valtrines, trapeze act; Brothers Alpine, high perch act; Les Eschilles, ladder performers; Mons. Otto, hand-balancing and staircase runner; Miss Hilda and her performing pony; the Three Graces, novel hurdle riding. The troupe of clowns were highly amusing, including Comic Otto, Funny Jacko, and Clown Winkle. Mr. Roberts introduced a highly-trained elephant, which delighted the audience. Another smart turn was that provided by Cezar, the fire horse. The performances were brought to a close with a series of living pictures, showing the Funeral of King Edward VII.

White City, Old Trafford, Manchester.

The return engagement of the famous band and pipers of H.M. 1st Black Watch (Royal Highlanders) appears very popular from the large number of visitors who applaud their efforts. Lovely weather still prevails, and the whole of the amusements are in full swing.

Chittock's Empire Cinematograph Show.

Mr. Tom Norman, the well-known show auctioneer, has sent us the following letter for publication:—"Dear Sir,—Owing to certain reasons, Mr. James Chittock's well-known travelling show, the Empire Cinematograph, was withdrawn from the sale by auction at Searle's Fairground, East Croydon, on Tuesday last. The concern is now for sale by private treaty.

"I beg to take this opportunity on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Chittock to sincerely thank those present who so kindly acted on their own generosity and contributed towards a subscription on that occasion, especially Messrs. C. Hyatt, W. and G. Biddall, F. Macklin, W. Slatter, J. Searle, Mrs. John Stroud, and others. It is a great kindness, which goes further to show the sympathetic feeling of one showman towards another, and one that was very much appreciated on the occasion. The concern can now be purchased privately. It can be seen open, and price and all particulars obtained from, yours faithfully, Tom Norman, Auctioneer, The Era Office, London, July 26, 1910."

Attercliffe Feast, Sheffield.

This excellent suburban fair was maintained with great success by Mr. G. T. Tuby, of Doncaster, who exhibited his colossal picture palace, motor-car set, and four-abreast galloping horses. The other entertainers were I. Amos, with steam swings and games, Hague's school of boxers, Percival's overboats, Lieske's big wheel, park swings, throwing games, houp-las, and shooters by Messrs. Fisher, Pullen, Calver, Campfield, Walker, Illingworth, Doubtfire, Haye, G. T. Tuby, jun., Middlebrook, and others.

NEW ELECTRIC THEATRE, HALIFAX.

The conversion of the old Riding School situate in Commercial-street into an up-to-date electric theatre or cinematograph hall is now completed. The National Electric Theatres, Ltd., of 20, Bedford-street, Strand, London, purchased the Riding School from Major A. H. Edwards, J.P., through his agents, Messrs. Richard Horsfall and Son, architects, Halifax. A new floor has been provided and raked, in order to ensure comfort to the patrons.

The main entrance is at the north end of the building, where a handsome marmo loggia has been erected. Passing through either pair of folding doors, one enters a commodious entrance or crush room, 21ft. by 20ft., in which is situate the pay-box. The crush-room is 14ft. high, the floor is of marble mosaic, ceiling of anaglypta, and walls covered with gold and white Japanese paper, relieved with Tyncastle frieze, the general decoration being white relieved with gold.

The manager's office is entered out of the crush-room, whilst the public go forward through a vestibule, 17ft. by 10ft. 6in., into the large hall, 93ft. by 57ft., and 26ft. high. The walls are panelled in fibrous plaster, with usual dado frieze, pilasters, and cornices, and picked out in cream, green, and pink. The ceiling is stencilled out into large panels. There are three electroliers hung from ceiling, and numerous brackets on walls. During progress of pictures the interior will be lighted by numerous red lights.

Ventilation has not been forgotten, and three large electric fans have been fixed in the ceiling, each having separate tubes and roof ventilators, which enables the whole of the air to be renewed in three minutes. The picture panel is on the wall at the south end, and is 21ft. by 16ft. It is, of course, perfectly rigid, and in order to give a perfectly clear picture, and to carry away the smoke, two special inlet ventilators are fixed in the floor just in front of the panel, air being drawn up by a fan overhead. The hall is heated with hot-water pipes running down both sides, in addition to numerous radiators. Apart from the entrance, there are six special exit doors, fitted with panic bolts. The hall will be fitted with 850 tip-up seats, upholstered in red plush. There will be carpet runners between the blocks of seats, and the remainder of the floor will be stained and varnished. There are the usual ladies' and gentlemen's lavatories near the entrance to hall.

The operators and staff have a separate entrance on ground floor, where the motor generator is fixed. The heating and coke cellars, and meter-room are under the lavatories. On the first floor there is a spacious operating room, 22ft. by 16ft., over manager's office and vestibule, with solid 9in. brick walls and concrete floor and ceiling, fireproof door, and automatic iron shutters for the two machines, in case of fire. The store-rooms and winding-rooms are adjoining. The electric lighting of the entrance will be a feature, having forty lights in loggia panels, and fifty lights round arch of same.

The entrance will have electrolier, wall-brackets, and numerous lights over pay-box. There will be several special electric letter signs on the outside, two arc lamps, and gable lights at the south end. The contracts, as let by the architects, Messrs. Richard Horsfall and Son, amount to £2,500. The opening of the theatre to the public took place yesterday.

ALF. BALL SUBSCRIPTION FUND.

We are confident that Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Ball's many friends in Showland will sympathise with them in this hour of calamitous loss. The destruction of the costly and beautiful Electric Lyceum by fire at Tilbury Docks last week will be a shock to many people, and its consequences terrible to Mr. and Mrs. Ball and family. It is no exaggeration to say that the hard work and well-won savings of a lifetime were spent upon the show, and now comes calamity and loss, not by any neglect on their part, but in the mysterious providence of events, struck by lightning and fired. On the Metropolitan circuit of fairs, where Ball's show is a household word, and where Alf. Ball ranks as a leader and champion of Showland, the consternation and grief will be widespread, and the sympathy most personal and real. We trust that response for contributions to the Ball Show Fire Fund will be both immediate and adequate. We strongly commend this matter to the ever generous heart of Showland.

"To the Editor, The Era, Tavistock-street, Strand,

"Dear Sir,

"I shall feel obliged by you inserting the enclosed appeal and opening up a subscription list in The Era for the Alf. Ball Fund.

"On Monday, July 4, Mr. Alf. Ball's cinematograph show, whilst located at Tilbury Dock, was struck by lightning, and was completely burnt to the ground. Not being covered by insurance, it has resulted in a most deplorable loss—the life's work of Alf. Ball.

"I have known Alf. Ball for many years—indeed, he is well known to the travellers of the United Kingdom—and have always found him a very hard-working and industrious person, ever ready to lend a helping hand to those in need; and now to lose in a few hours what has taken his lifetime to get together is exceedingly sad.

"As president of the Showmen's Guild, I am opening up a subscription list in The Era, and feel sure that my fellow travellers will readily respond by contributing what they can so as to make this subscription list a very substantial one, worthy of the fraternity, and one that will show our practical sympathy in our friend Ball's great and heavy loss.

"I am yours as ever,
"Patrick Collins,
"President of the Showmen's Guild."

Mr. Frank Bostock writes:—

"Enclosed please find cheque value £5 5s. for the Alf. Ball Subscription Fund. I am indeed sorry to hear of his misfortune."

In a letter, under date July 9, enclosing a cheque for £5, Mr. Frank Turner, of the Agricultural Hall and Liverpool-road, Islington, writes:—

"Herewith my small contribution to list for Alf. Ball. I am sure every showman will sympathise with a man who was always ready to help others, and I trust you will get a good list.—Yours faithfully, Frank Turner."

Writing to Mr. Ball, Messrs. Chiappa and Sons, the show organ builders, of London, say:—

"Dear Sir,—We regret very much to hear of your sad loss, and beg your acceptance of the enclosed cheque for £10, being our small subscription to the fund now being raised, and sincerely trust that the other travellers will all do their best to assist you, and that the fund will raise a good substantial amount. Assuring you of our sympathy and desire to assist you at all times.—Yours faithfully,
"Chiappa and Sons.

Patent Fire-proof Spool Box.

THE New Bioscope Trading Co., Ltd., have recently put on the market a patent fire-proof spool box (patent No. 1,876) with adjustable rollers and universal fittings to suit the arms of various makes of machines. The object of the patent spool box is to facilitate the operator's task of re-threading the film on the spools in case a break in the film occurs. In the ordinary type of spool box the body of the box is fitted to the machine arms, but in the above the lid of the box is fitted to the arms, and the body of the box is detachable, leaving the spool absolutely free and so overcoming the difficulty of re-threading the film. The New Bioscope Trading Company have received congratulatory letters from many who have had the boxes fitted to their machines, expressing their complete satisfaction with same.

New Fire-proof Spool.

THE same company have also lately put a fire-proof spool on the market. In this spool the cheeks are separated by four stout brass pillars in place of the wooden core, and to these pillars a brass spring is fitted, but so arranged that to thread the film one has simply to press the spring down and slip the film through—a much easier method than having to thread the film under the spring. Full particulars and prices of these patented articles may be had on application to the New Bioscope Trading Co., Ltd., 1 to 5, Cecil-court, W.C.

The Last Muster.

THE latest amount received by the Gaumont Co. on behalf of the Balaclava Survivors' Fund is £1 10s. 1d., which comes from Mr. Bert Bailey, of the Victoria Theatre, Kettering, and is the result of a collection taken up at the exhibition of the above film.

Goodwood on the Bioscope.

FOR the third year in succession, the Duke of Richmond and Gordon has afforded facilities to Mr. Alfred Butt, the managing director of the Palace Theatre, to present on the Urbanora Bioscope special pictures depicting the racing at Goodwood.

New Kinemacolor Picture.

AT the Palace Theatre, where "Kinemacolor" holds firmly the favour of the appreciative, a new subject which makes no pretence to represent an event of importance, but is unusually rich and abundant in the technicalities of natural-colour cinematography, has just been added. Horses fording the river Adur (the stream at Shoreham which visitors to Brighton pass on a trip towards Worthing) are pictured with such real sincerity of tone and colour that the film makes an instant appeal to the spectator. Of course, the splendid scenes of the Cedric at sea remain in the programme.

IN this week's programme at the above theatre the following attractive films have been included:—Salt Fish (Gaumont), Trip on Historical River Midway (Walturdaw), Foolshead on Temperance (Itala), The Awakening of Bess (Brockless), A Quiet Pipe (Lux), College Boys in Camp, Lake Temagami, Northern Ontario, Canada (Butchers), The Poorlucks take part in a Pageant (Hepworth), The Little Doctor of the Foothills (Essanay), and Pathé's Animated Gazette, including all the latest topicals.

Child of the Ghetto.

Bradford and the Johnson-Jeffries Fight.

BRADFORD is to have no cinematograph pictures of the great prize-fight in America. When resolutions were being sent to the Bradford City Council from various bodies protesting against the nightly enactment of such a spectacle there was a feeling that these would prove unavailing, the authorities, it was urged, being powerless to interfere in what was a matter of good taste rather than of public order. However, the question was referred to the Fire Brigade and Licensing Committee, and the outcome of this was an interview between the Chief Constable and the managers of the various places of amusement. Mr. Farndale's tactful suggestions found a ready response from Mr. Sidney Carter, on behalf of St. George's Hall, and after so excellent a lead the other representatives had no difficulty in falling into line.

"Midsummer Night's Dream."

AUDIENCES at the Clacton-on-Sea Operetta House this week are delighted with a programme of very fine films, that of greatest interest being a magnificent production of Midsummer Night's Dream. Michael Strogoff, First Love is Best, and A Child's Forgiveness, are also subjects of great excellence.

Croydon Electric Theatre.

New Electric Theatre at Derby.

THE directors of the Midland Electric Theatres, Ltd., opened their new Electric Theatre, Babington-lane, on Wednesday afternoon, when the principal citizens of the borough were their guests. A special programme of the wonderful Kinemacolor pictures was presented, and the novel entertainment was greatly enjoyed.

Dundee Picture Palaces.

CAPITAL picture programmes are submitted at the Palace and Empire Theatres, Dundee, an exciting film being A Daring Performance, in which a famous lion-tamer is seen putting his troupe of twenty-two lions through their paces. A very interesting picture is A Military Tournament by the 7th (Queen's Own) Hussars, the various exercises of the soldiers being very clearly depicted. The programme also includes Percy the Cowboy, The Cowpuncher's Ward, The Tongue of Scandal, The Stolen Heir, &c.

Edinburgh Picture House.

A NEW cinematograph theatre, situated at 111, Princes-street, Edinburgh, which has been in course of construction during the past few months, was opened on the 20th inst. by Sir Robert Cranston, K.C.V.O. The place will be known as the Edinburgh Picture House. It is one of a numerous group being started all over the kingdom by the Provincial Cinematograph Theatres (Limited), of which Sir William Bass is the chairman. It is constructed in the building lying immediately between the Conservative and Liberal clubs. It is seated for 330 people, is handsomely furnished and decorated, and is ventilated on the most modern principles, the air in hot weather being introduced over ice chambers and pumped into the building by electric fans, while provision has been made for heating the air before entering in winter.

Hastings Picture Palaces.

King's, Kirkcaldy.

A GOOD display of pictures is being exhibited at the New King's Theatre, Kirkcaldy, this week. The spools containing Indian Tribes, Flossie's Theft, The Guerilla, and The Winning of Father, are highly appreciated. Other pictures are Treachery, Five Minutes to Twelve, Father Busy Papering, Mary was a Housemaid, The Old Maid and Burglar. Crowded houses are the rule.

Liverpool Justices and the Reno Fight.

THE Liverpool city justices at their meeting on Tuesday had under consideration the question of exhibiting in the city moving pictures of the Reno prize fight. It was reported that, pending the decision of the bench on the matter, the clerk to the magistrates had communicated with the licensees of halls in the city asking them for the time being not to exhibit pictures, and all of them had complied with the request. At Tuesday's meeting of the magistrates the following resolution was passed:—"That in the opinion of the justices of the peace of this city the public exhibitions at places of entertainment in Liverpool of pictures representing the recent prize fight at Reno is undesirable, and that the proprietors of halls in this city holding the justices' cinematograph licence be so informed."

Penzance Picture Palace.

WITH a capital all-round show of pictures and a change of programme twice weekly business at the Picture Palace, Penzance, should continue brisk. Excellent films during the past week include: A Story of Military Life, In Birdland, French Airship, The Republic, and Foolshead.

Bramley Feast, Leeds.

THIS famous feast was held last week-end under good conditions as to weather and business. The shows at the feast were Marshall and Son's picture palace, Farrar's mirth city, Bailey's circus, and Sid Ali, the Eastern mystic with Esoteric magic. The machine list included Waddington and Son's motor cars, steam yachts, and helter-skelter tower, Marshall and Son's roundabout, Morley and Son's flying gondolas, and Seed's juvenile motor cars. Houp-la circles, throwing games, stalls, coker sheets, dart boards, and shooting ranges by Messrs. Jameson, Cooper, Towers, Redfearn, Daly, Vanner, Brooks, Thompson, and Seed. There were numerous toy and pannum stalls by local and other stallholders.

THE Roundabouts, Shows, &c., appearing on the Sutton-in-Ashfield Market Fair Ground have been Hall and Procter's steam motors, A. Proctor's razzle-dazzle, Hy. Hall's steam horses, a few juvenile motors, Jno. Proctor's Cinematograph, Makin's athletic booth, several small shows, helter-skelter, a few houp-las, Hall's shooters, Bell's and others Emmas, skittles; cokernut shies by J. Whiting, A. Hall, and others; ginger-bread stalls by F. Westrop, H. Hall, A. Proctor, and Mrs. Chapman; Bazaars, stalls, joints, strikers, &c. For the first time during a great number of years Twigdon's were absent. During the first two or three days the weather was bad. There has been a large number of people about in the evenings, when a large amount of business was done; but daytime has been exceptionally slack.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

SYDNEY, JUNE 21.—Messrs. Clarke and Meynell presented at the Criterion on the 18th The Passing of the Third Floor Back to an immense audience, many being turned away. The prospect of seeing Miss Hutin Britton and Mr. Matheson Lang free from the gloom and immodesty of Pete was the attraction. Every tilt at the petty meannesses of the landlady of the boarding house, and the generally tainted life of all concerned, was eagerly welcomed, and when the curtain fell upon a scene of moral regeneration, the audience enthused, and called again and again for the artists who had so well interpreted Jerome K. Jerome's comedy, and Mr. Matheson Lang made a speech, a wearisome custom of recent birth here, and congratulated the audience on its appreciation of the objective of the author.

Mr. Lang was the Reformer, Miss Britton the slavey 'Stasia, each being exactly the character. Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw made Major Tompkins the rampant bully and repentant husband, a most enjoyable portrait. Miss Nellie Mirtyné brought vividly to our memories samples of the boarding-house-keeper of our experience. Miss Maggie Knight was "the shrew, the shrew, and nothing but the shrew," and a deliciously natural and unconventional Jew was Mr. Arthur Styan's Samuels. The raucous-voiced bookmaker was turned over to Mr. Tom Cannam, who did him justice. Miss Edith Deverell jilted her lover as Jerome intended her to do, and Mr. John W. Deverell (also stage-manager) was a despicable cad as Larckom, and all the smaller parts were conscientiously acted. Sir Rupert Clarke and Mr. Clyde Meynell have put on this new bill with exhaustive completeness.

"A DOLLAR PRINCESS," in its high summer at Her Majesty's, keeps Poling's box-office hard at work. The J. C. Williamson firm has so well cast this clever musical trifle that the most critical are disarmed. Bert Gilbert, W. S. Percy, Olive Goodwin, Roland Hogue, and all the rest of the crowd of clever folks keep the harmony and fun going at a fast rate all the time.

"HENRY OF NAVARRE," the melodramatic distortion of French history, with its wild romance and exciting events, holds the Theatre Royal with a firm grip. Mr. Julius Knight is at home as the blustering Henry, safe when so many better men were being slaughtered, and Miss Susie Vaughan makes Catharine de Medici live again for our ardent execration. Miss Katharine Grey is still Marguerite de Valois by virtue of her persistent art, and all else, loyal and hard-working, help to tell the story, quantum valeat, of the St. Bartholomew slaughter.

THE TIVOLI has Charlene and Charlene back again, received with a hearty welcome. They are prodigious favourites. Miss Lillie Langtry has also returned for a short farewell season. Mendel, the blind pianist, has roused music-lovers to a pitch of delighted excitement. Mr. Harry Rickards has given his patrons no more genuine treat in all his catering career. Billy Williams and all the rest compete for public favour.

WEST'S PICTURES, Spencer's Theatrescope, the Bijou, and the scores of suburban picture places are all showing Royal Funeral films to very large audiences. Mr. Laurence Campbell, the elocutionist, has completed a series of six weekly recitals at the Y.M.C.A. Hall to large audiences. Mlle. Dolores will be publicly welcomed at the Town Hall on the 30th, and begins her concerts on July 2.

INDISPENSABLE! Rayne's "Pocket Date Book." Contents: Map (19in. by 10in.), showing the distance betwixt the various music halls at a glance. Will tell if one hall is within the barring radius of the other, thus saving fears, worry, and anxiety. All about artists' luggage, list of clubs, information about stamping contracts, foreign money table, London music halls and theatres, their telephone numbers, list of brougham proprietors, list and address of photographers, size of theatrical printing paper, names and addresses of theatrical railway managers, &c. Price 1s., post free. The proceeds from the sale will be divided equally amongst the two great charities of the dramatic and musical professions, the Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Music Hall Home Fund. The Era Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

SPECIAL NOTE.—NO DEPUTIES WILL BE ACCEPTED AT REHEARSALS.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.
LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. PERCIVAL CRAIG, Empire Theatre, Bradford.
BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.
LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.
SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.
TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

Being a digest of the Law relating to Theatres and Music Halls, and containing chapters on Theatrical Contracts, Theatrical, Music and Dancing, and Excise Licences, Dramatic and Musical Copyright, &c., with an Appendix containing the Acts of Parliament relating thereto, and the regulations of the London County Council and the Lord Chamberlain, by

ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (London), Solicitor.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS—

THE ENCORE, May 26, 1910.
We have just received the third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's book on Theatrical and Musical Law, which is published at "The Era" Office, 5, Tavistock Street, Strand. Since the second edition of this work was published—nine years—many changes have taken place in the laws relating to entertainments, and these have necessitated a considerable enlargement of the volume. Full texts of the recent Berlin Convention and the United States Copyright Law are included in this edition, in which is also published the awards governing the relations between artists, agents, and managers. A number of new cases are also cited illustrating the effects of the barring clause. The Musical Copyright Act, children on the stage, the sketch question, and the Workmen's Compensation Act are all fully dealt with and in a readable and easy style, as free as possible from legal phraseology and echnicalities. It is a legal axiom that ignorance of the law is no excuse for breaking it, and, therefore, it behoves everyone connected with the entertainment world to make himself acquainted with the law as it stands in relation to the profession or business in which he may be engaged. To everyone connected with the Drama or Variety Mr. Strong's book is a necessity, and this last edition is so comprehensive that anyone who consults it can have no possible excuse for infringing the law on the ground of ignorance. The work will, no doubt, have a ready and rapid sale, for all artists, managers, and agents should have it at hand.

THE FINANCIER, June 8, 1910.
"Dramatic and Musical Law," by Mr. A. A. Strong, LL.B., has reached a third edition, and gives in simple language such parts of the law as relate to subjects with which the profession is concerned.

SPORTING LIFE, May 16, 1910.
Dramatic authors, composers, and all of those interested in dramatic enterprise will find much that is useful and instructive in "Dramatic and Musical Law," by Albert Strong.

REFEREE, May 15, 1910.
Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable work "Dramatic and Musical Law," published at "The Era" Office, Tavistock-street, has reached its third edition. The author has made every effort to bring the book right up to date.

SUNDAY TIMES, May 29, 1910.
A third edition of Mr. Albert Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law" is just published. The work has already established its value, as a comprehensive and accurate book of reference, and the new edition has been brought up to date by the inclusion of all recent decisions of the courts, and the texts of the Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Law of the United States.

THE FINANCIAL NEWS, June 13, 1910.
In view of the frequent litigation concerning theatrical matters there can be no doubt as to the usefulness of this little book to those whom it concerns, and, apart from its usefulness, it is really quite an interesting little volume, in saying which we are paying tribute to Mr. Strong's lucid methods of explaining the intricacies of the law. He has avoided legal terms as far as possible, and theatrical cases exemplifying legal principles he has given in full. To make this, the third, edition as complete and useful as possible, Acts of Parliament relating to theatrical matters and the regulations of the Lord Chamberlain and London County Council are set out in full in the appendix, with the text of the recent Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Act of the United States.

THE PERFORMER, May 12, 1910.
THE ARTIST'S LEGAL HANDBOOK.
We welcome a third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" Offices), as it is nine years since the second appeared, and much has happened since then, not least the foundation of the V.A.F. and the resultant Award of 1907. This will be found incorporated in the now greatly-improved and extended Appendix of Statutes, ranging from the Disorderly Houses Act of 1751, to last year's L.C.C. Cinematograph regulations. As far as is possible with further developments in daily progress, this invaluable work of legal reference for all interested in the entertainment profession has been brought up-to-date. Sixty pages have been added, and the whole revised and rendered easier of reference by the re-arrangements that have been made, and the numerous marginal headings that have been introduced. Strong, on "Dramatic and Musical Law," may be regarded as the layman's complete authority on the subject, whether he be PROPRIETOR, MANAGER, or ARTIST, and with a lucid explanation of the law so readily available, the artist will be wise to consult its pages before venturing on new contracts and agreements, whether as employed or—in these days of "combinations," sketches, troupes, and what not—as employer.

THE MUSIC HALL, May 12, 1910.
Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable treatise on "Dramatic and Musical Law," published at the offices of "The Era," has reached a third edition. This includes the text of the recent Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Act of the United States, also all the important decisions of the Courts, since the last edition, on which the compiler has been able to lay hands. As Mr. Strong remarks, "There is probably no more fruitful source of litigation than the ordinary theatrical contract." If the work under notice achieved no other object than to impress this fact on the parties concerned, it would still be worth its weight in gold.

SPORTSMAN, May 14, 1910.
"Dramatic and Musical Law," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B. ("Era" Office, W.C.), has gone into a third edition, which would seem to prove its usefulness.

To the Publisher.
1, Renfrew-road, Lambeth, S.E.
15th June, 1910.

My Dear Sir,—
I have had an opportunity of looking into the third edition of Mr. Albert Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law," published from your office recently, and I have pleasure in testifying to the great value I have found the previous editions in my practice among ladies and gentlemen connected with the profession for which your valuable paper caters so admirably.
That Mr. Strong has had a wide experience in the matters with which he deals so ably in his book is evidenced by the lucid yet exhaustive manner in which he has treated the various subjects therein, and this last edition is eloquent testimony of the care and ability which he bestows upon his work.
Brought thoroughly up to date it will without doubt find a wide circle of usefulness among the profession whose contracts, Mr. Strong aptly remarks, are so fruitful a source of litigation.
Believe me,
Yours very faithfully,
W. H. ARMSTRONG.

Third Edition. Price 5/- Post free 5/4.

ABERDARE. — EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Victor W. Rowe; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Norton.—The above place of amusement opened on Monday with a very fine bill to crowded houses. Kenneth and Kane are the chief attraction in their comedy duo, "Oh, Oh, Oh!" which is exceedingly funny; Wyotti is a clever and witty juggler; Lillie Palmer dances well, and is a good comedienne; Jennie Moore scores in her low-comedy turn; and the pictures are good.

Adair Nelson.—Mr. Junius Booth and his company are this week presenting Monte Cristo and Way Out West. Mr. Miller Anderson, Mr. J. Sanger, Mr. Harry Bannister, Mr. J. Hawden, Mr. Charles Turner, Mr. Charles B. Baker, Mr. C. W. Smith, Mr. Sidney White, and Mr. W. Huron effectively undertake the male rôles, whilst Miss Nancy Braker, Miss Lillian Deane, Miss Alice West, and Miss Jessie Blake give praiseworthy renderings of the female parts.

ACCRINGTON. — NEW HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Mlle. Suzanne de Verneuil and company are affording great satisfaction here in their classical poses; the Videos, in a mirth-provoking skating act, are clever; Robb Wilton, comedian, comes in for a hearty reception; Della and Pley, in a laughable skit, prove entertaining; Elisa Yorke is a charming comedienne; and Cagliostro and The Adversary's Card, depicted on the Bioscope, prove interesting.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—For the holiday week variety has been the order. The Sarnthaler troupe of Tyrolean singers and dancers give several melodious vocal contributions and novel dances; the Stavordale Quintette are on a return visit with their banjo and harp speciality, the human voice imitations being especially good; Rappo and Ella go through a clever gymnastic act; the Harrison Brothers, in patter and songs, are amusing; as also is Bert Danson, comedian. Others who do well are the Sages, the Sisters Slater, and Alice Mahnur.

ALFRESCO CONCERTS.—The Merry Magnets are again claiming a fair share of patronage at their pitch on the Skating Rink lawn.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Miss Nora Carton is presenting here this week Temptation. Mr. Chas. H. Mortimer as the Squire of Tremaine-court skilfully delineates the character; as the crafty Blight, Mr. Clifton Roystell scores; a strong personality is made of Thorne, a gamekeeper's son, by Mr. Norman A. Overton; an impressive characterisation is also given of an old blind fiddler by Mr. George Wallace; and Miss Nora Carton is engaging and wins sympathy as Hilda Dundonald; Miss Madge Seymour sustains admirably the twin sisters Araminta and Emily; as the adventuress, Ivra Blight, Miss Lilla Wilde plays cleverly. Other parts are well characterised by Misses Anna Beaumont, Kathleen Cranston, and Messrs. Frank Ayrton, C. Gaskell, H. O. White, Benson, and Melville.

Robinson does justice to the part of Lord Penarth; the Guzman di Mendoza of Mr. Henry C. Cooper is an excellent interpretation of a passionate Spanish Creole; the Hon. Algy, as played by Jack Denton, was provocative of much hilarity; Miss Cruikshank's Lady Hilda is consistently good; and little Constance Dagmar makes an admirable Sybil; Mr. Campling making the most of the part of Leon di Valdix; the Patsy Rafferty of Mr. Harry Colbeck is an excellent study; Messrs. The excellent programme provided here drew packed houses on Bank Holiday night, and also during the week. The principal pictures were The Conqueror, Carlo's Devotion, Butler's Revenge, Animated Gazette, and Betty and Ball of String. For Bank Holiday Jane Shore was staged, with Mr. Marsh and Miss Baillie in the rôles of Richard (Duke of Gloster) and Jane Shore. On Tuesday at the performance of The Ticket of Leave Man, the cheaper parts of the house were crowded to see and hear the trials of Bob Brierley, capitally portrayed by Mr. Alexander Marsh. Miss Baillie, of course, played May Edwards with her accustomed charm. Good support was given by Mr. Wilson Gunning as Jem Dalton; and that always reliable actor, Mr. A. E. Walker did good work as Hawkshaw; Mr. Ernest Digges enacted the kind-hearted Mr. Gibson; and Mr. Jan Flemming made an amusing Melter Moss; Mrs. Willoughby was humorously undertaken by Miss Agnes Gagan. The Lady o' Lyons and David Garrick have also been put on.

Congratulations are due to Miss O'Neill for her delightful impersonation of the title-rôle, her acting being characterised by every charm; and the enthusiastic reception accorded her was well won. Mr. Ian Maclaren, a fine actor, would indeed be difficult to equal in his interpretation of the Rev. James Mavor Morell; Miss Muriel Pratt made the most of her opportunities as Proserpine Garnett. The rôle of the Rev. Alexander Mill was done full justice to by Mr. Frank Darch; a character impersonation of exceeding merit was that of Eugene Marchbanks, furnished by a most capable actor, Mr. Leonard Mudie; and Mr. Francis Hope as Mr. Burgess completed the cast. Delicate Ground formed the curtain-raiser.

Wesley, comedian; and the Hipposcope, complete the programme.

The piece is nicely staged.

BIRKENHEAD. — NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King.—Mr. Fred Granville's company in the domestic drama Another Man's Wife is successfully playing twice nightly. Mr. Stanley Rodcliffe gives a very effective performance of Carlos de Vergas. W. Gallager, Permane Brothers, and Harry Rogerson all prove very good turns.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Business-Manager, Mr. Trueman Towers.—After being closed for the summer vacation, this theatre reopened for the season on Monday evening with Messrs. W. H. Hallett and Walter Howard's well-selected company in Her Love Against the World, in which Miss Ellen Snow as Iris and Mr. Fred Emery as Eric are conspicuous with excellent portrayals. Others who should also be singled out for performances of especial merit are Mr. W. H. Hallett as Prince Othmar, Mr. Roy Fortescue as Ulric, and Miss Rossie St. John as Lionel.

Theatre Royal.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Allerton Turner.—This drama house also reopened on Monday evening after a more than usual lengthy vacation with Mr. Harry Foxwell's company in the drama Mother. The principal parts of Duncan and Nellie are admirably played by Mr. J. O. Stewart and Miss Edna Earl, who receive adequate support from the other members of the company.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Large holiday audiences are delighted with the excellent show here, at the head of which is George Robey, who, as usual, keeps the audience in a continual roar of merriment, and receives a cordial welcome; the pre-eminent risley acrobats, the Kellinos, are scoring a success with their new act On the Road, in which they display their agility in a remarkably clever performance. Other artists who contribute turns that meet with the hearty approval of the audience are Conn and Conrad, the clever "aviating comedians"; Frank and Free, enjoyable comedy artists; Harvey's American Boys and Girls, including Daisie Dennis and Frank Victor; Walter Wade, in his new monologue "Sandy McGregor"; Katie Moss, vocalist, violinist, and entertainer; Bugler Carr, balancing twenty regulation bayonets on his chin, &c.; and Chas. J. Johnson, coloured comedian and champion cakewalker. The Bioscope is also retained with good pictures. The beauties of the redecorations of this theatre are the admiration of all.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—The leading feature in a good holiday bill here is the first appearance locally of Atlas and Vulcana, together with the Sisters Atlas and Little Gus, the society athletes, who give a remarkably clever and finished performance, which earns unstinted approbation; a very good show is also given by Eric Dalvere and Phil Wallace, the two extremes; the Hulls are popular in their entertaining comedy musical act; the Brothers Felton are smart speciality gymnasts; Pat Lynch is cordially received for his intricate and clever dancing turn; and Marion Scott, character vocalist and comedienne, and Marie Altino, vocalist, introducing picture songs, are also entertaining. The Bioscope pictures, as usual, are of the best and latest.

Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Craig.—Big houses here are unmistakable in their approval of the pictures shown. Charles Reinh, chorus vocalist, is scoring a gratifying success.

The Empress Picture Palaces, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. P. W. Willard.—These two picture houses continue to cater for their patrons in a liberal manner, and present a most diversified and well-arranged programme, which is changed twice a week. At the Mere-road hall Miss Phyllis May, a smart young vocalist and comedienne, is on a successful return engagement.

LEIGH.—Assembly Rooms and Picture Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Barclay.—An excellent programme is again put forward to crowded houses. The following are the principal dramatic and humorous subjects this week: The Twisted Trail, Little Snow-White, Married in Haste, Setting Back the Hands of Time, His Vacation, and Mr. Dan Rodney, comedian, brings down the house with his songs.

Henry and Tyler present a clever and amusing cycling turn; the Three Pirmans do some really clever feats on the horizontal bars; Kitty Kearns is a charming comedienne and dancer; Cling and Clancy are a couple of clever comedians and dancers; and the Hiposcope pictures are good.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—After being closed for three weeks, during which period the house has been entirely redecorated, the autumn season was inaugurated on Monday evening with the "musical wilful absurdity" The Love Birds, wherein Miss Loie Esmond, Mr. Edward Neville, and company appear. Miss Esmond fills in vigorous fashion the rôle of a comedy servant, Araminta 'Awkins, and Mr. Neville is well cast as the peppery Colonel Fritters; other leading parts including Miss Blanche Courtenay and Mr. J. O. Russell, who are quite successful as the lovers Agnes Fritters and Ferdinand Fluff, Mr. Fred Alberts, a sturdy and amorous policeman, and Miss Violet Lesborough, well made up as a forbidding spinster of uncertain age. These principals fairly divide among them some lively lyrics and acrobatic dances, in which a bevy of housemaids (brightly represented by Misses Polly Wignal, Ethel Robertson, Annie Ross and Etty Gage), give useful aid; and the fun is also helped along by an astronomer, a chimney-sweep, a coal porter, and a page boy, characteristically rendered by Messrs. F. McKinnon, George Prince, F. J. Medcalfe, and J. Le Fleming.

LIVERPOOL.—Shakespeare Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The Speckled Band is here for a fortnight, and there is every evidence that it will meet with success. The large audiences that attend are gripped by the thrilling narrative, the unfolding of which, right to the gruesome end, is followed with the deepest and ever-increasing interest. Then the company to whose keeping it is entrusted are individually possessed of high histrionic powers, and bring out all the strong points with telling effect. Foremost is that able actor, Mr. C. W. Somerset, who holds his audience by reason of his brilliant exposition of the half-mad, nervous Dr. Rylott. All who witness the part are ready to acknowledge its close approach to reality. Mr. Julian Royce is another member of the company whose Sherlock Holmes is characterised by much tact and point; Miss Alice Leigh proves a winning Enid Stonor possessing a sympathetic touch; Miss Adelaide Grace looks the part of the intriguing, masterful housekeeper, Mrs. Staunton, and, although the part is not a very great one, the lady handles it to perfection. It is a pity that more cannot be seen of Mr. E. H. Paterson, who, as Armitage, presents a finished picture of the interfering, ill-educated village grocer. His altercation at the inquest is a little treat in itself. Much credit is deserved by Mr. Herbert Vyvyan for his altogether fine character study of the terrified butler, Rodgers; Master James Woodings delivers his lines set down for Sherlock Holmes's assistant in amusing manner; Messrs. F. Finch Smiles, H. Ainger, Gerald Merrielees, and Miss Lucie Verrier acquit themselves as the detective's clients; and Mr. Harold B. Standing (Mr. Scott Wilson) and Mr. Bellenden Clarke (Dr. Watson) afford the utmost satisfaction. The company is under the direction of Mr. Arthur Hardy.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—During a short term of closing this popular place has been redecorated and reseated, and now looks particularly bright and cosy. An Unwedded Wife, presented by Mr. Will Casey's company, is the attraction. Miss Chrissie Dunbar appears as Marion, a rôle which she handles in capable manner, earning much applause; Mr. Arthur Cheeves plays strongly as Frank Armstrong; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes makes a capital Philip Blackstone; great laughter follows the work of Mrs. Casey (Carraway Crumpet), Mr. Casey (Napoleon B. Boomer), and Mr. Frank Masters (police constable); Miss Ethel Spense is good as Elsie Langham; and the child part of Reggie is intelligently undertaken by little Doris Sorsby.

Miss Madge Trevelyan soon gains general approval with her carefully-played rôle of the heroine, Angel Marsden; Miss Eunice Udall, as Becky Wiggins, and Mr. Coleman Davies, with his Jemmy Hopblossom, convulse the audience; Miss Kitty Clifton is seen to much advantage in the character of Pauline Petrowski; Stephen Harcourt is a capital hero in the hands of Mr. J. Nelson Turner; and Mr. Terry Davies as Major Bionson, Mr. H. Reynolds (Lord Sylvester), and Mr. Arthur Gribben (Silas Clipper) do justice to their parts.

Kelly's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—When London Sleeps is doing good business here this week, and Mr. Lester Collingwood has sent a capital all-round company. Miss Mabel Scudamore delights everybody with her excellent impersonation of the heroine, Queenie Carruthers; the heavy part of Captain Rodney Haynes finds in Mr. Kenneth Norbury a clever exponent; Miss Cissie St. Elmo plays strongly as the unprincipled Hilda Carode; and valuable work likewise comes from Messrs. George P. Dalper (David Engleheart), Willis Collins (Furnaby Fuller), Henry Cooke (Sammy Blythe), Charles Rogers (the Hon. Bertie), F. E. Thomas (Bob Jones), and Miss Lottie Lonsdale (Signorina Jonesia). The drama is staged and dressed in first-class style.

Each artist receives a very friendly greeting. Harry Roxbury and company create endless laughter with their sketch, The Prince of Monte Carlo; Griff, the jesting juggler, again delights many old admirers; Dacey and Lewis go through a smart song-and-dance turn; some remarkable feats are accomplished by the Marconis, electrical wonders, who gain rounds of applause; the Blessings are able equilibrists; Billy French brings down the house with his wooden-shoe dancing; and Amy Marsden, low-comedy girl, proves diverting.

Lyric.—Lessees, Liverpool Lyric Theatre, Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Man to Man is being played here twice nightly by Messrs. Edward Lloyd and Clifford Bown's combination. Mr. Bown is seen to advantage in his original part of Bill Burkley, which he has played 2000 times; and Mr. Edward Lloyd as the mad parson, the Rev. Philip Ormond, does well. Others in the cast are Messrs. H. Holland (Matthew Ellerton), Arthur Robinson (George Gordon), Charles Stirling (Richard Ellerton), Bruce Williams (Samuel Plumtree), Miss Beatrice Hone (an excellent Ethel Maythorne), Miss Francis May (Gipsy Madge), and Miss Eleanor Parera (Lavinia Dove).

Royal Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Frances Letty is here this week, delighting everybody with her songs and dances. She and her three assistants are nightly earning encores. Mons. Footgers, a French comedian at the piano, was in the list, but has been unable to appear owing to indisposition.

Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. Gipsy Jack is being given here by the stock company, the principal rôles being in the capable hands of Messrs. Sydney Grant (Gerald Skinner), Harry Tresham (Gipsy Jack), Tom H. Soliy (Joe Banks), Cecil Ravenswood (Mr. Skinner), Miss Lina Nazeby (May Harvey), Miss Gertrude Entwistle (Dorothy Dexter), and Miss Florence Cambron (Nan). Brown's Bioscope shows A Present for his Wife.

Slater.—Miss Ethel Arden and George Abel are pleasing very much with their new playlet, Town Hall To-night; Daisy Jerome jumps into popularity with her daintily-rendered songs; the Seven Perezoffs have a particularly funny juggling pantomime, An Evening in a Parisian Café; A. Gilfain is a typical bumptious millionaire; Miss Daisy Lake is a captivating Dolores, and sings with effect; Miss Florence Hersee as Angela Gilfain plays appealingly; and Miss Kate Leicester as Lady Holyrood is first class. "La Danse des Apaches," by Miss Florence Hersee and Mr. Johnnie Junior, is a clever performance, calling forth rapturous applause. The scenic effects are good, and the orchestra most efficient. The Mummy and the Humming Bird was announced for Thursday, Friday, and to-day.

A VIVID pen-picture of Shakespeare's acting days is drawn by Mr. Charles H. Heydemann, Ph.D., in his "Leaves From My Dreaming School," which appears in the current issue of the Weekly Dispatch. Describing the old Globe Theatre, Bankside, the writer says:—"Here, in Paris Garden, on the space now occupied by Lambeth, the most miserable and dirty quarter of London, came all the light-hearted and gay crowds of Londoners, full of the same pleasure-seeking and coarse temperamental emotions as their great Queen Elizabeth, who spat at a courtier whose coat offended her taste, boxed the ears of another, tickled the back of Leicester's neck when he knelt down to receive an earldom, rapped out tremendous oaths, and uttered every amusing sharp word that rose to her lips.

"THERE are great crowds at the entrance of the theatre. The 'groundlings' crowd round where stand the 'gatherer,' trusted man of the company, with his cash-box, collecting the sixpences, which he afterwards delivers to Burbage, the leading actor, or to Shakespeare. The extra prices for the better seats are collected inside by women. They range from a shilling to half-a-crown. Our Will goes with his friends to the back, to the 'dressing-rooms,' the tiring house, with accommodation very small and poor. Here to the tiring house come all the young fashionables. They pay an extra sixpence to sit on a three-legged stool on the stage, to see and be seen.

"THE 'bookholder' (the prompter), whose business it is to hand the actors their properties and see they do not forget their cues, is running about getting his 'props.' together. The musicians tune up their instruments. Here is a board, rudely painted 'Elsinore, a platform before the castle,' that will be hung up in sight of the audience. It is all the scenery they will get." In similar strain the writer goes on enumerating with an intresting pen the curiosities of the period.

Several new plays are in prospect. Mr. J. . Bell, whose Oh! Christina, was so conspicuously successful, has been encouraged again to enter the lists of dramatists. On this occasion he is to have the help of his old college friend Mr. G. J. Hamlen, the author of Barbara Grows Up. Dr. Neil Munro is also working on a new play, and another local playwright, Mr. Anthony Rowley, has written The Weaver's Shuttle, which will be produced in the early autumn.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. RANDOLFE READE.

Educated for the Army, but compelled through family reverses to abandon a military career, Mr. Randolfe Reade, after some preliminary stage experience, joined the Compton Comedy Company in 1895, and in the course of two tours played an endless variety of small parts in a répertoire comprising The Rivals, School for Scandal, She Stoops to Conquer, Davy Garrick, Road to Ruin, Money, Home, and The Comedy of Errors, also assisting Mr. Lewis Ball in the stage-management. He was then engaged by Miss Mary Austin to play the light comedy part, Patrice, in Passion's Power, being re-engaged for a couple of parts in The Golden Ladder, and for acting-management. Mr. Reade next joined the late Frank Bateman to play the juvenile part in From Scotland Yard, and was subsequently engaged by Miss Florence Marryat for juvenile lead in The Gamekeeper, an adaptation of her novel "Love's Sacrifice." An engagement as General Augereau in A Royal Divorce was followed by one with the late Charles Warner to play Captain Holcroft with him in the revival of In the Ranks at the Princess's Theatre. He was next secured by Mr. William Bourne to play the evangelist minister in Voices of London, and then by Mr. T. B. Thalberg to support Miss Marion Terry as Cecil Graham in Lady Windermere's Fan and Careless in The School for Scandal, being re-engaged for Charles the Wrestler and Corin in As You Like It. Mr. Reade next joined Mrs. Langtry's company to play Dr. Marat and the Marquis de Coigny in A Royal Necklace, being also cast for Lord Stornoway in The Degenerates. A long and highly successful tour with Mr. Bert Coote for the leading part of Howard Wilson in The Fatal Wedding was followed by an engagement with Miss Fortescue as Lord Jura in Moths, and by various short tours with Messrs. Thomas Thorne and the late Russell Rosso, with whom he played Charley Middlewick in Our Boys, Theodore in The Guv'nor, and Rupert in Confusion. Mr. Reade next went to Mr. Eugene Stafford to play Douglas Cattermole in The Private Secretary, in which he acted for two tours, being subsequently engaged by Mr. Herbert Ralland for Major Maurewarde in His House in Order, his second engagement in this part. Mr. Reade's chief hobbies are chess and the violoncello.

MR. CHARLES BROWN.

Born in Liverpool, Mr. Charles Brown early showed an aptitude for acting. He was engaged in the cotton trade during the day, but all his spare time was devoted to the art. His first effort as an amateur was the Clown in Othello, followed by Touchstone in As You Like It, Dogberry in Much Ado About Nothing, Sir Toby Belch in Twelfth Night, &c. Encouraged by his success he went to study elocution with Mrs. Foulis (Mrs. Kendal's sister), and was retained by her to help in the management of her company. For eight years he assisted this lady semi-professionally, playing for her in that period more than 60 different parts in every conceivable class of play—Shakespeare, burlesque, modern and old English comedy, drama, and farce. Amongst others he played Eccles, Chrysos, Dick Phenyl, Touchstone, Roderigo, Melter Moss, Chamboran, Gandy, Colonel Damas, Pillicoddy, Crepin, Peter White, Trotter Southdown, Simmons, &c.

Eventually, the subject of our sketch was induced to try his fortunes on the regular stage. He resigned his position in the cotton trade, and accepted an engagement with Mr. Ian Maclaren, for whom he played Sir Oliver Surface (School for Scandal), Roderigo (Othello), Peter (Romeo and Juliet), David (The Rivals), The Stutterer (David Garrick), Corin and William (As You Like It), and Launcelot Gobbo (Merchant of Venice). His next engagement was with Miss Florence Glossop-Harris for old men and character parts, such as Verges (Much Ado About Nothing), Osric (Hamlet), Old Gobbo (Merchant of Venice), and the Pedant (Taming of the Shrew). Following this Mr. Brown did a round of the halls, playing William Henry in Mary Ann's Darling. Afterwards he was engaged to create and play on tour the part of Jim in Mr. Duse Mohamed's sketch Santa Claus, Junior, and was next secured by Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan to play the comedy part of Gaston Géricault in that extraordinary play The Devil. Recently he has been playing a comedy part in Pete on tour.

Mr. Brown is a keen critic and student of the French stage, speaking the language fluently. He can also claim to be one of the few who have acted in two languages, having played Adolphe in Madame Bigarot n'y tient pas and Joseph in Le Voyage de M. Perrichon for the Société Littéraire Française, of Liverpool. Mr. Brown is very fond of athletics and all outdoor sports, and is an enthusiastic footballer, hockey player, and cricketer.

MR. TOM GREEN.

This versatile artist was almost born in the profession, and comes of a musical family. As a little boy he played in the band under his father, Mr. John Green, who was the bandmaster on the occasion of the marriage of the Prince and Princess of Wales, our late lamented King and his bereaved Queen. In 1872 the youthful artist toured with the late William Montague in the original production of the Tichborne romance. He has been principal comedian, stage-manager, and clown in quite thirty pantomimes; was principal comedian to Charles Dillon, the great Shakespearean actor, Henry Loraine, Tom Glenny, Julia Seaman, T. E. Evans, and many others. In the stock days he played drama, farce, and sang comic songs between, for a nine and ten months' season, changing the bill every night. Some of his principal parts are Conn, The Shaughraun; Miles, The Colleen Bawn; Perkyn Middlewick, Our Boys; Eccles, Caste; Hawkshaw, Ticket-o'-Leave; Tanner, Strange Adventure of Miss Brown; together with characters in the entire round of the legitimate plays.

The Christmas before last Mr. Green was engaged by Mr. Fred Little to produce the harlequinade and play clown at the Dalston, London. He has also produced many cinematograph pictures for nearly every firm of note. Added to his ability on the stage, Mr. Green is an excellent scenic artist, and holds a testimonial for ten engagements with the great cattle painter, Thos. Sidney Cooper, R.A.

Mr. Green has many humorous stories of the stage to relate. The following incident occurred during the later part of the 'seventies, in the old "stock days":—"It was new drama and farce every night, and generally three on Saturdays," says Mr. Green, "and everybody had to know their business. At the time that I had the old Theatre Royal, Gravesend, we mustered, among a company of experienced artists, one whom I will call 'Dick.' This gentleman was most obliging; he would go on at a minute's notice for anything—in fact, he has played pantaloon to my clown one night and given a very fair performance of Claud Melnotte for his benefit the next. One Saturday night the bill consisted of the great historical play Catherine Howard, concluding with the Irish drama Kathleen Mavourneen. In the first production 'Dick' had to make the following announcement:—'Atherwold, Earl of Northumberland, desires an audience with your Majesty'; in the second, as Dennis, he had to say to Kathleen:—'If you please, ma'am, the man's called for the empty beer-barrels.' Everything went on capitally, 'Dick' in a splendid suit of armour waiting to go on. The moment arrived, and, 'midst a flourish of trumpets, he did go on, and, bowing to Henry the Eighth, mixed up his cues, giving the second announcement first: 'Please, ma'am, the man's called for the empty beer-barrels.' Collapse of the Court, Catherine Howard, and King Henry."

MR. CHARLES STIRLING.

Born in London, the son of George Davies, manager for many years for Messrs. Gatti, Miss Kate Santley, &c., Mr. Charles Stirling travelled round the country with his father, playing in In the Ranks, Bells of Haslemere, Trumpet Call, &c. During an extensive career, Mr. Stirling has gone all through the business, from call boy upwards, has been agent in advance, and spent some time in the paint room. His first engagement was with Mr. Geo. Walton in a burlesque sketch of The Corsican Brothers, about the year 1894. In 1896 he was at Drury Lane in a nominal position under the late John Coleman, who had been Mr. Stirling's mother and father's manager before they were married. After that he went on a suburban tour with The Duchess of Coolgardie, then fulfilled a short engagement with Edward O'Neil in Cruel Law. He went to the Alexandra Palace, London, when it was opened by Mr. Hawkins, and for a season and a half had the theatre there in charge.

In the autumn of 1898 Mr. Stirling went out to play Inspector Sharples in The Brixton Burglary, and about Christmas he joined Messrs. Vincent and Bioletti for the light comedy part in An Evil Life. The following autumn found him playing Vyvyan in The Happy Life, and after this came an engagement as Sparta in Siberia, and Grey in Humanity. A little later he joined Mr. Frank Stone, with whom he played his first heavy part, Catesby, in Jane Shore, other rôles played while with him being Shore, Hastings, De Villefort (Monte Cristo), Old Dantes, Fernand, Laverennes in Belphegor. Then came a fit-up tour with A Royal Divorce, in which he enacted De Beaumont.

About this time Mr. Stirling had a rather rough experience with a show when the "ghost did not walk." The manager, who has since gone over to the majority, had no less than four companies out. Subsequently he joined the late Mr. Frank Cameron, Mr. Stirling fulfilling a joint engagement with his sister, Alice Defoe, the two playing brother and sister in A Beautiful Fiend. With that combination Mr. Stirling remained eighteen months. At Christmas, 1903 and 1904, he had a special seven weeks with Mr. William Gifford, playing Guise Darnley in The Red Coat. Then came a four months' engagement with Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren, with whom he appeared as Lazare in Proof, Beaumont in Lady of Lyons, and Alderman in Garrick. In the autumn of 1904 he joined Messrs. Careon and Granville for the juvenile part in A Modern Adventuress, relinquishing just before the Christmas to undertake with Mr. Frank Macnaghten the heavy rôle in The King's Pardon for a run of six months. He created the heavy part in A Gambler's Daughter, and following came engagements with Mr. P. Howard Sturgess for the character-part in Queen of Villainy. An autumn tour of Held in Bondage, with Mr. Vivian Grantham, for lead; two engagements with Messrs. Dagmar and Somerfield in the original production of Geoffrey Langdon's Wife (?), and eighteen months with Mr. Geo. Kirk and Miss Mary Neil for the heavies in Her Luck in London and From Shop Girl to Duchess. He fulfilled seven months in a similar line with Miss Van Praagh and Mr. Whitty, with An Unwedded Wife, and also played the juvenile part in The Eyes of the World. Immediately afterwards Mr. Stirling joined Mr. W. W. Kelly for Tallyrand in A Royal Divorce, and in August last again took up the character of De Beaumont. Among other parts with which Mr. Stirling is to be credited are Colonel Chateauroy in Under Two Flags, Levison in East Lynne, Geoffrey Tempest in Sorrows of Satan, Mark in Streets of London,

MR. CHARLES STIRLING.

George in The Octoroon, Jem Dalton in Ticket-of Leave, Joseph Surface in School for Scandal, Leglade in £1,000 Reward, and Dr. Zambra in The Power of Gold.

MR. STUART BLACK.

In common with many of the present-day players, Mr. Black is closely connected with the pulpit, three of his brothers holding office under the American and Scottish Churches, the eldest, the Rev. Professor Hugh Black, of New York, D.D. of Yale and Glasgow Universities, being a world-famous preacher. Mr. Stuart Black commenced his theatrical career less than four years ago with Mr. William Maclaren, playing a small part in the prologue of Claudian. His next engagement was under the management of Mr. Esmonde Bramley, with whom he played small parts, such as Lennox, Bernardo, and Nym.

Before finally settling with Mr. J. Bannister Howard to play in The Christian, Mr. Black had to undergo an examination before the late Mr. Austin Melford for Mr. Howard's Silver King company, and he will always look back with pleasure at having met Mr. Melford, who was more than kindness itself in respect of overlooking a youngster's faults. In The Christian Mr. Black played Parson Quayle, Music Hall Manager, and Father Lamplugh. After five months, he finished "way down South" at Falmouth, and had a long and dreary journey "way up North" to Dundee, to join Mr. William Mollison in his first Shakespearean Répertoire company. Mr. Black remained a year with Mr. Mollison, filling in the summer months with a sketch, and with Mr. Russell Rosse in My Soldier Boy, in which he played the young captain to Mr. Dallas Welford's mock General.

After a week's vacation on leaving Mr. Mollison, he opened with Mr. Edmund Tearle on Boxing Night, 1907. Commencing with some of the minor parts, Mr. Black afterwards played "seconds" to Mr. Tearle, including Iago, Macduff, Cassius, Appius Claudius, Archibald Carlyle, and George Fielding. Mr. Black looks upon Mr. Tearle's company as one of the few organisations wherein there is no unemployment—no looking for work. In one year Mr. Black reckons to have played close on 100 different parts, beginning with Porthos in The Three Musketeers, Page in Merry Wives, and Montano in Othello, up to his present line of parts. On reopening a new tour with Othello, Mr. Black was down to play Cassio, but at 12 o'clock rehearsal was quite casually informed he was to enact Iago at night. He got through with only one "stick," and that was covered by hustling Roderigo off the stage and the cutting of only three or four lines.

SHAKESPEARE'S FELLOW-ACTORS

Of the twenty-five actors who are enumerated in a preliminary page of the great First Folio, as filling in Shakespeare's lifetime chief rôles in his plays, few survived him long, says Mr. Sidney Lee in "Shakespeare and the Modern Stage." All of them came in personal contact with h'm; several of them constantly appeared with him on the stage from early days.

The two who were longest lived, John Lowin and Joseph Taylor, came at length to bear a great weight of years. They were both Shakespeare's juniors, Lowin by twelve years, and Taylor by twenty; but both established their reputation before middle age. Lowin at twenty-seven took part with Shakespeare in the first representation of Ben Jonson's Sejanus in 1603. He was an early, if not the first, interpreter of the character of Falstaff. Taylor as understudy to the great actor Burbage, a very close ally of Shakespeare, seems to have achieved some success in the part of Hamlet, and to have been applauded in the rôle of Iago, while the dramatist yet lived. When the dramatist died, Lowin was forty, and Taylor over thirty.

Subsequently, as their senior colleagues one by one passed from the world, these two actors assumed first rank in their company, and before the ruin in which the Civil War involved all theatrical enterprise, they were acknowledged to stand at the head of their profession. Taylor lived through the Commonwealth, and Lowin far into the reign of Charles the Second, ultimately reaching his ninety-third year. Their last days were passed in indigence, and Lowin when an octogenarian was reduced to keeping the inn of the Three Pigeons at Brentford.

Both these men kept alive from personal knowledge some oral Shakespearean tradition during the fifty years and more that followed his death. Little of their gossip is extant. But some of it was put on record, before the end of the century, by John Downes, the old prompter and librarian of a chief London theatre. According to Downes's testimony, Taylor repeated instructions which he had received from Shakespeare's own lips for the playing of the part of Hamlet, while Lowin narrated how Shakespeare taught him the theatrical interpretation of the character of Henry the Eighth, in that play of the name which came from the joint pens of Shakespeare and Fletcher.

Both Taylor's and Lowin's reminiscences were passed on to Thomas Betterton, the greatest actor of the Restoration, and the most influential figure in the theatrical life of his day. Through him they were permanently incorporated in the verbal stage-lore of the country. No doubt is possible of the validity of this piece of oral tradition, which reveals Shakespeare in the act of personally supervising the production of his own plays, and springs from the mouths of those who personally benefited by the dramatist's activity.

Taylor and Lowin were probably the last actors to speak of Shakespeare from personal knowledge. But hardly less deserving of attention are scraps of gossip about Shakespeare which survive in writing on the authority of some of Taylor's and Lowin's actor-contemporaries. These men were never themselves in personal relations with Shakespeare, but knew many formerly in direct relation with him. Probably the seventeenth-century actor with the most richly stored memory of the oral Shakespearean tradition was William Beeston, to whose house in Hog-lane, Shoreditch, the curious often resorted in Charles the Second's time to listen to his reminiscences of Shakespeare and of the poets of Shakespeare's epoch.

Beeston died after a busy theatrical life, at eighty or upwards, in 1682. He belonged to a family of distinguished actors or actor-managers. His father, brothers, and son were all, like himself, prominent in the profession, and some of them were almost as long-lived as himself. His own career combined with that of his father covered more than a century, and both sedulously and with pride cultivated intimacy with contemporary dramatic authors.

It was probably William Beeston's grandfather, also William Beeston, to whom the satirical Elizabethan, Thomas Nash, dedicated in 1593, with good-humoured irony, one of his insolent libels on Gabriel Harvey, a scholar who had defamed the memory of a dead friend. Nash laughed at his patron's struggles with syntax in his efforts to write poetry, and at his indulgence in drink, which betrayed itself in his red nose. But, in spite of Nash's characteristic frankness, he greeted the first William Beeston as a boon companion who was generous in his entertainment of threadbare scholars. Christopher Beeston, this man's son, the father of the Shakespearean gossip, had in abundance the hereditary taste for letters. He was at one time Shakespeare's associate on the stage. Both took part together in the first representation of Ben Jonson's Every Man in His Humour, in 1598. His name was again linked with Shakespeare's in the will of their fellow-actor, Augustine Phillips, who left each of them a legacy as a token of friendship at his death in 1605. Christopher Beeston left Shakespeare's company of actors for another theatre early in his career, and his closest friend among the actor-authors of his day in later life was not Shakespeare himself but Thomas Heywood, the popular dramatist and pamphleteer, who lived on to 1650. This was a friendship which kept Beeston's respect for Shakespeare at a fitting pitch. Heywood, who wrote the affectionate lines:—

"Mellifluous Shakespeare, whose inchanting Quill Commanded Mirth or Passion, was but Will," enjoys the distinction of having published in Shakespeare's lifetime the only expression of resentment that is known to have come from the dramatist's proverbially "gentle lips." Shakespeare (Heywood wrote) "was much offended" with an unprincipled publisher who "presumed to make so bold with his name" as to put it to a book of which he was not the author. And Beeston had direct concern with the volume called "An Apology for Actors," to which Heywood appended his report of these words of Shakespeare. To the book the actor, Beeston, contributed preliminary verses addressed to the author, his "good friend and fellow, Thomas Heywood." There Beeston briefly vindicated the recreation which the playhouse offered the public. Much else in Christopher Beeston's professional career is known, but it is sufficient to mention here that he died in 1637, while he was filling the post that he had long held, of manager to the King and Queen's Company of Players at the Cockpit Theatre in Drury-lane. It was the chief playhouse of the time, and his wife was lessee of it.

Christopher's son, William Beeston the second, was his father's coadjutor at Drury Lane, and succeeded him in his high managerial office there. The son encountered difficulties with the Government through an alleged insult to the King in one of the pieces that he produced, and he had to retire from the Cockpit to a smaller theatre in Salisbury Court. Until his death he retained the respect of the play-going and the literature-loving public, and his son George, whom he brought up to the stage, carried on the family repute to a later generation.

William Beeston had no liking for dissolute society, and the open vice of Charles the Second's Court pained him. He lived in old age much in seclusion, but by a congenial circle he was always warmly welcomed for the freshness and enthusiasm of his talk about the poets who flourished in his youth. "Divers times (in my hearing)," one of his auditors, Francis Kirkman, an ardent collector, reader, and publisher of old plays, wrote to him in 1652—"Divers times (in my hearing), to the admiration of the whole company you have most judiciously discoursed of Poesie."

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

ROBERTSON AT THE CORONET.

"CASTE."

This ever-fresh and charming comedy is a welcome attraction at the Coronet during this week, beginning with August Bank Holiday, and will continue till the revival of Ours, on Wednesday, Aug. 10. The only alteration in the cast since the last revival in June is that Mr. Godfrey Tearle now undertakes the part of the Hon. George D'Alroy in the place of Mr. Athol Stewart, and gives a most attractive impersonation of the gallant and quixotic soldier. His performance throughout is manly and sincere. Mr. James Carew once more enlists our sympathies as the good-hearted, if somewhat priggish, Captain Hawtrey, and Mr. O. B. Clarence repeats a performance of sterling merit as the drunken old socialist Eccles. Miss Adeline Bourne contributes a pathetic and powerful impersonation of Esther Eccles, and is well contrasted by Miss Rosie Begarnie, whose Polly Eccles is full of fun and vivacity. As the irrepressible Sam Gerridge Mr. Edgar Kent scores a big success, and Mrs. A. B. Tapping makes an impressive Marquise de St. Maur.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, August 1, the Play, by Mrs. Morton Powell, entitled

"A GIRL'S TEMPTATION."

The re-opening, for the autumn season, of the King's commenced auspiciously with the production of Mrs. Morton Powell's powerful and instructive play A Girl's Temptation, which drew a huge Bank Holiday audience, who speedily evinced their liking for the sensational incidents and the strong and thrilling situations. Incidentally, the play shows vividly the temptations which beset women in their efforts to obtain an honest livelihood. A well-balanced cast is provided by Mr. Morton Powell's chief company. Basil Warren, the wealthy millowner, is excellently portrayed by Mr. Charles Herbert; and Mr. Frank V. Fenn plays in heroic fashion the part of Guy Warren, his son. A very powerful and cynical performance of the intriguing scoundrel Mark Klaw is given by Mr. Clifton Earle, who well earns the expressed hostility of the audience; Mr. Tom Handley, as the Hon. Charles Clade, acts creditably; and Geoffrey Stirling, the old working-man, is admirably undertaken by Mr. Gerald Nolan. A good characterisation of Jim Judd, a ne'er-do-well, is that of Mr. Fred J. Mace; and P.C. Locksley is neatly represented by Mr. Andrew Clarke. Mr. Albert E. Mann makes the most of his opportunities and creates any amount of laughter as Sammy Sniggles, a limb of the law; and Moss Isaacstein, a German sweater, is capitally rendered by Mr. William H. Grande. As the Lady Constance Heathfield, Miss Winnie Donovan acts with much power and ability and looks the revengeful woman to the life; Kate Stirling, the working girl, who meets with so many temptations and tribulations in her young life, is exceedingly well acted by Miss Isla Garnet Vayne, who quickly earns the sympathy of the audience; a merry and at the same time good-hearted Jemima Jossap is Miss Amy Corallie; and a thrilling performance of Annie Brown, a victim of temptation, is deserving of the highest praise. The scenery and effects are of material assistance to the success of the drama.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

"THE SILVER KING."

The Silver King occupied the boards at Kennington Theatre this week for the second time during the present répertoire season, and the production was thoroughly successful. The staging, acting, and dressing of the piece left nothing to be desired, and on Monday night the huge holiday audience which had assembled gave repeated and enthusiastic curtain calls. Mr. Walter Gay is always seen at the very top of his form as Wilfred Denver, and this week his performance was magnificent, constituting a real triumph of dramatic acting. Miss Jessie Winter was an engaging and sympathetic figure as Nellie Denver, and Mr. George Cockburn gave a remarkably clever study of the old servant, Daniel Jaikes. Mr. Fred Terriss interpreted the rôle of Skinner the Spider with considerable power, and Mr. Herbert Lloyd's sketch of the marine store dealer, Elijah Coombe, was a vivid piece of stage portraiture. Mr. G. P. Polson was well placed as Cripps, the locksmith; and Mr. Fred Wright made a good deal of fun as Corket. The part of Geoffrey Ware was creditably sustained by Mr. W. J. Yeldham, and Mr. Frank Crimp made a big hit as Baxter, the detective, a character particularly suited to him. Miss Elsie Videau won all hearts by the extreme naturalness of her representation of the part of Cissie Denver, and Miss Maggie Hogan was decidedly good as Susie. Miss Winifred White sustained the difficult rôle of the Spider's Wife with real ability, and Miss Nellie Burdette was highly amusing as Tabitha Durden. Messrs. Sidney and George were worthy of praise as the two betting men, and Mr. Henry Wills was a fine old Parish Clerk. Others who should be mentioned are Miss Kathleen Fraser, Denver's son Ned; Messrs. Clark and Weeber, Binks and Bronson; Mr. W. Garrett, Tubbs; and Mr. W. Brook, the tipsy passenger.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Saturday, July 30, the Musical Comedy, entitled

"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

This theatre reopened after the summer vacation with J. Bannister Howard's principal company in the popular musical comedy The Earl and the Girl, which has been running for several years, and is as much appreciated as ever. Tastefully dressed and mounted, and very well acted, the piece from beginning to end kept a good house on Saturday last in continuous merriment. Most of the laughter is caused by Mr. Edward Lewis as Jim Cheese, his posturing, facial play, and general business being intensely amusing. As Dick Wargrave Mr. Herbert St. John is expressive in all he does; his voice is melodious, his numbers being very tunefully rendered. Mr. Lionel Scott secures well-merited appreciation for his portrayal of the Hon. Crewe Boodle; and Mr. D. Fisher, jun., besides being a comedian of considerable ability, is also a skilful vocalist, and wins warm approval for his characterisation of the American solicitor, Downham. Mr. Harry Courtin gains unqualified approbation for his blustering portrayal of A. Bunker Bliss, a part he must be thoroughly at home in; and Mr. Jos. R. Tate tickles the audience with his quaint delineation of the Jewish solicitor, Mr. Talk. Mr. A. Burgoyne gives a capital representation of "mine host" of the Fallowfield Arms; and Messrs. F. D. Fraser, C. Branden, and C. Hoddy render efficient aid as Dudley Cranbourne, George Belamy, and Hugh Wallander. Messrs. H. B. Talbot and Arthur Wilson create a favourable impression as the Footmen; and T. J. Chandler is good as the Ostler. Miss Lilly Tullick is a charming Elphin Haye. The possessor of a sweet voice, she renders her numbers with attractive charm, also acting and dancing with conspicuous ability. Miss Blanche Astley wins golden opinions for her winsome and prepossessing assumption of Daisy Fallowfield, materially brightening the performance by her artistic singing and graceful dancing. Miss Lind Hicks renders capital support to Mr. Edward Lewis (Jim Cheese); and Miss Edith Blande has an admirable stage presence for the part of Mrs. Shimmering Black. Miss Virginia Bliss is commendably played by Miss Edith Blande. Complete harmony is achieved by the chorus, materially assisted by the Marlborough orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Bert J. Paterson, and the stage-management is effectively superintended by Mr. Jos. R. Tate. A new feature has been introduced at the beginning of the second act, the world-famed Chantecler dresses, a facsimile of those used in Paris, and made by Mr. Willie Clarkson for this company, being effectively displayed by Herbert St. John as the Cock Bird, Miss Blanche Astley as the Hen Pheasant, and Miss Lily Tullick as the Guinea Fowl. An appropriate song and dance is successfully rendered by the trio, and the new number is highly entertaining. The front of the house is well looked after by the popular business-manager, Mr. J. Murray Herriot.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

"LOST BY DRINK."

The moral influence of the adaptation of Zola's L'Assommoir, which, under the title of Drink, was popularised in all parts of the English-speaking world by the late Charles Warner, has been exercised at Clapham Junction this week, and holiday audiences at the Shakespeare have been moved to sincere resolutions to avoid by all possible means the drunkard's career. The characters in the piece are differently named from those with which Mr. Warner was associated, but the incidents are very similar, and are fully as exciting. The principal part is called Dan Thomas, and is allotted to Mr. Otto Minster, who plays it remarkably well. His acting in the delirium tremens scene is very vivid, and exercises a poignant effect. A sweet-faced Jenny is found in Miss Lilian Duncker, who plays in refined style, and gains complete sympathy for the unfortunate wife of the drunkard. Miss V. St. Lawrence makes a beautiful fiend of Fanny, who pursues Dan Thomas and his wife with such determined hatred, and she sustains the humour and the passion of the part with equal effectiveness. A regular pantomime favourite is welcomed in Mr. W. P. Sheen, who as Tumbler Pidgeon exercises an influence for mirth that is irresistible. He receives substantial help from Mr. Geo. P. Lester, who utilises his low comedy gifts to excellent purpose as Bill Smith, and is invaluable in the funny episodes introduced. Mr. Gerald Venning's Harry Goodwin is a sincere and virile exposition of total abstinence principles, and the delivery of his homily on the curse of drink is marked by excellent elocution. Sinister effect is given by Mr. Tom Tindall to the part of Jim Black, who helps to contrive the ruin of Dan Thomas. The latter's two children are played with equal credit by Miss Millie Arthur and Miss Jennie Walker, two youthful and pleasing actresses, whose success in song and dance in pantomime at a neighbouring house will be remembered. Mr. Walter Ford is a typical public-house landlord, and Miss Lucy Murray as Biddy Malone gives a faithful representation of an Irishwoman. The play is a special production at the Shakespeare, and is well mounted. Mr. H. Percival Young remains the courteous acting-manager for Messrs. Bennett and Bennett.

DALSTON THEATRE.

"TWO LANCASHIRE LASSES IN LONDON."

The Dalston Theatre, cleaned and renovated, reopened its doors on Monday to a holiday audience, and the piece chosen for representation was the drama, by Arthur Shirley and Sutton Vane, entitled Two Lancashire Lasses in London. Mr. Robert Gilbert, as John Edmunds, an inventor, who suffers considerable hardship as the result of the overbearing action of an unscrupulous employer, is popular with the audience, and this goodwill is shared by Miss Cissie Bellamy, who gives a sympathetic rendering of the character of Bessie Edmunds, the inventor's wife. Miss Rita Corri is their little child, Lucy. The two sisters from Lancashire are Constance, played by Miss Florence Zillwood, who effectively represents the gay woman who becomes the evil genius of a callous-hearted manufacturer; and Nellie, whose ill-fortune it is to fall in with a bully, the latter character being enacted with touching sincerity by Miss Mabel Coleman. Jonas Dean, manufacturer and speculator, has a telling representative in Mr. Caspar Middleton. The part of the Rev. Frank Selby, from Lancashire, suits Mr. T. Dennis Byron, who seems quite at home in "the cloth." Miss Everleen Howard is cast for Mary, a servant at the Vicarage; Mr. Tom Newell immensely pleases the audience as Samuel Hallett, a typical Lancashire lad; and his eventual spouse, Jane Adelaide Bloomfield, the proprietress of a coffee shop, has a vigorous exponent in Miss Doris Kelvey. Mr. Dan Mining's conception of the character of Jim Price, alias the Basher, has a touch of Bill Sikes about it, and his companion in crime, Batty Gabbit, a cringing, deformed criminal, is effectively portrayed by Mr. Frank Irwin. Mr. Arthur Standen as Edward Langley, Mr. W. Thomas as Dean's footman, Mr. H. Dunstan as a police-sergeant, and Mr. William Grand as Dr. Gay, complete the cast.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

"THE TEMPTRESS."

The Bank Holiday production drew large houses to this favourite playhouse, and Mr. Frederick Melville's popular stock company gave an admirable performance of this exciting drama. Mr. Maurice H. Hoffman well realised the arduous part of Lucas Denbigh; and Mr. Lingard did justice to the rôle of Sir Oswald Fordyce. Philip Welford was capitally played by Mr. Frederick Sergeant; the ever-popular Mr. Newman Maurice was in his element as Bob Tanner; and Mr. Harry Bristow stood out prominently as Francis Fitzfluke. Mr. Will Smith was very good as John Gregory; and Mr. Loraine capital as Caleb Blake. Miss Marie McAulay must be highly praised for her skilful interpretation of the temptress, Stella Lady Fordyce, her powerful acting making a deep impression; Miss Lilian Clare was well cast as Marion Fordyce; and Miss Nora Layton remarkably good as Kezia Blake. Miss Evelyn Watson was to the fore as Madge Denbigh; Miss Violet Gordon and Miss Enid Thompson were clever representatives of friends of Lady Fordyce; Miss Helen Graham made an admirable Rhoda Brown. The remaining characters in a large cast were ably sustained. The piece was capitally mounted, reflecting much credit on Mr. Newman Maurice (the highly-esteemed manager) and his assistants.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

"HER FORBIDDEN MARRIAGE."

Mr. Frederick Melville's company form an excellent combination, and Lyric patrons are very appreciative of their efforts this week. Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson handles the part of George Maddison with power, and Charles Devereux is ably sustained by Mr. W. H. Porter. Mr. T. Macdonald is sympathetic as Geoffrey Broughton, while John Williams is well enacted by Mr. Vincent Lorraine. Mr. Conrad Stratford is adequate as the Rev. Mr. Dean, and Dr. Fenwick, as interpreted by Mr. Gordon Bland, is satisfactory. Mr. Harry Hinton deals effectively with the part of Inspector Young, and Mr. Joe Wells as Joe Lambton also supplies a praiseworthy and popular portrayal. Mr. Fred De Vere is bright and refreshing as Timothy Tuttut. Mr. George Lancaster is admirably delineated by Mr. Frank Denis, Benjamin Wardle is agreeably portrayed by Mr. Alfred East, and Mr. Leslie Lutter is good as Jenkins. Miss Alice Bowes is a charming Lucy, and Miss Florrie Groves makes the most of Patty Lovejoy. Miss Vera Grafton's figure and presence combine with sound acting to appeal convincingly as Lady Lancaster. Little Lucy suitably fills the rôle bearing the same name, and Miss Rita Tomkins is dignified as the Mother Superior.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 1, the Drama, by Fred Melville,

"HER ROAD TO RUIN."

Melville drama is always a good holiday selection, and Her Road to Ruin had a very friendly reception on Monday. The play is cleverly written and well acted, the principal parts being played by Mr. Charles Dickens, an excellent Frank Temple; Mr. Cecil Kerr, who gives a capital portrait of the poor journalist, Tom Wells; Mr. Knox Orde, a remarkably clever representation of Philip Hardy; Mr. Dane Clarke unites with the onerous duties of stage management a dignified performance of the Bishop. Messrs. Harry Winter and Harry Clarke are good as waiters at the Savoy Hotel, as is Mr. Henry Powell as Dicky Gerald; Mr. H. C. Stalwood is a typical Inspector from "the Yard"; Mr. C. H. Brooke is very good as Billy Boots; as is Mr. Thomas Henry as the Bruiser; Mr. William Wood is a capable Sir John Lewis; Mr. R. Leigh Ellis is admirable as Charles Cholmondeley; Miss Gertrude Tate presents a clever portrait of May Willoughby; Miss Grace Emery is a smart and attractive Jenny Crackling; Miss Margaret McClellan submits an excellent delineation as the Girl from Lancashire; Miss Doris Gilman is a delightful Jess Willoughby; Miss Gladys Clare, Sal Briggs; Miss Jessie Stevens, Lottie Baker; Miss Mary Halstead, the Scorcher; Miss Lucy Bentley, Clara Seaweed; and Miss Violet Cane, as the Wardress, all do well.

Ogarita ..... }

Produced at the Grand Junction Theatre, Manchester, as recently as July 18 last, A Woman of Two Lives has quickly appeared in the Metropolis. The story concerns the occult power and witchcraft possessed by the higher-grade mountain dwellers of India and the intrigues of British officers with India's daughters. To popular audiences the subject should prove very thrilling and interesting, for the story is embellished with picturesque and appropriate scenery, and the necessary comic relief is smartly written. The reception of the piece on the opening night was most cordial, and should augur well for its success on tour.

Briefly, the story concerns the liaison between the Indian girl Ogarita and the young British officer Captain Travers West. Through the death of a relative Travers West suddenly becomes a wealthy peer, and it doesn't "suit the book" to take Ogarita back with him to England. Ogarita is passionately in love with the Captain, but this is turned to intense hatred at her base treatment. Then it is the turn of the Red Witch of Burmah, Drampardi Lares, who tells the distraught Ogarita that similar treatment was meted out to Ogarita's mother, the daughter of the witch, who was betrayed and deserted many years back, and she suggests to the girl a scheme of revenge. By taking a mystical potion the Anglo-Indian blood in her veins will become separated, and from a daughter of India she will become a fair English girl. The plan is adopted, and the pair go to England in the wake of Travers West, Ogarita having become Angela Fenton with no knowledge of herself previous to taking the wondrous drug. As the English protégé of a presumed wealthy Indian woman she is wooed and won by Travers West, and the time is now ripe for the witch's revenge. The potion is again forthcoming, and the gentle Angela is changed into the passionate Ogarita. Firstly, Colonel Fenton, the officer who wronged Ogarita's mother, pays the penalty, and the girl escapes the death sentence by being retransformed into Angela. The culminating point of the witch's revenge is for Travers West and Angela to get married and then to change the girl back to Ogarita, afterwards destroying the phial containing the potion; but happily love conquers witchery and the drug fails to act, the end seeing the witch meet her doom at the hands of a disappointed accomplice, Garda Khan, and there is thus nothing to mar the future of Travers West and his fair bride.

Miss Hilda Beverley's company, under the management of Mr. Arthur Clifton, interpret the piece most satisfactorily. The brunt of the acting falls upon Miss Beverley in the dual rôle of the natural Ogarita and the refined Angela Fenton, and she is afforded full scope for her undoubted ability as an emotional actress, the two parts being well defined and in excellent contrast. Mr. Herbert Pearson as Captain Travers West acts incisively and with much tact; Mr. James Jarrett as the Indian conspirator Garda Khan looks the character well, and plays with conviction; Mr. Jack Armitage as the easy-going Lieut. Lord "Billy" Tremaine supplies an acceptable sketch of amiable inanity; and Mr. E. Hall Eldon is most amusing as Dick Smarter, his unobtrusive methods of provoking mirth being very welcome. Miss Mary Brammer in the important part of the witch, Drampardi Lares, is satisfactory; Miss Louise Gilmore is a duly dignified Lady Mountphayton; and Miss Dorothy Hildebrand is a pretty and popular representative of the "goey" Lottie London. Mr. T. Graham Smith does well as Sergeant Harper; Mr. Arthur Swaine makes the most of his opportunities as Colonel Fenton; and Mr. Tom Slater fulfils all requirements as the servant Briggs. Remaining parts are in quite capable hands.

ROYAL ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

This week The Arcadians is paying a visit for the first time, and the delightful musical play is proving a big success. As James Smith, afterwards Simplicitas, Mr. Chas. A. Stephenson is irresistibly funny; Mr. Alfred Beers is also very humorous as Peter Doody, and his song "Always merry and bright" was loudly acclaimed. Mr. Arthur S. Macdonald makes a manly Jack Meadows; the dapper little Bobby, as played by Mr. Cyril Lane, is very good; the haughty Sir George Paddock of Mr. Wallace G. Court is a fine impersonation. Miss Mollie McIntyre is delicious as Eileen Cavanagh, singing and dancing attractively; Chrysea, as played by Miss Violet Roberts, is very good, as also is the Sombra of Miss Sybil Tancredi, her vocalism being greatly admired. Miss Gertrude Aylward as Mrs. Smith supplies a very droll embodiment. The remaining artists are well suited to the parts allotted to them.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, August 1, the Romantic Play, by Walter Howard, entitled

"THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

The return visit of this popular play was welcomed by a crowded house on Monday. Mr. Howard and Mr. Walter Paumier's company are a capable band of artists. Chief honours are earned by and awarded to Miss Annie Saker, who fills the part of the Princess Monica of Illyria with a captivating charm that won her friends in every part of the house. Whether as the stately Princess or as the beggar maid, a part that she assumes for the sake of her people, Miss Saker looks and acts the part to perfection. Miss Jessica Black also scores a success in the part of Viola. Prince Olaf finds a very capable exponent in Mr. Ernest Cox; and Mr. G. Mayor-Cooke acquits himself with credit as the scheming Prince Hildred. One of the finest and most touching character sketches in the play is given by Mr. Lionel Gadsden as the misshapen Prince Michael, who retains the sympathies of the audience throughout. And Mr. Benson North is also very good as the faithful Nathan. Other parts effectively presented are the Captain Hector of Mr. Fred D. Davies and the Lieutenant Karl Stromberg of Mr. C. V. Stanford. Too much praise can scarcely be given for the manner in which the play is staged and dressed, great care and considerable expense having been incurred in those directions.

Lavender Loseby ..... Miss Ethel Ward

Produced so recently as last week at Brighton, A Criminal's Bride reached London on Monday, and served as the Bank Holiday attraction at the "Drury Lane of the East," where a large house endorsed the favourable opinion expressed by our Brighton correspondent. The story abounds in stirring scenes and thrilling incidents, and the characters are drawn with a capable hand; while the comedy relief is found always in the right place.

A summary of the plot was given in our last issue, and it is now only necessary to repeat that the opening of the piece finds Sir Harry Felstead entertaining a hunting party at Woodsorrel Hall, one of the guests being Austin Deepdale, a crafty and designing mesmerist. Sir Harry Felstead is engaged to Lavender Loseby, his trainer's daughter; but Deepdale uses his hypnotic influence upon Lavender, with the result that Sir Harry finds her embracing the villain. The latter is ordered from the house, and the curtain falls as Deepdale is confronted by Mitchell, a Scotland Yard detective. The second act takes place in a country police office, where two Italian wanderers—Giuseppe Canova and Tessa Gianelli—are among the arrested. Mitchell learns from the Italians that Deepdale is the father of Tessa's child, and that he had cut off Giuseppe's left hand after mesmerising him. In the following scene Deepdale, anxious that in a local race meeting Sir Harry's horse shall not beat the one he himself is running, determines that Sir Harry shall be prevented from riding. Deepdale had been stopped for furious motor driving, and had given his name as Sir Harry Felstead; he had failed to answer the charge, and as the result of a warrant being issued Sir Harry is taken in custody. The trainer, however, is equal to the occasion, rides Sir Harry's horse, and wins. Later, Deepdale and his chauffeur Grant arrange to steal the Felstead jewels. Lavender is again hypnotised by Deepdale, who compels her to open the safe with the key entrusted to her by Sir Harry, and to hand him the jewels. The inmates of the house are aroused, and the jewels are recovered. Sir Harry refuses to prosecute, but makes Deepdale leave the house and promise to quit the neighbourhood. He is on the scene, however, in the third act, having abducted Lavender. The girl is taken to the Lecqmont Caves. Sir Harry seeks his fiancée, and is about to enter the cave while holding on to a rope, when the rope is cut and the ardent lover falls upon the rocks below. He is captured and bound. Arrangements are made by Deepdale for a secret marriage with Lavender. The latter has been rescued and taken outside the cave by Mitchell, and when a clergyman, under a threat of being shot, marries Deepdale to a lady, the latter is found to be none other than Tessa. In the fourth act we find Tessa at Deepdale's home, visited by her old lover, Giuseppe. The latter realises Tessa's unhappy life, but hearing Deepdale approach he hides in a room, only to be compelled to listen to further insults heaped upon the young wife by the unprincipled villain. As Deepdale passes the room in which Giuseppe is hidden he is strangled by the enraged Italian, thus paving the way for the complete happiness of the virtuous characters.

Mr. Edward Marris has produced his play on an elaborate scale, the scenery and dresses being superb, and the hunting dresses creating a striking effect. The representation of the drama is committed to Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. Mr. Frank Robertson makes a veritable hero of Sir Harry, manly and chivalrous throughout. He is admirably paired by Miss Ethel Ward, a sweet and tender Lavender Loseby. The old trainer is ably portrayed by Mr. Grayson Bancroft. Excellent light comedy comes of the impersonation of Sir Harry's sister Kitty and his good-natured friend, Archie Ravenscourt, brightly played by Miss Maud Tremaine and Mr. Harry Butler. Miss Ella Willmer provides a good study of the Italian girl; and her revengeful father is vividly portrayed by Mr. Herbert Belmore. Mr. George Brentwood makes a droll policeman, Dumbleby; Miss Lillah Peltz is a vivacious servant girl; and Miss Mollie Hackett scores as Jenny Jenkins. The music for A Criminal's Bride is by Hubert Bogetti.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

"MARRIED TO THE WRONG MAN."

Newly-decorated and upholstered throughout, the Borough Theatre presented a decidedly smart appearance at the re-opening on Monday, when a typical Bank Holiday piece was presented in Married to the Wrong Man. The popular parts of this spacious theatre were liberally patronised, and the performance of Mr. Fred Melville's strenuous melodrama furnished general enjoyment. Mr. Henry Lonsdale as Jack Gladwin acts with vigour and variety, and cuts quite a soldierly figure. Miss Mary Pemberton as Ruth, the girl who is struck dumb during the play, is very charming, while her subsequent depiction of the heroine bereft of speech is a striking example of pantomimic art. The crafty Captain Deering is presented in forcible style by Mr. George Arthur, and Mr. W. Pemberton is a convincing Sergeant Manners. Mr. Leonard Thackeray portrays the unctuous old reprobate Jasper Skinner in telling manner; Mr. Hyland T. O'Shea is an active and alert Timothy Clinker; and Mr. Basil Lynn is an acceptable Archie Bird. Miss Clara Milvain makes a graceful Rose O'Connor; and Miss May Day is a pretty and pert Dolly Fritter. All other parts receive careful treatment, and the piece is staged very appropriately.

At the County Police-court, Leicester, on Saturday, Superintendent Bowley remarked, in reference to an application to the magistrates last week respecting a licence for a portable theatre at Wigston, that he and Mr. Burgess had been over to the premises, and everything was satisfactory. There was ample emergency exit provision, and he saw no reason why the licence should not be granted. The Chairman remarked that what the Bench wanted to secure was that the public, in case of fire or panic, could leave without difficulty. Superintendent Bowley: I have already made such arrangements. The Chairman, in intimating that the licence would be granted, said: Instructions should be given to the officer at Wigston to keep his eye on the place and report.

Second Witch ..... Mr. H. O. Nicholson
Third Witch ..... Miss Violet Farebrother
Hecate ..... Miss Winifred Durie
Armed Head ..... Mr. H. Meltzer
Bloody Child ..... Miss MacDowell
Crowned Head ..... Miss A. P. Nicholson

Despite all the counter-attractions of river and countryside on a beautiful July afternoon, a large audience assembled to greet this performance. Despite numerous cuts, the massive drama of Scottish history and legend requires a full three hours for its presentation; therefore, it says much for Mr. Benson and his players that the enthusiasm of the audience was unabated to the end.

The weird sisters were effectively represented by a curious combination—Mr. Alfred Brydone, Mr. H. O. Nicholson, and Miss Violet Farebrother. But the latter hardly succeeded in subduing her own undeniable beauty to the repulsiveness demanded by the rôle. Mr. Benson's interpretation of the Thane of Cawdor is powerful and subtle. Mrs. Benson gave a supremely fine rendering of Lady Macbeth, acting with admirable restraint and complete lack of that over emphasis which so often, in other hands, has marred this part. Mr. J. P. Wilson showed us a simple, benevolent, unsuspicious Duncan; and Mr. Alfred Wild a frank and dashing Malcolm. Mr. Murray Carrington was a rugged and picturesque Banquo; and Mr. Eric Maxon was completely at home as the avenging Macduff. All the minor rôles were well filled, and we would especially commend Mr. J. Moffat Johnston's Doctor as being a particularly able character-sketch of a minor part affording few opportunities. It is on the ability shown in the rendering of these minor parts that promotion to heavier rôles is deservedly earned. Mr. Benson himself sets an example by occasionally taking First Outlaws, Second Murderers, or the like; and it is characteristic of this presentation of Macbeth that the humblest parts, such as the Porter, the Bloody Child, and the Second Messenger were all carefully studied and played as though each of them were an indispensable wheel in the mighty machine.

On Friday Afternoon, July 29,

"TWELFTH NIGHT"

Orsino ..... Mr. Murray Carrington
Sebastian ..... Mr. Alfred Wild
Antonio ..... Mr. Alfred Brydone
A Sea Captain ..... Mr. J. Howell
Valentine ..... Mr. James Turnbull
Curio ..... Mr. N. Barrie
Sir Toby Belch ..... Mr. G. Hannam Clark
Sir Andrew Aguecheek ..... Mr. H. O. Nicholson
Malvolio ..... Mr. F. R. Benson
Fabian ..... Mr. W. W. Caithness
Feste ..... Mr. Harry Caine
First Officer ..... Mr. Harold Meltzer
Second Officer ..... Mr. F. Plinor
Priest ..... Mr. John Howell
Olivia ..... Miss Violet Farebrother
Viola ..... Miss Marjorie Patterson
Maria ..... Miss Ella Tarrant

The beautiful surroundings lent verisimilitude to the course of this picturesque comedy, which was acted throughout with admirable verve and spirit. The chief feature of the presentation was the remarkable début of Miss Marjorie Patterson in the exacting rôle of Viola. Miss Patterson has only been in the Benson company for about a twelvemonth; but she gave us a most finished, charming, and altogether delightful Viola, by far the most difficult rôle she has yet had entrusted to her.

On Friday Evening, July 29, Mr. Benson Presented

"MASKS AND FACES."

Sir Charles Pomander ..... Mr. Murray Carrington
Mr. Ernest Vane ..... Mr. Eric Maxon
Colley Cibber ..... Mr. W. W. Caithness

Lysimachus Triplet ..... Miss Hetty Kenyon
Mr. Snarl ..... Mr. J. Moffat Johnston
Mr. Soaper ..... Mr. Harry Caine
James Burdock ..... Mr. McLean
Colander ..... Mr. James Turnbull
Hundsdon ..... Mr. Alfred Wild
Call Boy ..... Mr. Gibson

Mrs. Vane ..... Miss Ethel McDowall
Peg Woffington ..... Mrs. F. R. Benson
Kitty Clive ..... Miss Violet Farebrother
Mrs. Triplet ..... Miss Marion Foreman
Roxalana ..... Miss Kathleen Yorke
Servant ..... Miss Eva Hertz

This evergreen satirical comedy was played to a crowded house. Mr. Benson himself took a deserved rest, and had the pleasure of watching from the stalls the delightful and witching drolleries and pathos with which his wife invested the part of Peg Woffington. The play was also conspicuous for the charm and talent which Miss Ethel McDowall brought to bear on the ingénue rôle of Mrs. Vane. We do not remember to have seen Miss McDowall in any part of this importance before, and she is heartily to be congratulated on the naïveté and sweetness of her impersonation. But the masterpiece of the whole performance was the Triplet of Mr. H. O. Nicholson. It was almost beyond praise. Mr. Nicholson's surpassing merits often give cause to wonder at the good fortune of Mr. Benson in being able to retain him in the ranks of his company.

The author of Chantecler has had an unexpected reward for writing his play, M. Rostand having been awarded the annual Grand Prize of the French Society for the Protection of Animals as a tribute to the affection for the animal creation as shown in his piece. Several members of the society protested against the award very strongly on the ground that the tremendous display of plumage worn by Mme. Simone and other members of the cast could only have been obtained at the cost of much suffering. It was asserted that in some cases the feathers were plucked from the living birds, while Mme. Simone's costume contained £80 worth of feathers from birds of Paradise. Chantecler was also responsible for the new feminine fashion of wearing a grotesque display of feathers as trimming for hats.

Herr Albert Ausmann, who in his prime had a magnificent bass voice and sang at the leading opera houses, went mad at Halle on Thursday, and killed his wife with a revolver while she was reading the newspaper. He tried to blow out his brains, but as he did not succeed he hanged himself from a clothes-peg behind the door.

WIMBLEDON THEATRE RULES.

MR. MULHOLLAND AND THE CORPORATION.

Mr. J. B. Mulholland, the well-known theatre proprietor and manager, whose new theatre at Wimbledon is rapidly nearing completion, has had occasion to take the Corporation severely to task with regard to the delay over granting the necessary licence for the building. The whole position of affairs was discussed at length at Wednesday night's meeting of the Corporation, when a letter was read from Mr. Mulholland, in which he submitted a brief summary of the facts with regard to his application, and drew attention to the serious position in which he was placed by the delay in dealing with it. He duly made application on May 17 last, prior to which a print of the Corporation's form of licence, with the conditions, had been handed to him, and at that time no further conditions were suggested. He attended a meeting of the Watch Committee on May 25, and the conditions and rules were discussed clause by clause, and some alterations and important additions were mutually agreed to, but no further rules were suggested, and he understood the granting of the licence would be recommended to the next meeting of the Corporation. In June—five weeks later—he had an interview with the Town Clerk, who partially read to him a number of new rules, the great majority of which had never been previously suggested. Mr. Mulholland immediately raised objection, and stated his reasons in a letter dated July 9. It was doubtless generally known in Wimbledon that his theatre was nearing completion, and he had made important engagements on the strength of the specific assurance given when he met the Watch Committee. Since then, however, he had experienced similar delays to those of three years ago. If a special meeting of the committee was possible, he earnestly urged the members to have one to decide the matter.

Several motions were submitted for dealing with the letter, and eventually it was decided to take it into consideration at once.

Councillor C. How contended that the matter should be settled without delay. The site upon which the theatre was being built had been vacant for the past eight or ten years, and the Council had been paid no rates, and, had there been no delays over the building, it would have been completed almost two years ago, and he calculated the Council would have been paid rates between £500 and £600. That was a very serious matter for the town. Before laying out a large sum of money Mr. Mulholland consulted the borough surveyor as to the regulations. If the printed form of application which the Council had was suitable to the places already licensed in Wimbledon, it was equally suitable for this up-to-date theatre. He would like to know why the London County Council rules were being made applicable to Wimbledon when they were continually shouting that they did not want London to have any control over them. He strongly urged the Council to meet Mr. Mulholland in a reasonable manner.

Councillor J. L. H. Abbott, after tracing the early negotiations Mr. Mulholland had with the Council, said that it appeared the borough surveyor asked Mr. Mulholland to draft rules, and these were handed to him. They eventually passed through the minutes, and Mr. Mulholland objected to the form, as it appeared by the paragraph that he was ruling the town in the matter. In the very early days there seemed to be some misunderstanding between the officials and Mr. Mulholland, and, in his opinion, the gulf had been widened. In the Council's form of licence the word "theatre" was mentioned twenty-three times, so there could be no doubt about it being for theatres. Mr. Mulholland was evidently misled in the first place. He did not say purposely, but the Committee knew all the time what the form of the licence was.

Councillor L. Allen (chairman of the Watch Committee) said they had spent a great deal of time over the matter. They were accused of causing unnecessary delay, but the Committee was placing no obstacle in the way of an immediate settlement. They must have regulations which were proper; but he did not think Mr. Mulholland was as ready to meet the Council as the Council was to meet him. What they had to consider was the safety of lives. If a catastrophe occurred the first people to be blamed would be the Council, and it was perfectly ridiculous to say the old rules covered a building like this theatre. He thought they would have to adopt a firm attitude—frame rules, and tell Mr. Mulholland these were the rules which must be accepted. It was a matter for him to reject them, and go for a music-hall licence.

Councillor E. E. G. Williams said they had a very serious charge to meet, amounting to something like discourtesy in the negotiations, and Councillor Allen had made no attempt to rebut it. If it was their purpose to tie Mr. Mulholland down to certain rules, surely it was proper to inform him before Aug. 4.

The Town Clerk, on the invitation of the Mayor, made an explanatory statement. He said that the building plans for the theatre first came before the Council at a Public Works and Buildings Committee on April 3, 1907. The regulations referred to, which it was quite true were drafted by Mr. Mulholland, were the outcome of a conversation he had with the Borough Surveyor, who pointed out that the by-laws of the Council did not deal with buildings such as theatres. The only matter under discussion in 1907 was the building of the theatre, and what precautions were necessary to be taken in the planning of the building. The plans were referred to a strong sub-committee, that went into the plans so as to get a building which, in every sense of the word, would be safe for use. So quickly did the members do the work that on April 23, twenty days after the plans first came before the Council, they had gone through the regulations and assented to most of them. The amendments to the plans mutually agreed upon were not ready for the May meeting of the Council, and in the meantime a dispute arose as to the building line. Mr. Mulholland wanted to come forward to a point which the Works Committee thought he was not entitled to, and Mr. Mulholland put the matter in the hands of his solicitors, but on June 25 the building line was fixed. The plans were finally approved on Nov. 12, 1907, and from then there had been nothing to prevent Mr. Mulholland proceeding with the erection of the theatre.

Proceeding, he said the erection of the theatre was commenced, and in April last Mr. Mulholland wrote about the licence. He believed it was a fact that when the question of settling the building plans was under discussion Mr. Mulholland was handed a copy of the licence which the Council issued with regard to the buildings used for stage plays. He told Mr. Mulholland that the Council had never licensed a building erected as a theatre, and Mr. Mulholland understood perfectly it was not the licence they proposed to grant him, and that it simply applied to such buildings as the Baths Hall and St. Mark's Hall, in which an occasional performance was given, which technically came under the heading of stage plays. In the form they were bound to mention theatres, because the licences were granted under the Theatres Act, 1843. They had to follow the wording of the Act. On May 10 he mentioned to Mr. Mulholland that in all probability they would likely have his application, and the Watch Committee was so anxious to expedite matters that they held a special meeting, and at it the Borough Surveyor and other officials were ordered to compare the regulations with those of the London County Council, which applied to every theatre, whether old or new. He was asked to draft a licence, and thinking there would be no difficulty about it he wrote to Mr. Mulholland saying that he hoped in a few days to send on a copy, so that he could consider it and submit his observations to the next meeting. It was, however, reported to him that the water supply was not so good as it should be, and he did not send on the licence until it had come before the committee on June 7. Then it was agreed there should be a special meeting—the second held to avoid delay—to consider the rules and the water supply, and a representative of the Water Board attended. With regard to laying a high pressure water main to the theatre, the committee considered it unfair to pay the whole expense when the only object was to protect Mr. Mulholland's theatre. The committee resolved that the chairman and he should interview Mr. Mulholland with regard to the extension of the main. They knew Mr. Mulholland was a theatre manager of experience, and they wanted to make rules which would not act hardly upon him. They went over to Hammersmith to see him, and although Mr. Mulholland protested strongly against bearing any expense in extending the high pressure water main, he eventually agreed to pay half the cost, and they told him they would recommend the Council to agree to that. What the Watch Committee wanted was that there should be a sufficient supply of water on the top floor to play upon a fire without utilising the fire engine. With regard to the electric light supply, if Mr. Mulholland took it from the Corporation the rules in the licence would be all right, but if not, they would have to make other rules. Eventually Mr. Mulholland told them they were taking the London County Council rules en bloc, but he pointed out that they were not as they were modified, and then Mr. Mulholland said he had declared in public he would never build or manage another theatre under the London County Council rules. They considered the draft rules fair and reasonable, and to ascertain if the criticism of them was well founded, and that they were impracticable in working, they got an interview with the London County Council officials. After that a number of the rules Mr. Mulholland objected to were struck out and a draft of the licence sent to him. Experience up and down the country showed them that if a catastrophe took place the first persons to be blamed were the local authority. Mr. Mulholland had taken no objection to the rules. If there was anything Mr. Mulholland could point to as being unnecessary or unreasonable the Watch Committee was prepared to consider his objection, but he hoped the Council would adopt rules which would give reasonable protection to the public. (Hear, hear.)

The Borough Surveyor said he had not seen Mr. Mulholland since the start, except when he appeared at the committee meeting, and he had not written him since 1907.

The Mayor: The whole facts have been made known, as Mr. Mulholland wishes, and we shall proceed to the next business.

At a later stage of the meeting some further discussion took place.

The minutes of a meeting of the Watch Committee showed that the chairman (Councillor Allen) and the Town Clerk had had an interview with Mr. J. B. Mulholland as to the extension of the high pressure water main in South Park-road to the proposed theatre in Merton-road, and as to the rules to be annexed to the licence for the theatre, and reported the result thereof. It was resolved that the chairman (Councillor Allen) and the Town Clerk be authorised to make such arrangements with Mr. Mulholland as they may think expedient, and that, if necessary, a special meeting of this committee be held to consider any difficulties which may arise.

Councillor How suggested that they should get the rules in force at Kingston, Richmond, and Croydon, and base theirs upon these.

Councillor Williams moved that the minute be referred back, and the committee instructed to act according to Councillor How's suggestion.

Councillor How seconded.

The Town Clerk pointed out that the Surrey County Council's rules were introduced into the ones drawn up. They did not accept Mr. Mulholland's statement that theirs were the L.C.C. rules, for these had been modified considerably. The L.C.C. rules governed licences for music and dancing and referred to general matters, and they were to be followed according to circumstances. Mr. Mulholland had been told that even after they had dealt with the matter the building must be inspected by the County Surveyor before the licence was granted.

Councillor Abbott moved that the Town Clerk be instructed to base the rules upon those applicable to Surrey theatres, where the local authorities were as anxious to look after the lives of the people as this Corporation was.

The former amendment was then withdrawn, and Councillor How seconded Councillor Abbott's proposition.

Councillor G. Clement said he believed there had been a considerable amount of delay, but by referring the matter back and getting Mr. Mulholland before the committee new members would be able to see what type of gentleman he was, and probably they would then be able to arrive at some understanding. At one time every member of the Council was inundated with telegrams as late as 10 p.m. from this gentleman. He suggested that a special meeting of the General Purposes Committee be held to consider the matter.

This was agreed to.

Once more the partnership of Madame Sarah Bernhardt and M. le Bargy in a joint theatrical scheme is talked about, says the Paris correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. This time the undertaking is to be simply and boldly called "Le Chef d'œuvre." The name obviously means, first, that such a combination of talents can but achieve perfection. In the second place, it is intended to imply that only masterpieces, either of the French or foreign stage, are to be brought out. The authors who are to supply the masterpieces are MM. Paul Bourget, Brieux, Paul Hervieu, Octave Mirbeau, and last, but first of all, M. Edmond Rostand, a Faust by whom, announced almost as long ago as Chantecler, will, it is said, open the season of "Le Chef d'œuvre."

"Amongst my earliest remembrances," says "Playgoer" in the Scots Pictorial "is a modest wooden playhouse—the vulgar called it a 'geggie'—in a small country town, which, in ancient days, was considered to be half in the Highlands and half in the Lowlands. The soliloquising, heavy tragedian used to cross the proscenium in four or five contemplative paces, and he could never get doing a decent rant, so constantly did he come in contact with the pasteboard.

"Each man in his time played many parts in this theatre. Nay, each man in one night played many parts, and the like did each woman. It was no uncommon occurrence even for a girl to take the part of a young man, or vice versa. I fancy this sort of work, uncouth as it was, must have been an excellent training for a young actor or actress, and indeed in the theatre I speak of there was one lady player whose name, then unknown outside that countryside, is now in every illustrated paper. The plays, it is worth remarking, were practically all of a national character. Rob Roy, Wandering Steenie, Jeanie Deans, and other old Scots tragedies of the kind seemed completely to satisfy people there."

Father Benson, a well-known Jesuit, highly esteemed as a preacher, is publishing with Messrs. Longman, a sacred drama in three acts, which he wrote for the centenary of St. Cuthbert's College, Ushaw. It is entitled "The Cost of a Crown: a Story of Douay and Durham."

A special committee at the Pan-American Congress has approved a proposal of Senor Alvarez concerning literary property. According to this, the fact of having obtained copyright for any literary work in one country of America would confer ipso facto copyright privileges in all the countries of America.

At Guernsey The Merry Widow is obtaining a most enthusiastic reception. This is the first visit of Mr. George Edwardes's company to the island, and the occasion had been eagerly anticipated. The performances have given unbounded satisfaction, and on the farewell night Miss Mary Ridley, the delightful Sonia, was the recipient of a handsome bouquet.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

MYSTIFYING AN AUDIENCE.

Mr. H. B. Irving has been explaining to Answers some of the mysteries of quick change. He writes:—

"My interest in dual personalities explains, I dare say, why I so frequently act two parts in my productions. Sometimes, indeed, my changes are so complete that my audiences believe I am two separate actors!

"But perhaps this is not very surprising when, as in the last act of The Lyons Mail, both my characters appear on the stage at the same time.

"How do I manage this? Well, I will let you into the secret.

"The murderer, Dubosc, played by myself, is straining against the door of his garret, trying to keep out a mob of angry French citizens, who are coming to seize him and carry him off by force to the guillotine outside. Suddenly, as his strength fails, the door is forced open, the mob bursts in, and Dubosc finds himself face to face with his accuser, Lesurques—also played by myself. For a moment the audience believe that Lesurques is merely a double, made up to look like me. But then Lesurques opens his lips, and they hear my voice, while the murderer Dubosc is being borne back by the crowd. What actually happens is this: The door of the garret is situated in one of the side-walls, and as the people outside force it inwards Dubosc is swung back with it, and is momentarily covered from the audience's view. This is the instant in which the change is effected. My double enters, while I exit through an aperture in the wall behind the door. It is he who falls back from the door into the hands of the mob, while I, having quickly made the necessary alteration to my appearance, enter simultaneously as Lesurques.

"Rapid as this change is, however, there was one even more rapid in my last production, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. As a matter of fact, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde are really one and the same person, but in effect and appearance there is more difference between them than between Lesurques and Dubosc. Dr. Jekyll is refined and gentlemanly in appearance; Mr. Hyde, who represents his evil genius, looks more animal than human. The most important change in this piece takes place in full view of the audience, when, in the third act, Mr. Hyde drinks a potion that transforms him back into his better self, Dr. Jekyll. Before he drinks the draught he is a crouching, long-haired fiend, who lurks in shadows, and is not fit for human companionship. Afterwards, literally in a flash, he becomes the distinguished doctor of letters.

"But how I effect this change I must leave you to guess. There is no 'doubling' here, because I do not leave the sight of the audience for a single instant. I think some fate must have specially singled me out as a 'double' actor, because I recall an incident during the early days of my career when a mishap caused me to appear so before an Oxford audience. The incident is worth relating, although, at the time, it appeared less amusing to a highly strung young actor than it now does to a seasoned manager.

"The play was King John. At the end of Act II., I, as the English monarch, had to greet King Philip of France before the walls of Angiers. In some extraordinary way, we became entangled, and for several seconds we were forced to walk side by side, inseparably joined by the intricacies of our armour.

"But this was not the only mishap of that ill-fated scene. When the drawbridge came to be let down before the castle, it was found to be too short, and the castle had to be pushed forward to the bridge before the imprisoned inhabitants could come out. To complete the series of disasters, when the head citizen was kneeling down at the end of the act to render up the keys, he went too near the footlights, and as the curtain descended between him and the stage, he found himself kneeling alone on the wrong side, before a tittering audience. I have often been asked whether the playing of double parts in any way disturbs my daily life—that is to say, whether I find myself continually changing my personality, and alarming my family and friends.

"Happily, this is not so. On the stage I find it easy to change my personality, because the conditions of the play make it so. But if such alarming tendencies introduced themselves into my own home, I should very soon give up playing double parts."

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, WINDSOR.

A new and up-to-date theatre, now in course of erection by the proprietors of the old theatre, Sir William Shipley and Captain Reginald Shipley, at a cost of nearly £30,000, will be opened in December next.

The history of the Theatre Royal is interesting. Its precursor was a building in the High-street, erected about the year 1775, on the site of the present Constitutional Club. The theatre in those days was frequently patronised by the Royal Family, as the following extract from a Windsor paper will show:—

"From my eighth year upwards I could always obtain a free admission to that smallest of playhouses, the Theatre Royal of Windsor, where Majesty oft was delighted to recreate itself with hearty laughs at the comic stars of sixty years since. Tragedy was not to the King's taste. Miss Burney has recorded how he appreciated the dramatist whose Hamlet and Benedick were sometimes here personated by Elliston; and whose Richard III. Cooke coarsely but powerfully enacted on this stage: "Was there ever such stuff as great part of Shakespeare? only one must not say so! But what think you? What? Is there not sad stuff? What? What?" George III. has supporters in this opinion where we might scarcely look for them. I have heard one such heretic, whose intellectual dimensions would appear gigantic in comparison with those of the King, say of the writer of the sad stuff, "I always call him Silly Billy." The publicity of which I have spoken was, in the Windsor Theatre, carried to its extremest limit. That honoured playhouse no longer exists. The High-street exhibits a dissenting chapel on its site, whose frontage may give some notion of the dimensions of that cosy apartment, with its two tiers of boxes, its gallery, and its slips. It was not an exclusive theatre. Three shillings gave the entrance to the boxes, two shillings to the pit, and one shilling to the gallery. One side of the lower tier of boxes was occupied by the Court. The King and Queen sat in capacious arm-chairs, with satin playbills spread before them. The orchestra, which would hold half a dozen fiddlers, and the pit, where some dozen persons might be closely packed on each bench, separated the royal circle from the genteel parties in the opposite tier of boxes. With the plebeians in the pit the Royal Family might have shaken hands; and when they left, there was always a scramble for their satin bills, which would be afterwards duly framed and glazed as spoils of peace. As the King laughed and cried, "Bravo, Quick!" or "Bravo, Suett!"—for he had rejoiced in their well-known mirth-provoking faces many a time before—the pit and gallery clapped and roared in loyal sympathy: the boxes were too genteel for such emotional feelings. As the King, Queen, and Princesses retired at the end of the third act, to sip their coffee, the pot of Windsor ale, called Queen's ale, circulated in the gallery. At eleven o'clock the curtain dropped. The fiddles struck up "God save the King"; their Majesties bowed around as the house clapped; and the gouty manager, Mr. Thornton, leading the way to the entrance (carrying wax-lights and walking backward with the well-practised steps of a Lord Chamberlain), the flambeaux of three or four carriages gleamed through the dimly-lighted streets, and Royalty was quickly at rest. Our theatre was only open at the Eton vacations."

In 1815 a new theatre was built on the site of the present house, and next to it stood the house of the celebrated painter, James Bristow. In 1866 the property was thrown into Chancery, and an order was made for its sale. It was purchased by a Mr. Frederick Charsley, of Slough, and subsequently by a Mr. Freemantle.

In 1872 it again changed hands, being acquired by the trustees of the late Mr. Richard Gardner, M.P. for Windsor. It was bought in 1890 by the late Sir George Long, and used for political meetings, and in 1900 the property was sold to Sir William Shipley, who is an ex-Mayor of Windsor, having held office for three years. A number of improvements were made in the building, and the property let to Mr. Restall, who was followed by Mr. Samuel James, and subsequently by Mr. Jasper Redfern, of Sheffield, who was the lessee at the time of the fire in February, 1908.

The new house is being erected from designs by Frank Verity, Esq., on the site of the old theatre, with the acquisition of adjoining property, and will be considerably larger than the old building. Fire-resisting materials are being used throughout, and the steelwork is of the very latest pattern.

The exterior treatment is designed in the style of the Early English Renaissance or Jacobean, at the desire of the Crown authorities, by reason of its proximity to the Castle.

Entering from Thames-street we shall pass into a spacious crush hall, with cloak-rooms, box-office, and staircases right and left, leading down to the stalls and saloon, also communicating with the main corridor, which encircles and gives access to the box tier, an original feature placed at the back of the auditorium. This level includes the dress circle, and is the best part of the house. It will be raised a few feet above the level of the stalls and enclosed by the private boxes, the fronts of which will be treated with a simple order carried round, thus forming a circular auditorium.

Directly above this will be one continuous tier, designed so as to ensure a perfect view of the stage from every seat. It will be divided into balcony and gallery, each with its own saloon, lavatory accommodation, and separate entrances from Thames-street and exits into Thames-avenue.

The auditorium is designed in a simple, dignified, classic style, in which a colour treatment after the manner of the Italian Renaissance, will be introduced. The system adopted for regulating the temperature, and for ventilating the building, is one that will preclude the possibility of draughts.

In designing the electric light installation every precaution has been taken to minimise the risk of total extinction through the failure of supply. The two-circuit system will be installed throughout the theatre, in the auditorium, passages, entrances, and exits, the lamps being installed alternately on two circuits, these being connected through the necessary switchboards and change-over switches to the two sources of supply.

Behind the proscenium there will be a commodious stage, 35ft. deep, 48ft. wide, with an opening of 28ft. by 28ft., and a height of 53ft. from floor to grid.

Provision has also been made for cooling the curtain by means of a specially designed sprinkler controlled from the stage level, or, in case of necessity, from the stage-door.

The dressing-room block is to be connected with the stage on the O.P. side by a large waiting lobby, to which all the thirteen rooms communicate. Each room will be conveniently fitted, and have its own hot and cold water supply.

It is the intention of the proprietors to run the theatre on really first-class lines, and no expense will be spared by them to make the new house in every way worthy of the Royal borough.

The population within six miles of the theatre is over 40,000, and the promises of support received from a very large number of prominent and influential people in the district, coupled with the fact that there is a strong hope that the new house may be honoured with the attendance of members of the Royal Family, the success of the undertaking is practically assured.

Our leading touring managers will no doubt want to secure early bookings for their companies. It seems certain that Windsor will, from the very beginning, be an excellent date.

The proprietors have arranged with Mr. J. E. Hall, so many years associated with London suburban theatre management, to act as general manager on their behalf.

OPERA HOUSE, SOUTHPORT, OUTING.

The Southport Opera House staff had their annual trip on Sunday, when a party of over sixty journeyed to Stoneyhurst and Whalley Abbey. Train was taken to Preston, where the excursionists were met by two large 'buses, which took them for a fine drive to Stoneyhurst. The party sat down to an excellent dinner at the Royal Hotel. A visit was paid to the fine old Church and churchyard and the old Abbey ruins, after which a capital tea was enjoyed at the Town Hall.

The chair was occupied by Mr. G. Clarkson, the genial acting-manager of the Opera House, in the unavoidable absence of Mr. Percy Hutchison, the popular lessee and manager. Others present were Messrs. H. Cornish (manager of Empire), W. P. Stone (musical director), and Fred Jones (secretary of Winter Gardens). After tea a vote of thanks was moved to Mr. Clarkson and the committee for their admirable arrangements. In an able speech the motion was seconded by Mr. Cornish.

Mr. Clarkson, who was received with great cordiality and musical honours, briefly thanked the company for their good wishes, and said it was a great regret to Mr. Hutchison that he was not able to be with them that day. Mr. Hutchison desired to convey to them all his hearty good wishes.

A photograph of the party having been taken, the drive back to Preston was made, whence they trained to Southport, all having spent one of the happiest days in the history of these enjoyable gatherings.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP

Sir Herbert Tree returned on Wednesday from Marienbad greatly invigorated by his brief holiday. Arrangements are being rapidly perfected for the presentation of Henry VIII., in which Sir Herbert in the rôle of Wolsey will make his reappearance at His Majesty's. The elaborate nature of the production has already been indicated in this column, and there is every indication that Thursday, Sept. 1, will witness the addition of another brilliant success to the distinguished actor-manager's record.

"Henry VIII." being so much in the nature of a pageant, Sir Herbert has determined to adopt the olden-time arrangement of the "apron" stage, which will be brought forward in almost semicircular shape over the orchestra, about nine feet in front of the original limit of the stage at His Majesty's Theatre. By this plan the players will be brought more closely into touch with the spectators, and much of the dialogue, colloquies, and speeches, instead of being spoken at a considerable distance from the audience, will be given in the auditorium itself.

The Welsh national drama has found a warm friend in Sir Herbert Tree, who wrote thus from Marienbad recently to Mr. Ernest Cove, an enthusiastic promoter of the cause:—"What better thing can Welshmen do than create a Welsh national drama? There are plenty of subjects to hand, and there is no medium of speaking to the people in so effectual and stirring a manner as does the drama. What you want is what we all want—a dramatist! May he not be straying at this moment, all unconscious of his destiny, on your wild coast, or vainly seeking for some outlet for his genius in some Cardiff tramcar? Here is his chance, but you must kindle the torch of enthusiasm to help him."

Miss May Robson, the famous American actress, who will reopen Terry's Theatre on the 22nd inst. with The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary, was born in Australia, near the Murrumbidgee River, and educated in Brussels and Paris. She made her first appearance as an actress in The Hoop of Gold at the Maddison-square Theatre, New York. Her success, it is said, has been won entirely in original parts.

The rôle Miss Robson will portray at Terry's, and in which she has received the eulogium of the United States, is that of a country old lady who lips into the delights o ftown life, and is so fascinated by them that she leaves her rural retirement never to return. Playgoers must prepare themselves for varied degrees of merriment as the result of Miss Robson's quaint performance, for if we are to judge by a sheaf of Press opinions contained in a booklet to hand, "ripples of laughter as steady and constant as the little waves on a wind-tossed lake were the rule at the theatre"; while the Kansas Post maintains that "the gale of merriment which was started soon after the rise of the curtain kept blowing throughout the three acts of the comedy."

Mr. Laurence Irving decided that, owing to the enthusiastic reception accorded to Margaret Catchpole at the Prince of Wales's, Birmingham, the piece should remain in the bill the entire week. The first production of The Unwritten Law in this country, which was announced for Thursday last, has therefore been postponed.

Mr. B. A. Meyer, who accompanied Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton to Australia as general manager, resigned his position on their return to England, having decided to remain in Australia and start farming there. Mr. Meyer was largely influenced in this decision by the fact that his wife (Miss Dorothy Grimston), who accompanied her husband to Australia, has been forced, through a very serious form of deafness, to retire from the stage.

Miss Grimston, who thus prematurely relinquishes a career of much accomplishment and greater promise, is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, and made her début in May, 1903, with Madame Réjane in L'Anglais tel qu'on le parle at the Garrick. She was one year with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier, with whom she played in The Golden Silence and The Fairy's Dilemma and other pieces, and she was the Christabel Webmarsh in Pinero's A Wife without a Smile at Wyndham's. In 1905 she went to America with Miss Olga Nethersole, with whom she played lead, and two years later found her at the Criterion with Mrs. Patrick Campbell. Her marriage to Mr. Meyer was solemnised in the October of 1903.

Miss Terry Lewis, the secretary of the Anti-Woman Suffrage League, is a niece of Miss Ellen Terry, and daughter of Miss Kate Terry, a famous actress of the 'sixties, who made a temporary return to the stage a few years ago. The League is appealing for the substantial sum of £100,000.

Mr. J. B. Mulholland is not the president of the Theatres Alliance, as stated in the leading article in our last issue. The energetic proprietor of the King's, Hammersmith, was the first president, and acted for some years as hon. organising secretary, but the former position is restricted to one year, and is at present held by Mr. Wentworth Croke.

Mr. William Mollison had a great reception on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Halifax. By special request he appeared in that thrilling one-act play The Touch of the Child, with which he has been topping the bill at several of Messrs. Moss and Stoll's halls. After the exciting dénouement at the close of the sketch he was recalled time after time. As a special attraction Mr. Mollison will appear in this play in front of The Chorus Lady at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, next week, prior to its first London appearance at the Holborn Empire on Aug. 15.

Miss Annie Hughes started her tour with Miss Tommy most auspiciously at Brighton on July 25, the fashionable visitors of "London-by-the-Sea" all flocking to the Theatre Royal to see the clever actress in what is admitted to be her most successful assumption. Mr. Jerome's play has again evoked unqualified praise from the provincial Press, and its attractiveness is emphasised by crowded houses. Miss Hughes visits the Spa, Scarborough, next week, and will subsequently delight theatregoers at other favourite watering-places, including Ramsgate, Blackpool, New Brighton, and Liverpool.

Miss Alice O'Brien, who has won laurels in grand opera at Covent Garden, the Opéra Comique, Paris, and at Nice, has taken up the rôle of the heroine in The Dollar Princess at Daly's, Miss Lily Elsie being absent on holiday. Miss O'Brien sings the music faultlessly and acts with charming vivacity.

Miss O'Brien has been singing at Covent Garden in Don Giovanni and La Boheme. She created Manon Lescaut in Puccini's work, at Nice, and she was engaged at the State-subventioned Opera Comique in Paris—the scene of Van Zandt's long triumph as Mignon, and a house extremely difficult of access to a foreign artist—almost immediately after a preliminary trial.

Mr. George Alexander has decided to bring the long run of The Importance of Being Earnest to an end in September, by which time the comedy will have attained its 300th performance. Meanwhile the American play, by Mr. Louis Evan Shipman, called D'Arcy of the Guards, will be put into rehearsal, and will figure as the autumn production at the St. James's.

Mr. George Edwardes had nice things to say at the general meeting of the Gaiety Theatre Co., Ltd., on Tuesday about Our Miss Gibbs, which he declared had proved even more successful than The Merry Widow. The shareholders would remember that last year he prophesied that Miss Gibbs would prove a very successful piece, and he was very glad now to be able to say that his prophecy was more than verified. For the time when Our Miss Gibbs ceased to attract—and he thought that was not likely to be for a considerable period—another piece, which bid fair to prove a second Miss Gibbs, was already on the stocks.

They would observe that there was an increase in the receipts of about £11,000, while the working expenses were some £5,000 more, due to the fact that they had been open six weeks more than in the preceding year. The directors had written down the company's assets by a considerable amount, which was a wise precaution, and they proposed to place £10,000 to the reserve fund. The report, which proposed a dividend of 20 per cent. on the year, was adopted unanimously, without discussion, and £1,000 was voted to the directors for their services. Mr. Edwardes was re-elected a director.

Miss Mary Rorke made a praiseworthy defence of the stage at the meeting of the Roman Catholic Congress at Leeds on Sunday, when she read a paper on "The Artistic Side of Woman's Work." Miss Rorke began humorously. Art, she said, was only work disguised as enthusiasm, and it was a mistake to suppose that an artistic life was an idle existence spent in a velvet coat or a dress that looked like a bath towel and fitted like a sack. Artists, in the muddle which they so often made of the art of living, were very much on the same level as philosophers, who generally lived like fools, whereas fools usually lived like philosophers. Carlyle would rise, for instance, from writing "The French Revolution" and throw a leg of mutton out of the window because it was underdone.

As an artist on the stage, the speaker said she was convinced that if there were any girl there present who wanted to go on the stage, nothing she (Miss Rorke) could say or do would prevent her. One of the chief dangers of life on the stage was the idleness during the day. That idleness was responsible for more unhappiness and unfortunate results than any of the temptations to be found inside the theatre. After the actor and actress had passed through the stage door they were too busy to think of wickedness. The dangers of the stage were only the dangers of every-day life, with the limelight thrown on them. It was in the girl's hands. It rested with her whether she found the world a sink of iniquity or a tranquil pool of comparative righteousness.

To the girl who proposed to go on the stage her advice was, "Don't be in a hurry, especially if you are young." Most young girls, on leaving school, were possessed with one of two ideas—either they wanted to enter a convent or they longed to go on the stage. In both cases she should say, "Don't be in a hurry." The passage of a few years might find that the girl who wished to be a nun had drifted into the chorus of a musical comedy, and was leading there a good and happy life; whereas the girl who sighed to go on the stage might find herself in a convent, cheerfully performing her duties.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curzon (Miss Isabel Jay) are enjoying a long motor trip in France. Miss Jay will return to her part in The Balkan Princess at the Prince of Wales's in a fortnight or thereabouts.

Messrs. Samuel French, Ltd., inform us they have taken over the business and acquired the rights of the Dramatic Authors' Agency from Mrs. Douglas Cox. A large number of plays controlled by the agency will now be issued in published form—notably Beauty and the Barge and All-of-a-Sudden-Peggy, and negotiations are pending for the publication of other important pieces.

On looking through the list of plays issued by the famous firm of French, one discovers every author of note now writing for the stage, but there is one important omission—Mr. Somerset Maugham, whose plays would be eagerly sought after and bought by the amateur actor. Lady Frederick, Smith, Penelope, Mrs. Dot, and Jack Straw should bring a harvest from our amateur friends, each one.

On inquiry as to the most acted play in amateur circles during the past season, we were told that the ever-green Private Secretary has held its head higher than any other piece. Pinero's Magistrate and Dandy Dick can apparently never become too well-known, and a strong claim is made by Mr. Hubert Henry Davies' pieces Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace, Cousin Kate, and The Mollusc. Indeed, Messrs. French look to Mr. Davies chiefly to keep them supplied with material for their clients in the future. Mr. Davies' characterisation, situations, dialogue, and cleanly plots are admirably suited to amateur requirements.

The directors of the Royal General Theatrical Fund held the usual monthly meeting at their office, Savoy House, 115-116, Strand, on Tuesday last. Mr. Chas. K. Cooper occupied the chair, and Messrs. Alfred H. Elliott, Bassett Roe, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary) were present. Three candidates for election as members of the Fund were put forward. It was agreed that the office be closed next week, and also from Sept. 12 to 17, inclusive.

The prize of £300 offered by Mr. Otho Stuart through the Governors of the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, was presented to the authoress, Josephine Preston Peabody (Mrs. Lionel Marks), at the conclusion of the performance of The Piper, of the production of which on the 26th ult. a detailed notice appeared in our last issue. The presentation was made by Mr. Archibald Flower, chairman of the governors of the theatre, and Mrs. Marks replied in a happily phrased speech, referring especially to the common regard for Shakespeare as a tie between the British and American nations.

For his revival of T. W. Robertson's Ours on Wednesday evening next Mr. Robert Arthur has made a very happy engagement in the dramatist's daughter, Miss Maude Robertson, who makes her reappearance on the stage to play Lady Shendryn. Mr. Jas. Carew will play Hugh Chalcot, Miss Rosie Begarnie, Mary Netley, and other rôles will be allotted to Mr. O. B. Clarence, Mr. Fred Permain, Mr. Godfrey Tearle, Mr. William Rokeby, and Miss Adeline Bourne.

Miss Gladys Archbutt's little brown Pomeranian "Blarney" died, to the regret of all, on Monday of gastritis. "Blarney" was quite a famous doggie, having played parts at Terry's Theatre and in Mrs. Ponderbury's Past, and was also a picture postcard beauty.

Mr. Percy Hutchison, supported by his Wyndham's Theatre company and production, commenced his autumn tour of Brewster's Millions on Monday at the Opera House, Blackpool. His reappearance as Monty Brewster, the part in which he has made such a conspicuous success, was enthusiastically welcomed by a big audience. Other companies under the control of the Hutchison management include Don, with Miss Emma Hutchison, which received a most favourable greeting at Buxton; and the North and South companies of Smith, appearing respectively at Southport and Brighton, also opened to packed houses.

The courtesy of the Lancashire Aero Club was extended to Mr. Percy Hutchison, who accepted their kind invitation to become an honorary member during his visit to Blackpool.

Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's season at the West Pier, Brighton, started on Monday with Smith, the reception of which by a large audience was so enthusiastic that its success in the provinces should be assured. Next week Mr. Hutchison will present Don, which has proved as big a success in the provinces as it was in London, and is booked at all the principal theatres for the autumn.

Mr. Graham White, the popular and intrepid aviator, visited the Opera House, Blackpool, on Thursday night with a party, and between the acts had a long chat with Mr. Percy Hutchison, who is playing to enormous business with Brewster's Millions.

An important première is announced for Monday evening next at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, in the production by Mr. J. E. Watson of The Sowers, a play dramatised by Messrs. David Kimball and Montagu S. Wolf from the celebrated novel of the same name by the late H. Seton Merriman. A powerful cast has been engaged, amongst whom are Messrs. Edgar Stevenson, Clifton Anderson, H. K. Ayliff, J. Hastings Batson and Charles Esdale, Mesdames Kathleen Russell, Frances Davie, and Maxine Hinton. The incidental music has been composed by Mr. Horace Middleton, and the play will be produced under the stage direction of Mr. Clifton Anderson.

The powerful story has been very closely adhere to, and, judging by the rehearsals, a striking success is anticipated. The production is on an elaborate scale, and the sack of the castle and the thrashing of the spy promise to be very stirring scenes. It may be remembered that With Edged Tools—a play from another of Seaton Merriman's novels—was produced under Mr. Mulholland's auspices at the King's Theatre some years ago, and has been successfully touring the provinces ever since.

Mr. Gerald du Maurier begins his season of management at Wyndham's on Sept. 1 with "George Paston's" (Miss E. M. Symonds) Nobody's Daughter. Mr. Frank Curzon has accordingly arranged with Mr. Charles Hawtrey to transfer The Naked Truth from Wyndham's to the Prince of Wales's at the end of this month. A week or two later The Naked Truth will be succeeded by a play adapted from the French, to be called Inconstant George.

Nearly three weeks have elapsed since the dying actor Weldon Atherstone was found on the back doorstep of an empty flat at 17, Prince of Wales-road, Battersea, and his murderer is still at large. Miss Earle is taking a holiday at a small French watering-place, and holds herself at the disposition of the police for the adjourned inquest on September 17.

Some startling evidence it is said has come into the possession of the police during the past week in connection with the Battersea flat case, the full particulars of which will probably not be received until shortly before the inquest is resumed in September. At the moment, however, the authorities decline to disclose the new theory upon which they are working. It would appear, however, that they attach very great importance to the discovery of the missing revolver, and, indeed, they are of opinion that if the weapon could be found the mystery would be entirely solved.

The police (says the Standard) find a curious difficulty in another direction. In their inquiries among members of the dramatic profession they have found a reticence which might almost be described as general. Owing to the commendable comradeship which exists among actors, Anderson's friends are apparently loath to give information from a fear that some casual suggestion might lead to the discovery of circumstances which might reflect upon him.

Mr. Douglas Eley is now entering on his eleventh year as producer and manager of A Message from Mars, and has been retained for another year by Mr. Fredk. Mouillot.

Mr. Montagu Love, after his two years' engagement with Messrs. Harding and Cooper in The Flag Lieutenant, is now playing the leading part in Mr. Percy Hutchison's North Company of Smith which opened at Southport on August Bank Holiday.

According to the New York Herald's correspondent, Mr. William A. Brady devoted his time during his visit to Europe to booming the American dramatist. He predicts that in two years the English managers will be scouring America for plays for their theatres, the same as American managers have in the past scoured England. Nobody has a greater faith in America as a happy hunting ground for plays and playwrights than he.

"I refer," said Mr. Brady, "to the best type of plays, of course—such as Secret Service, Held by the Enemy, The Henrietta, and all such plays as are turned out by men like Mr. Gillette and Mr. Augustus Thomas. Once set the fashion here with two or three big winners, and the trick will be done. Just look at your managers in London—all relying on the revival of old successes. Now, you know old successes will not last for ever. What will they do then? They can't go to Paris or Berlin any more, for they have both been squeezed dry. They have got to go to New York."

The Promenade Concerts begin at the Queen's Hall on Saturday next, and an attractive musical series is promised. The directors have decided to include in the répertoire a number of orchestral novelties and airs, among which will be an overture, a "Serenade for a small orchestra," a "Fantasia on English Folk Songs," and a set of variations on "The Vicar of Bray." An agreeable feature of the list of works put forward is the prominence accorded to the younger school of British composers, for out of a total of sixteen new compositions, twelve are representative of native talent.

A very pleasing ceremony marked the closing scenes of the performance given on July 27, the occasion of the sixth benefit accorded to Mr. Louis J. Beard, the popular manager of the Grand Theatre, Luton. After the curtain had fallen on the interpretation of The Area Belle, by the local Amateur Dramatic Society, Mr. Beard was called to the front and presented with a handsome silver salver.

Mr. Robert Loraine, who under the pseudonym of "Mr. Jones" has been winning fame as an aviator, secured second prize in the Blackpool competitions on Monday. "Mr. Jones," who rode a Farman biplane, went out for the duration prize at 3.15, and experienced a thrilling adventure, a message reaching the aerodrome a few minutes after five to the effect that he was on a quicksand near St. Annes, but he speedily returned triumphant. "Mr. Jones" said that his difficulty was due to the bagging of the tail of the machine, which nearly pulled him over, forcing him to descend. Otherwise, he said, the journey was beautiful, except while crossing the mouth of the Mersey, where the current met awkwardly for a time, and gave him an exciting battle.

Mr. J. A. Campbell's latest play, The Hand that Rocks the Cradle, has proved a pronounced success. The staging is most elaborate, costly, and full of detail, the Naval Court Martial scene being admired, equally for its technique as for its tensity, and the old coastguard's room in the last act being complete, even to the weather-glass.

"The Little Damozel" has this week been delighting Spa Scarborough audiences. This charming play is visiting for the next six weeks only popular watering places, including Douglas, Blackpool, Yarmouth, Margate, and Harrogate. Return dates have been offered at every town visited.

"The Naked Truth" had a hearty reception at Brighton last week, and at Bournemouth this week holiday-makers have been delighted with the merry play and Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's excellent company.

The ever-popular Under Two Flags will be at the King's Theatre, Glasgow, next week, and at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, the following week. In the course of the next few weeks it will pay its fourth visit to the Marlborough Theatre. "Beauty," Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's thoroughbred horse, has now toured over seven years to take part in Cigarette's nightly ride for life, and has had many wonderful experiences in the course of his stage career.

After a fortnight's vacation, The Nihilist recommenced its tour at the Theatre Royal, Sheffield, and is drawing capital business. Mr. O. Silverstone, part author, senior partner, and general manager of the company, will shortly complete 600 performances of the heavy rôle Prince Alexander. Mrs. O. Silverstone, the original Katrina of the piece, has recently purchased from her husband a full partnership in the attraction, and the company henceforth will be that of Mr. and Mrs. O. Silverstone and Henry Wright.

Visitors to Worthing are promised some theatrical treats during the present month. Among the London successes which Mr. C. Adolf Seebold, the popular proprietor of the Royal, has booked are Havana, Miss Hook of Holland, The Geisha, Girls of Gottenberg, Our Miss Gibbs, and The Gay Gordons. For his sixth annual benefit in the middle of next month Mr. Seebold has secured the romantic costume play My Lady Bellamy, which will be presented by the company controlled by Mr. Alec McLean.

An International Dickens' Testimonial in connection with the centenary next year of the birth of Charles Dickens is suggested in an article in the current issue of the Strand Magazine. The adoption of the scheme will enable the English-speaking world to pay its tribute of gratitude to a great writer and a great man, and at the same time benefit his descendants. It is pointed out that the famous novelist did not live long enough to enjoy the privileges of a copyright law under which a substantial sum would have been reaped in royalties from the enormous sales of his books, and there are now surviving three of his children and seventeen of his grandchildren, some of whom are in circumstances which must pain all lovers of Dickens. Three are in receipt of trifling Civil List pensions.

Their position, it is urged, could be ameliorated if a designed stamp were printed certifying that "a deferred royalty of one penny had been paid," this penny stamp to be purchased by possessors of the novelist's works and affixed in each volume. The plan thus formulated would yield a large sum, the whole of which would be handed over to the representatives of the Dickens' family to make such use of it as they wish. The idea has received the support of numerous famous Dickens lovers, and the stamp will be on sale all over the world next year.

Miss Florence Baines, familiarly known as "The girl who set London laughing," is about to produce a new play, entitled Laughing 'Liza. In another column Miss Baines invites our readers to advise her if such a title has ever been used. If the title is not owned by anyone it would seem to happily describe Miss Baines' style of work.

"Atonement," a play in three acts, by W. V. Garrod, was produced for copyright purposes at the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, on July 30.

Mr. Charles Windermere is meeting with great success on his seaside tour with Where is William? At the Grand Theatre, Llandudno, he opened to a packed house, and this week at the South Parade Pier, Southsea, the play and company were so well received that after the first performance on Monday the management arranged for a return date in three weeks' time. Mr. Windermere is now looking out for a West-End theatre whereat to introduce Where is William? to a London audience at Christmas.

Great improvements have been made in the lighting of the auditorium of the Theatre Royal, Bath, during the recess by the placing of electric brackets around the circles. The vestibules have also been repainted, thus greatly brightening the appearance of this historic house.

The new play by Mr. Hubert Henry Davies, which will serve as Mr. Cyril Maude's autumn production at the Playhouse, will be called A Single Man. The piece is said to resemble the same author's successful play Cousin Kate, produced at the Haymarket in the June of 1903.

Mr. R. F. Douthwaite has been appointed acting manager at the Metropole Theatre, Gateshead, in succession to Mr. Ernest Dixon.

The Lyceum, Ipswich, we understand has been leased for seven years to Mr. W. H. Savery, the manager of the Benson (North and South) Shakesperian Companies, in conjunction with Messrs. Murray King and Clark, the lessees of the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne. The theatre during the vacation has had its annual redecoration, so that the new managers start well equipped for what it is hoped will prove a prosperous enterprise.

Popularly regarded as the German "Ellen Terry," Fräulein Gertrud Giers has died at Lucerne after a serious operation. She began her career as an actress in Cologne at the age of 16, and for some years only appeared in the chief tragedy rôles of Shakespeare and Goethe. She greatly admired the distinguished English actress, and adopted her interpretations of Shakespeare's heroines. Fräulein Giers performed in many cities of Europe and America, and was received with much favour in this country. She retired from the stage some fifteen years ago and settled at Lucerne.

Mr. Edward Compton will on Monday commence another long tour, extending from August 8 to Whit-week, 1911. During the autumn Mr. Compton will spend a month in Ireland, and in the spring will make a two months' stay in Scotland, during which time he will visit all the important towns in the North. Mr. Compton is now in his thirtieth year of tour with Old English comedy, and during that time has worthily upheld the best traditions of the theatrical profession. In the August number of the English Illustrated Magazine there is a very fine article on Mr. Compton and the old comedies, with several very good photos. It gives a concise history of the actor's career, and also some very interesting anecdotes.

Mr. Compton has now several touring companies on the road, being interested, in conjunction with Mr. Wentworth Croke and Mr. Milton Bode, in the tours of The Bishop's Son and The Dawn of a To-morrow. The Garrick Theatre, where Billy's Bargain has been going so successfully, is also being run by them. Owing to Mr. Weedon Grossmith's prior engagements in America, it will be necessary shortly to withdraw the attractive "sensational farce."

Miss Florence Baines has just concluded a very successful tour of the South, and notwithstanding the fact that the play, Miss Lancashire, Limited, has been touring for the past six years, this is the first time that it has been taken into southern towns; in fact, with its continuous tours in Lancashire and Yorkshire, a prejudice was created that it was only suitable for Northern towns. To set this aside, Miss Baines toured Australia and New Zealand. The play is in Devonport this week, and its performance there on Bank Holiday is described by the Western Daily Mercury as the funniest show ever seen on the boards of the Metropole Theatre.

Mr. Oscar Asche, during his recent visit to Australia, had the opportunity of contrasting the wig-makers of the Commonwealth with those of London. "I have been asked," he said to a representative of the Melbourne Herald, "whether I tried very hard to get the Spanish wigs I required for The Honeymoon. I can only say that my representative called on a number of Melbourne firms and was unable to obtain them. The question of having the wigs made never entered into my mind, as they were wanted in two or three days. If any Australian wig-maker can copy, in accordance with requirements, in three days—one day longer than the London wig-maker can do it in—a wig of mine that I will hand them, I will give them double the price paid in London and will donate £10 to any charitable institution that may be selected.

"While it seems to me that a good deal of excellent work may be turned out in Melbourne," continued the popular actor, "is it reasonable to expect that, with the small demand here for theatrical wigs, they should be able to make these of the quality, and in the time, of a London wig-maker, like, say, Clarkson, upon whom the late Coquelin, Sarah Bernhardt, and other leading French actors and actresses, as well as practically all the leading London theatrical people, have bestowed, and bestow, their patronage? Sarah Bernhardt goes specially to London to Clarkson to have her wigs made. It does not seem reasonable that Melbourne wig-makers should, therefore, assert that they can equal the work, both as regards time and quality, of such skilled wig-makers, and the fact that I was unable to obtain the wigs I required in time supports my contention."

It is no easy thing to enter and become a pupil at the French Conservatoire. On the contrary, only a certain number of pupils are taken, and the entrance examination is exceptionally hard, especially for foreigners. "I have known English girls who have gained great honour in their own country," says a writer in the Court Journal, "attempt in vain to pass the golden portals of the Paris Conservatoire, and under all circumstances there is always a period of waiting before the admission can be obtained.

"It is the branch consecrated to dramatic art which, according to Sarah Bernhardt, Le Bargy, and Muratore, is in most need of reform. At present there is one, and one only, director of the whole institution, whereas there should be a separate one appointed for each branch of work, and one who would understand the particular needs of each. Then Sarah Bernhardt, the greatest actress of the age, would like particular attention to be paid to the qualifications of pupils before they are admitted to the study of dramatic art—youth counts for much, physical beauty, a clear voice—and absolutely impartial judges at the examinations.

"Le Bargy, whom as an actor we have all appreciated in England, would actually like the male pupils to study the methods of the English comedians! What a triumph for our Teddy Paynes, George Grossmiths, and George Graves! They have the unqualified approval of the great and impeccable Le Bargy! He also advises all pupils to visit museums and study the great works of art in painting and sculpture, and he would like to see scholarships founded which would enable pupils to travel and observe the methods employed by actors and actresses in England, Italy, and Russia."

Owing to the indisposition of Mr. Allan Wilkie, Mr. John Paley undertook the part of Malvolio at the matinée performance of Twelfth Night at the Opera House, Buxton, on the 23rd ult.

The Lyceum production of The Fighting Chance started its tour at the New Theatre, Cardiff, on Monday. The play has met with a brilliant reception, and promises to beat anything yet sent on tour by Popular Playhouses, Ltd. The tour is under the direction of Mr. Ellis J. Preston, and the company, an exceptionally strong one, includes Messrs. Austin, Milroy, Sidney Vautier, Arthur Elwyn, and Misses Marie Duncan, Dorrie Roberts, and numerous others.

Mr. Henry Wolston sailed on Saturday per s.s. Norman for South Africa. The previous Thursday Mr. Wolston was approached by Mr. Walter Melville with regard to a visit to Africa to play the leads in his répertoire company. At first he naturally thought that the notice was too short, but at five o'clock the following evening decided to accept Mr. Melville's offer—quick work undeniably. Mr. Wolston has done exceptionally good service in this country. The last part he played in England was that of John Storm in Hall Caine's play The Christian, in which part he scored a success.

A new farce, entitled Lovely Women, by Paul Rubens and Harold Whitaker, figured among the Old Stagers' performances at Canterbury this week, and was produced on Monday. Mr. Whitaker himself appeared in the piece, and the clever company of amateurs included Lady Susan FitzClarence, Mrs. Charles Crutchley, Miss Sylvia Campbell, and Mrs. Hugh Brodie.

"The Bad Girl of the Family," which has enjoyed such remarkable popularity at the Aldwych, has reached the Antipodes, and had its first production at His Majesty's Theatre, Perth, Western Australia, on July 9. The melodrama, which, it will be remembered, is from the pen of Mr. Frederick Melville, was played by Mr. George Marlow's company, with Miss Nellie Fergusson in the title-rôle.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Playwright and Stableboy.

It is singular that the claims of Thomas Holcroft, stable boy, actor, playwright, novelist, and translator, were entirely overlooked in the celebrations of centenaries last year. It is now over one hundred years since he died, and his Road to Ruin has brought success to many a theatre. Holcroft, the son of a shoemaker, horse dealer, and pedlar, was born in Orange-court, Leicester Fields, on Dec. 10, 1745. His father's fortun fell so low that he was compelled to become a pedlar, and he and little Tom tramped the country trading in pottery, rags, buckles, buttons, pewter spoons, or anything else that would turn an honest penny. After an interval in a stable-yard at Newmarket, hungry, friendless, and penniless, he accepted an offer, due to a chance meeting with Macklin, to join a theatrical company in Ireland.

A One-night Production.

After seven years' wandering on the Continent, during which he acquired proficiency in French, German, and Italian, he came to London just at the time when Sheridan became manager of Drury Lane. But engagements were not to be had for the asking, and as a last desperate resource he wrote his comic opera The Crisis; or, Love and Fear, which Mrs. Sheridan was induced to read. It was performed at Drury Lane Theatre in May, 1776, for one night only.

A Vagabond Author.

His experiences as a strolling player were turned to account in his novel, "Alwyn; or, The Gentleman Comedian," where he is disguised under the name of Hilkirk. His first comedy Duplicity, a piece in five acts, was first performed at Covent Garden, Oct. 13, 1762; but after a few nights the play was withdrawn. He succeeded better with his translation of Beaumarchais' Mariage de Figaro, for which he had gone to Paris, and with his friend Bonneville he visited the theatre until they were almost letter-perfect in the words. This brought him £600. For his translation of the King of Prussia's works he received £1,200.

His Masterpiece.

His Road to Ruin, it is said, carried his fame into every corner of the Kingdom where there was a playhouse, and his profits were £1,300. But the joy of success, says the Pall Mall Gazette, was marred by the tragedy of his eldest son, who, after robbing him of £40, had committed suicide. He wrote several sacred dramas. The closing years of the century saw him in Hamburg, a fugitive from his creditors; and the printing business which he established on his return to England ended in complete failure. Then came long illness, ending with his death in Clipstone-street, Marylebone, on March 23, 1809.

St. Swithin and the Summer Closure.

Mr. Stephen Fiske writes in Sports of the Times: "St. Swithin was finally abolished this year. It is strange that the silly superstition of the foolish curse of a mythical monk should have endured through so many centuries; but there are others just as silly. A moment's reflection would show that, if a monk's curse could control the weather for thousands of years and at distances of thousands of miles, the annual changes of the calendar would bring St. Swithin's day into another month. In New York there was a fair test. Not a drop of rain fell on Friday, July 15, sacred to St. Swithin, and according to tradition we should have had no rain for forty days and nights. On the Saturday night and Sunday morning it poured, and St. Swithin was drowned. The coolness that followed was most refreshing. But to say that we must expect hot weather in July is like saying that twice one makes two. Whether the theatres should close on account of the heat is a different question. I believe that all the year-round theatres are a necessity is every well-regulated metropolis, and that the public would soon grow up to them and support them.

Bernard Shaw and "Reward."

Mr. Mervyn McPherson, the secretary for the Western Counties of the Anti-Socialist Union, according to the Bath Chronicle of the 4th inst., made an extraordinary speech at an Anti-Socialist meeting in that town. He said although Mr. George Bernard Shaw, the author, was a Socialist, he did not believe he would write his plays unless he thought he was going to get a reward for them. He (Mr. McPherson) on one occasion discussed Mr. Bernard Shaw with an actor who got a large number of plays from Mr. Shaw.

Moral Approbation and Bargains.

Mr. Shaw talked of moral approbation, and said under Socialism men would produce works of art for the community; but when Mr. Shaw produced his wonderful plays he did not produce them for the good of the community or for moral approbation, but he was in the habit of striking a harder bargain with actor-managers than any other playwright with whom they dealt. Mr. McPherson said he did not blame Mr. George Bernard Shaw for getting all he could for his plays, but he did blame him, inasmuch as that while he bargained for the last halfpenny for his work he said that under Socialism a man was going to write plays and give them to the world for moral approbation.

"My Little Dutch."

I've got a pug—a wee Dutch pug—she's most loquacious,
She has the sweetest, quaintest ways, when not rapacious;
She hath a soul (for souls dogs have, there's no denying),
But tho' she tries to do her best, she's very trying.
In eating things she shouldn't touch she is voracious,
Of all the dogs I've met she is the most audacious.

I call her Jane—just wee plain Jane—our unmix'd blessing,
Jane! whose fawn-hued form was made for much caressing;
She rules the house, and mischief she is e'er inventing,
She spends her days in doing wrong and then—repenting.
You can't an angry word to Jane be oft addressing,

Cicero and Mal-de-Mer.

"One of the most curious errors as to seasickness," says the Daily Chronicle "Office Window," "is that it is a suffering which the sturdier ancients did not know. The statement has been made over and over again, in French and in English. Really there is plenty of allusion to the trouble in the ancient classics. Above all there was that bout of sea-sickness which, according to Seneca, cost Cicero his life. It was so bad that rather than endure it any longer he put back to land, risking certain death at the hands of Mark Antony's agents if they caught him, as they did. Our very word 'nausea' is simply Greek, meaning literally 'shippiness.'"

We shall be obliged if our readers will send us any amusing anecdotes they may hear, or accounts of any quaint incidents they may witness while acting or rehearsing.

Effective lines and situations abound in the interesting romantic drama His Indian Wife, Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's autumn production at the Elephant and Castle. The opening scene is an Indian Encampment, where we learn that Hubert Ainsworth, a wealthy Englishman, prospecting for gold and big game hunting, has been seriously injured and taken prisoner by a tribe of Indians. He has been nursed back to health by Wild Rose, the daughter of the chief, White Eagle, and the girl has fallen in love with him, although he is quite unaware that he has her heart. Two of the tribe, Wolfsfang and Lonely Star, love the daughter of their chief passionately, and the former is for having Ainsworth killed—Lonely Star, being content to rely on the verdict of White Eagle—who has always been a just and good ruler. White Eagle himself is an Englishman who, some twenty-five years since, left home in disgrace, he having been blamed for offences committed by younger brother. White Eagle informs Ainsworth he may go unharmed if he will wed Wild Rose; but the Britisher is not inclined to marry anyone he is told to. The devoted Lonely Star tells Ainsworth of Wild Rose's love for him, and decides that if she weds the Englishman he will watch over them, and Ainsworth is not long in making up his mind to marry the Indian maiden when he has seen her. The act ends with White Eagle offering Ainsworth his liberty without imposing any conditions whatever; but the latter prefers to stay with the tribe and make Wild Rose his bride.

In the next act, Sir Walter Kingsley's bungalow, eight years later, Ainsworth calls on Sir Walter, an eminent physician, to ask him to come at once to White Eagle, who is seriously ill. Sir Walter's wife, Lady Grace, cherishes an unholy pasison for Ainsworth, whom she has known years before in England. Indeed, she has a locket with a secret spring, which holds a portrait of the hero, and an inscription beneath, in which she confesses her love for him. When she meets him she speaks disparagingly of his Indian wife; but he is too happy with Wild Rose and their little son Lennie to listen calmly to the jealous woman's cruel outpourings, and tells her plainly what he thinks of her. Then it is that she is determined to separate the devoted couple. Ainsworth has bought a revolver in a case for Lennie, and Lady Grace obtaining possession of it, places therein the locket and a note which will arouse the jealousy of Wild Rose, who will open it. The plan works admirably, and Wild Rose is greatly distressed at the thought that her husband is unfaithful to her, and faints. Further mischief is wrought by Wolfsfang, who, finding the note by her, and recognising the great similarity between her writing and Lady Grace's, tears off the signature and nails it to a tree. Ainsworth, coming on the scene, and finding it, imagines Wild Rose has a lover, and without asking for an explanation, leaves her. There is a very affecting scene here, where little Lennie endeavours to reconcile his father and mother, and also some very effective business where the youngster frequently thwarts Wolfsfang, and threatens to shoot him if he dishonours Wild Rose. There is also an exciting knife duel between Wolfsfang and Lonely Star. In this act Sir Walter Kingsley, who turns out to be the younger brother of White Eagle, comes to the Indian encampment to make reparation for his conduct of years ago, offering to give up his title and estates. White Eagle, however, is quite happy with the tribe, and decides not to leave them.

In the third act—the Ballroom at Ainsworth Hall, Hubert is seeking consolation in the brandy bottle, but he cannot forget his Indian wife and youngster, and has made a drawing of them, which he shows Sir Walter Kingsley. Lady Grace in this scene declares her passion for him, but he indignantly tells her to leave the house, Sir Walter, who has overheard the conversation, thanking him for saving his honour. Once again Lady Grace implores Ainsworth to become her lover in a later scene (Hubert Ainsworth's Bedroom) with the same result, and here he learns who it was that wrote the letter which has caused all the unhappiness. Persuading Lady Grace to confess all to her husband, and endeavour to make amends for the mischief she has wrought, he starts off post haste for the Indian forest.

Here he meets his Wild Rose, but she is not inclined to forgive him for his cruel treatment of her. The intervention of Lennie and the advent of Lady Grace, who confesses all, lead to a reconciliation between husband and wife. Then it is discovered that the boy is missing. He has been taken away by Wolfsfang to the cave of the Mad Medicine Man, there to be slowly tortured to death. Only one of the tribe knows the trail, Lonely Star, and he is dying. The devoted Indian, however, will make one last effort to save the lad he loves, and he just manages to crawl along to the cave in time to prevent Dakuta, the Mad Medicine Man, from completing his horrible work. He has previously despatched Wolfsfang, and dies happy in the knowledge that he has saved the child of the woman he loves.

A capital all-round presentation of the play was given by the excellent company engaged, Mr. Arthur Hinton being a manly and convincing exponent of the part of the happy-go-lucky Englishman of the first act, his handling of the later episodes, particularly the bedroom incident with Lady Grace, being very praiseworthy. Very impressive, too, were the scenes with Wild Rose, a part that was cleverly portrayed throughout by Miss Leila Zillwood. Miss Zillwood both looked and acted the part of the devoted young Indian girl admirably, her performance being a very natural, easy, and meritorious one. The malicious Wolfsfang was convincingly played by Mr. Graham Winsford, the hatred of the Indian for the paleface and his passion for Wild Rose being skilfully shown; Mr. Travis Green as the faithful Lonely Star submitted an impressive and thoroughly sound enactment; a dignified and altogether excellent representation of the chief, White Eagle, was submitted by Mr. Gerald Byrne; Mr. G. Moreton Williams did all that was possible with the rather unconvincing character of Sir Walter Kingsley, playing admirably throughout; and the boy Lennie was naturally and amusingly represented by Master Max Gumpert. The authoress herself undertook the unthankful rôle of Lady Grace Kingsley, and skilfully indicated the woman's ungovernable passion for Ainsworth, her acting in the later episodes being very good indeed. The abundance of comic relief was mainly supplied by Mr. Tod Squires as Billy Twiggle, Ainsworth's manservant, and his droll antics, amusing sayings, and ludicrous behaviour, generally were the cause of much mirth on Monday. He was ably assisted in the fun-making by Miss Nellie Richmond as an alert and astute French maid, and by Miss Laura Wright as the massive and comical negress, Wild Duck. The other parts were all carefully and capably played. The drama was excellently mounted and put on, the picturesque Indian Forest scenes being especially admired.

"NICK CARTER, DETECTIVE."

Nick Carter ..... Mr. J. Forbes Knowles
Eustace Lee (Capt. Nero) .. Mr. Raymond Thomas
Dave Crowley ..... Mr. William Burgess
Bill Colson ..... Mr. Reginald Turner
Rathburne ..... Mr. L. C. Utley
Bud Mason ..... Mr. Richard Nugent
Inspector Lilson ..... Mr. J. Turnbull
Horatio Timmins ..... Mr. Harry C. Momber
George Slade ..... Mr. Will Ellythorne
Mr. Kentz ..... Mr. J. H. Royce
Robert Fisher ..... Mr. A. Sinclair
Matilda Timmins ..... Miss Nellie Fern
Bessie Timmins ..... Miss Nancy Lawrance
Stephanie ..... Miss Nellie Shirley
Nancy ..... Miss Nellie Waddington
Wardress ..... Miss Eva Kenyon
Cyril Carter ..... Little Hilda Vokes
Madeline Carter ..... Miss Helena Walbran

This, the latest production from the pens of those well-known playwrights, Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck, is likely to prove as popular as any of its predecessors, and was accorded a flattering reception on its production on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Woolwich. The play opens with Nick Carter married to Madeline. Previously she had been forced to marry Eustace Lee, alias Captain Nero, the chief of a gang of thieves, supposed to have died in prison, but who obtains his release under the guise of a fellow-criminal whom he greatly resembles. Madeline and Nick Carter are on a visit to Horatio Timmins' villa at Epping, where Madeline encounters Eustace Lee, who, having heard of her marriage, taunts her, and tries to get her into his power. At a critical moment Bud Mason, traitor of the gang, turns up; also shortly after another member, Dave Crowley, who denounces Mason to the gang. Captain Nero shoots Bud Mason with Nick Carter's revolver, which Madeline had in her possession for her protection. The police are raiding the place, and all the gang escape by a secret passage, except Madeline, who has been decoyed to the rooms of Captain Nero by Stephanie. Nick Carter arrives with a posse of police, and finds his wife with a revolver in her hand and the dead body of the traitor Mason lying at her feet.

In the opening of the second act, Timmins, a bank messenger, is "enjoying" his monthly "day off," his blustering wife making him do the housework, which the down-trodden, henpecked "hubby" does to the best of his ability. There is also the daughter and her fiancé, George Slade; the comedy provided by this quartette in this scene and others relieving the severe tension of the play. Madeline is incarcerated for attempting suicide; but, owing to the extenuating circumstances in connection therewith, is released, and on leaving the prison she is met by her husband Nick, who begs her to return to her home and boy. On a promise of secrecy, and that the boy shall never know his mother's shame, she consents to return. Meantime, the boy has been kidnapped by the Captain's orders, so that he has a hold over Madeline should she inform against him. Nick then pleads with her to explain to him the mystery that surrounds her, which, after a deal of coaxing, she does. He swears to run the Captain to earth, and rid himself of the monster.

In Inspector Lilson's office, in Act III., Nick Carter explains to his chief a scheme whereby he has hopes of ensnaring the Captain at the rendezvous of the gang, the Mulberry Tree Inn, kept by one of their members, Crowley. Here the Captain's first wife, whom he has discarded, is a drudge and kitchen wench, and is usually under the influence of liquor. Nick disguises himself, and, as previously arranged, relieves Timmins of his watch, &c. He then makes off, but is captured, and on being searched nothing is found on him. Crowley, however, after Nick has been released, produces the stolen articles from the lining of Nick's hat. Under a threat of handing him over to the authorities, Crowley extracts a promise from Nick to join the gang, as they are short-handed. After plentifully supplying him with liquor, he is handed a drugged tankard, and whilst his "new pals" are out of the room he sprinkles some upon the floor and his clothes to give an odour, and throws the remainder out of the window. The "medicine" has apparently done its work when the gang return, and they decide to make him the false scent should the police detect their scheme. They plan to rob the guard's van, in which is being despatched a safe with specie value £180,000. Whilst in the middle of their conversation an old member arrives, and by a mark on the sleeping man's clothes penetrates the disguise, and unfolds the person of Nick Carter. Nick receives a rough handling, and finally is bound, and a rope is passed round his neck; another, which would release a trap-door, is placed near a lighted candle, which, when burnt to a certain distance, would destroy the cord, release the trap, and hang Nick. Mr. Timmins, who has become an amateur detective, arrives on the scene and saves the situation, and averts the terrible death which would have befallen Nick. Whilst this is taking place Colson returns, and a terrific fight ensues, extending from the house-top, through a skylight into a stable. There, of course, Nick foils his pursuers, and gets away.

In the last act, which opens in the banker's office, Nick explains a conversation he has overheard in connection with the plot to rob the bullion van at a siding. He obtains the bank manager's consent to his plans, which will not only enable him to save the gold, but also his wife and child, who are in the power of the Captain. To the driver of the train, who is none other than George Slade, Bessie's fiancé, he gives instructions to come to his help if required. The Captain's gang, who are at a disused hut near the siding, where Madeline and Cyril are prisoners, leave to make final preparations for their coup, when Madeline escapes, and runs to the "points," pulls the lever over, and thus shunts the train on the wrong line. The bullion van, which has been detached, is left behind, and the gang proceed to plunder it; but are surprised to find, on opening the safe-door, Nick Carter instead of money. In the fight which ensues Nick is wounded and placed on the metals. Madeline, while reversing the lever, is fired at by the Captain. The two shots had been the signal given by Nick Carter to the driver, Slade, who, with police and railway men, comes to his relief and captures Nero and his accomplices.

As Nick Carter Mr. J. Forbes Knowles gives a forceful rendering of the detective, his acting being most powerful and refined. The crafty subtleness of Eustace Lee, alias Captain Nero, was admirably depicted by Mr. Raymond Thomas, as also is that of his tool, Crowley, as enacted by Mr. William Burgess. Mr. Reginald Turner does well as the ticket-of-leave man, Bill Colson, and is ably supported by Mr. Richard Nugent as Bud Mason. Mr. Harry C. Momber extracts a large amount of fun from the part of Timmins, his scenes with his wife, as played by Miss Nellie Fern, being very humorous. They receive valuable assistance from Miss Nancy Lawrance as Bessie and Mr. Will Ellythorne as George Slade. Miss Nellie Shirley enacted the decoy, Stephanie, to a nicety. The Nancy of Miss Nellie Waddington was a capital study of a difficult part; Little Hilda Vokes was charming as Cyril Carter; and Miss Helena Walbran as Madeline was delightful.

Mr. Eric Williams, the well-known elocutionist, is continuing his successful series of recitals in the Concert Room of the Cliftonville Hotel, Margate, before large and appreciative audiences. The recitals will continue throughout the season.

Margaret Catchpole is a story of real life, having been dramatised by Mr. Walter Frith from Mr. Cobbold's chronicle published under the same title. At the close of the first performance Mr. Laurence Irving intimated that people expressed surprise when he and his wife went on the music halls, but the money requisite for that production had been earned by himself and Miss Hackney on the halls, and it remained to be seen whether he would lose that money. The character of the Suffolk heroine is potentially great in a dramatic sense, but Mr. Frith's great fault is lack of unity. He calls it a costume drama, but could have styled it pure unadulterated melodrama. The redeeming feature is that the acting, as would be expected from the principal names on the programme, is much better than one is accustomed to see in melodrama of this character.

At the Priory Farm, near Ipswich, at a sheep-rearing feast we are introduced to Jack Barry, the brother of the local Preventive Officer. Jack, in response to the demand for a toast, declares his love for Margaret, and his admiration for her constancy to her smuggler lover, Will Laud. Later Margaret admits her folly to Jack but protests her inability to let her good sense control her affections. Jack leaves her, and the evil genius of the piece, the leader of the smuggling gang, and the sworn and secret enemy of Margaret herself, the crafty-looking John Luff, enters with a present from Laud. Luff adds that he is anxious to have a good look at the pretty Margaret, who is constantly spoken of by Will. Upon his departure Margaret examines the present, and is in high spirits when her lover enters. Margaret, after vainly endeavouring to persuade him to give up his evil ways, is lured to Nacton Creek to see a cargo "run"—a most effective scene. Old Luff and a confederate are seated at the foot of a rock. Luff relates the story of how he was once shot and lamed by the father of Margaret Catchpole, now dead. Her brothers had left the country, and nothing remains but to take revenge out of the girl. His villainy is apparent, and we are prepared for the attempted abduction of Margaret when she appears. But Jack Barry, always a faithful suitor, arrives at the convenient moment, and there is a struggle for possession of the girl. Laud fires his pistol, and Barry drops wounded. The smugglers clear off as the Preventive Officer and his men rush forward. Barry, for Margaret's sake, tells his brother he does not know who shot him.

In Scene 3 Jack has recovered from his injury, and receives Luff, who announces that Will Laud has been drowned. Jack breaks the news to Margaret, and again vows his love for her. Mrs. Clayton, an Ipswich lady, arrives, and engages Margaret to undertake domestic service; but before the curtain falls Margaret decides to view the bodies on the beach, and see for herself whether Will is a victim of the boating accident. But we soon find that Will is not dead, for outside the Gates of Orwell Park Old Luff once more is attempting to turn Will against Margaret with his fictitious stories of her unfaithfulness; but the adventurer is obstinate, and quarrels with the old villain. Will is a daring sailor, upon whom depends the success of all Luff's smuggling adventures, and he schemes successfully to get him pressed for the Navy. Will is taken by the Press-gang to the naval vessel when he is planning to run away with Margaret. After a time in the Navy Will returns with his guineas to royster at the Salutation Inn, but here again he is reminded of Margaret by the inevitable Luff, who is still intent on the most diabolical scheme of revenge.

To test Margaret's fidelity Will visits the Claytons, but Margaret refuses to see him, not knowing his identity, and he leaves an insulting message for her. Jack Barry also pays a visit, and seeks her love. He leaves a Bible and £50 in notes on the table, and Margaret hands the money to Mrs. Clayton to keep for her. Her peace is short-lived, for she is again confronted by Old Luff, and being anxious to see Will again she is easily bluffed. He persuades her to "borrow" her master's best horse to follow Will to London, whither Luff pretends that he has gone by coach. Margaret is captured on the way, brought back, and finally condemned to death for horse-stealing. The Assize scene is greatly exaggerated and ineffective. Limelight is thrown full on Miss Hackney's face, while others in the scene are almost in darkness, and only her clever acting saves the situation. After Margaret's reprieve and five years in gaol, there follows her meeting with Laud, and her escape with his connivance. They make for the shore (a pretty scene), but she is captured by the Excise officer, brought to the scene by the ubiquitous Luff just in the nick of time to prevent her being murdered by Laud, who is killed by a bullet from the Preventive officer's pistol.

Luff, however, is not done with. Margaret is reprieved once more, but transported to Botany Bay. After a time she receives a free pardon through the good offices of Jack Barry, now a prosperous Colonist. A few minutes after her arrival at Barry's house, Barry himself being on his way from Sydney with the free pardon, Luff arrives, all the viciousness of his character embittered by three years in the penal colony. His plan is to kill Barry and steal his money for the purpose of making his escape. Finding Margaret he schemes to make her an instrument of his design, and then to kill her, leaving her dead with a stained record. This is, of course, frustrated by an arrow from the unerring bow of "Woolly Jim," a black servant, and Margaret is left to live happily with Jack Barry.

There are twenty-four actors in the play, but Mr. Irving as Luff and Miss Hackney as Margaret are, of course, the most prominent. Both give convincing representations of their respective characters. Mr. Irving's study of the old, scheming smuggler is superb, being in no way exaggerated, as no doubt it would be in the hands of a less experienced actor. Miss Hackney's part is a trying one, but she is equal to all demands, whether in emotional or natural situations. Of the remainder of the company, considerable praise is due to Mr. Frank Esmond (Will Laud) and Mr. Rupert Harvey (Jack Barry), who rendered admirable support.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, Thursday, Aug. 4.—An utter dearth of novelties has marked the past week. The theatres are, with few exceptions, open, and by no means ill attended, for Berlin is full of visitors and foreigners, as is the usual custom at this season of the year. The managers, however, knowing that their regular audiences are absent from town, contenting themselves with repeating the bill of last season for the benefit of country cousins. A remarkable number of new plays will be produced as soon as the coming season commences, which will be in about five weeks' time. The Royal Schauspielhaus intends reviving Molière's Tartuffe, with new scenery and costumes. The translation used will be that of Dr. Ludwig Fulda, one of the best of that eminent writer's works. Herr Staegemann will give the title-rôle, Frau Nascha Butze the Dorine, Fräulein von Mayburg the Elmire, while Herr Krausneck is cast for the part of Orgon, and this forms a quartette of excellence that cannot well be surpassed. A novelty of great interest is the latest drama of the Dutch playwright Herr Hermann Heijermans, which bears the title Die neus Sonne (the new sun). This is the first time that any piece of his has been produced at the Royal Schauspielhaus. Herr Heijermans, who has been a resident for many years in Berlin, writes his plays in German as well as in his native language, and they are usually performed simultaneously in this city and Amsterdam.

"Der Kampus" is another new play announced for early performance at our Royal theatre. Hermann Bahr, the well-known Viennese writer, is the author. The two leading rôles are to be given by Frau Butze and the admirable comedian Herr Vollmer. The novelty which is arousing the most interest in managerial circles, however, is a three-act comedy by Paul Ernst, which, under the title of Der Hulla, will first see the footlights at the Royal Schauspielhaus, with Herr Kainz in the chief character. The best of things are reported of the work: it is said to be full of graceful wit and fantastic in the extreme. It is an intrigue comedy in the style of the Spanish. Haroun al Raschid, the famous calif of the "Thousand and One Nights," and Mustapha, a poet, are the principal figures of the play.

At the Hebbel Theatre a one-act conversational comedy, Ein Kuss auf der Redoute, by the Austrian playwright and publicist Herr Raoul Auernheimer, was put in the bill last night as a curtain-raiser to Wem gehört Helene? the risky farce that is so long holding the boards. There is very little to be said in praise of the piece except its brevity. It was acted so briskly that it took away the breath of the audience, and seemed ended before it had commenced.

Two old friends are still running here—Charley's Aunt, at the Thalia, where it recently celebrated its 800th Berlin performance, and Alt-Heidelberg, which has begun a successful revival at the Volks Oper. Both have been attracting large summer audiences. The Thalia is about to produce a new farce entitled Polnische Wirthschaft, and the house will be closed for several nights before.

The Berliner Theatre has made a tremendous hit with the four-act play Taifun, by Melchior Lengyel. It has passed its 150th performance, and is still proving an attraction. The rôles of the Japanese doctors are remarkably well played, and the success of the piece is well merited.

The Berlin Lokalanzeiger has been publishing some highly-interesting details regarding Frederick the Great's autocratic sway in the realm of art, whereby it is seen that the monarch was as strict in the management of his theatres as he was in military matters, and we now know whence the present Emperor got his amiable despotism. The great King had no opinion of German histrionic art or that of any country but one. French authors and actors were alone worthy of his consideration, and he took no notice of anything else. An extract from one of the many dictatorial letters His Majesty wrote to Baron Arnim (the director of the Royal Theatres) is entertaining. Referring to the then famous prima donna, La Mara, he wrote: "She must sing the arias as I wish to have them sung and drop her obstinancy, unless she wants to share the fate of her husband. He, by the way, is to remain under arrest until further orders. On the other hand, do not overstep your own authority: remember you are not vested with monarchical power. All you have to do is to obey my commands, and that considerably better than you have done lately." That the King, nevertheless, could be on occasion very careful of his artists' feelings is shown by his treatment of the handsome French-Italian dancer, La Barberina, who was a special favourite of his. One of his letters to the lady runs: "I have given my director orders, Mademoiselle, in no wise to overburden you. I would merely request you to be so very kind as to dance when the opera ballet requires it. Regarding comedies, the decision is left entirely to yourself whether you care to dance or not." La Barberina received a fixed salary of £1,000 as Court dancer, but there were many and very remunerative perquisites, for the King was generous enough when it pleased him to be so.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the Council meeting held at 32, Regent-street, on Tuesday, August 2. Present—Mr. Robson Paige, in the chair; Messrs. Langford Reed, Henry Pettitt, Chris Walker, Basil Dean, Murri Moncrieff, C. F. Collings, Miss Rose Cazalet, Miss Joan Pereira, Miss Vita Spencer, and Mr. D. Young, secretary.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

In reply to a letter pointing out that a member was advertising for pupils and using the address of the Association, the secretary was instructed to say that such a practice was contrary to the rules of the Association, and that the Council strongly disapproved of it. It was further decided that a letter be written to the member referred to, drawing attention to the fact that she was breaking the rules of the Association, and asking her to be good enough to discontinue the advertisement.

Dr. F. H. Howitt, of Manor Park, Ilford, was unanimously elected an honorary medical officer of the Association.

The Finance Committee's report was read by Miss Pereira and adopted.

Mr. Robson Paige was re-elected signatory at the bank.

The hon. solicitor reported on three cases.

It was resolved that, subject to Mr. Mote's advice, all cases of bogus management be submitted to the different managerial associations, so that united action might be taken.

It was agreed that all resolutions passed by the Council remain in force for six months, unless subsequently it be the unanimous opinion of the sitting Council that any resolution pased is prejudicial.

Elections.—Janet Hope, Rita Salvage, Agnes Thornton, Herbert Lester.

The secretary reported eight engagements through the agency. Miss Pereira suggested that scribbling paper be placed in the boxes in the writing room, and the attention of the members be drawn to the great waste in notepaper, which could be easily avoided if care were exercised. Miss Pereira also suggested the advisability of sending the illustrated papers monthly to the Charing Cross Hospital, or other institutions which extend their favour to the profession in general.

One of the leading "man dressmakers" of Paris, who designs for many of the French theatres, says that black, reds, and browns detract from a woman's height, while pink, white, and the lighter shades of green considerably add to it.

RINKING GOSSIP.

Rinking at Brighton.

Just now rinking is very popular in Brighton. The Olympia Rink, Church-street, is in tip-top condition, and even on a hot day a twenty minutes' spin over the floor of the "coolest rink in England" is quite invigorating. The Grand Skating Rink, West-street, which has been converted into the "Pop" Winter Gardens for the summer months, makes an excellent place for lunch, afternoon tea or dinner; and there is an excellent band in attendance.

Fun on Rollers.

The skating rink at Tynemouth Palace was crowded to the utmost capacity on the evening of the 27th ult., the occasion being a masked fancy dress and confetti carnival. Much of the success was due to the excellent state of the floor, the Richardson skates, the beautiful sea view, the bright and breezy music, the magnificent coloured limelight effects, and last, but not least, the untiring efforts of the courteous and affable manager, Mr. Knox, who was responsible for the admirable arrangements. The judges were Major Hunter, Mr. R. G. Elder, Mr. Van Gelderen, and Mr. R. Carling. Mr. T. R. Knox acted as M.C., and the prizes were presented by Mrs. Hunter, of Tynemouth. The prize-winners were:—Graceful Skating—Miss Smart, North Shields, and Mr. J. O. Miller, Tynemouth; Two-step Competition—Miss L. Garrick and Mr. J. Boocock, North Shields; Waltzing Competition—Miss McNamee, North Shields, and Mr. J. Boocock; Two-step (backwards) (gentlemen)—Mr. R. Noble, Tynemouth; Barn Dance—Miss Jolcey, Gateshead, and Mr. J. Miller, Tynemouth; Humorous Costume—Mr. M. Sager, Newcastle; Trade Costume—Mr. H. Tagar, Consett; Fancy Costume—Miss Oliver, Gateshead; Mechanical Invention Costume—Mr. A. Allan, Tynemouth; Costume representing a Variety Artist—Mrs. Bates, Tynemouth (Kitty Grey); Costume advertising Tynemouth Palace—Miss Robson, North Shields; Costume representing Tynemouth, Whitley, or Cullercoats—Miss Donkin, Cullercoats.

Skating Championship Race.

The race promoted by the proprietors of the Strand Rink, Grimsby, and held recently, for the mile championship of the district, proved one of the most attractive events ever held at this centre, crowds gathering to witness the competition. It was between T. Crome and W. Appleyard, of Grimsby, and the brothers A. and C. Lofthouse, of Hull, the quartette representing the fastest racers in the two centres. In the first heat T. Crome was drawn against A. Lofthouse, and after allowing the Hull man to make the pace for seven of the twelve laps, the Grimsby representative took the lead and maintained it with ease, winning a good race in 3min. 36sec. In the second heat, W. Appleyard got away on the first two laps, but then C. Lofthouse went to the front, and without ever being really challenged got first past the tape without any great effort in 3min. 38 4-5sec. The final produced a grand race, though from the start the Hull man took the lead, setting a fast pace. Crome kept close behind, and up to the tenth lap there was never more than five or six yards between them. Once only had Crome a chance to get to the front, but he did not take it, and on the eleventh lap C. Lofthouse opened out with a good eight yards to the good, his win being unchallenged to the end, when he led by fully five yards. His time was 3min. 32 2-5sec.

Carnival at Whitley Bay.

A masked and costume carnival was held on the 25th ult. at the Whitley Bay Skating Rink. Messrs. Wallace Bruce and Fred Hardy, both of Monkseaton, officiated as judges, and there was a large entry. Prizes were allotted as follow:—Most effective lady's costume, Miss Lightfoot (snake charmer); most original lady's costume, Mrs. Nicholson (fashions for all); most effective gentleman's costume, Mr. Little (representing Dr. Cook); most grotesque gentleman's costume, Mr. Roddham (organ grinder); best girl's costume (under 15), Miss Mona Elderton (Robinson Crusoe); best boy's costume (under 15), Master John Veitch (jockey). The judges considered Miss Dorothy Hardy, daughter of the rink manager, to have the most effective costume for girls under 15, but she was ineligible for a prize from the rink. Accordingly Mrs. Bruce presented her with a box of chocolates.

Fancy Dress Carnival at Portrush Rink.

A fancy dress carnival possessing many features of attractiveness was held on the Portrush Skating Rink on the evening of the 28th ult., and attracted a large assemblage of spectators. When the electric light flooded the building the scene was charming, the effect of the various costumes being most picturesque. The judge, Mr. Fred Jones, floor manager, had no easy task in deciding the prize winners. After about an hour's skating there was a grand march of the skaters, the prizes being awarded as follow:—Most effective lady's costume, Miss Adams, Rospherine, Strandtown, Belfast, whose costume was of red, white, and blue studded with tiny Union Jacks; most effective gentleman's costume, Mr. H. Benson, Ballymoney, who was dressed as a Viking chief; most original lady's costume, Miss Marjorie MacLaughlin, Breezemount, Coleraine, whose shoes were only visible to the spectators as she cleverly skated inside the case of a grandfather clock; most original gentleman's costume, Mr. David G. Christie, Fountainville, Coleraine, who presented himself in a mass of bandages, wore an eye shield, and propelled himself with a crutch, the whole make-up being in harmony with the wording, displayed on a large card on his back, "The Enthusiastic Beginner." Prior to the carnival a challenge skating race took place between Messrs. A. E. Anderson, Spring-gardens, Coleraine, and P. J. Mains, Lodge-road, Coleraine, Mr. Anderson proving an easy winner.

Rinking at Darlington.

In delightful weather, which, however, could hardly be described as in keeping with the event, the skating rink was on the 27th ult. reopened in Darlington with civic ceremony. Olympia, as the Mayor (Councillar P. Prior) remarked, is a very useful and welcome addition to the pleasures of Darlington, which hitherto has not been too well blessed in that direction, and by the great crowd of fashionably dressed ladies and gentlemen who attended the reopening, and afterwards circled the floor on rollers to the strains of the ladies' orchestra, roller-skating has "caught on" in the Quaker borough, and is likely to be renewed with additional zeal during the coming winter.

Norwich Rinkeries.

The proprietors have closed the old Spring Gardens, Norwich, and resumed roller skating at the Rinkeries, Rose-lane. There are three sessions daily, morning, afternoon, and evening, and notwithstanding the warmness of the weather each session has been well patronised.

Rinkology at Widnes.

On Saturday evening last, the Borough Rink, Widnes, the proprietor of which is Mr. Gar Kiddie, was reopened to the public after the summer vacation. Evidently the popularity of the pastime has not waned in Widnes, for since the inauguration night satisfactory patronage has been bestowed on the "Borough." Visitors had the pleasure of witnessing a most exciting hockey match, in which the Borough beat Halstown Rink Hockey Club by four goals to nil. The Widnes Empire Rink is also doing good business, and, like the Borough, relies for its chief attractions on hockey matches.

"THE KING OF PALESTINE."

Episode of Prophecy, by George Wells and another, Produced at the Shoreditch Olympia on Monday, Aug. 1.

Mischa Malaki .....John Lawson
Laban de Denmar .....A. Royston
The Lord Mayor .....J. H. Clyndes
General Hitchener .....A. Fitzmaurice
General Hergovitch .....C. Stafford
Muriel de Denmar .....Miss Lucille Sidney

One is always prepared for something out of the ordinary in a new sketch with which the name of John Lawson is associated, and his latest production, The King of Palestine—an episode of prophecy, written by George Wells and a "well-known journalist"—is no exception to the rule. A fantasy with many dramatic moments and a stage setting such as has seldom, if ever, been seen on the variety boards, it held the attention of the audience throughout its presentation, and there can be little doubt that it will take its place with the many remarkable successes in Mr. Lawson's répertoire. At the rising of the curtain—time, some years hence—we witness an international congress of the Powers, a number of foreign representatives gloating over the imminent downfall of the British Empire. Great Britain, we gather, is practically in the hands of the enemy, London being left to the mercy of the Boy Scouts. Australia and South Africa are in danger of being taken; and our Dreadnoughts are nearly all disabled. In allotting different portions of the British Empire, the delegates disagree considerably as to who is to have England, no one seeming particularly anxious to possess Ireland or Scotland.

Then enters Mischa Malaki, a Jew, and President of the New Zion State. The Jews, after years of oppression, have found a home and friends in England, and as a consequence they are now rich and powerful, and out of gratitude the eloquent Israelite proposes to do all in his power to help Britain in her hour of need. The other representatives soon after depart, after sneering at Malaki, calling him a dog of a Jew, and generally insulting him. The spirit of great Disraeli then appears, and approves of the plan of action of the President, whom we next see returning to his home in Palestine. Here he meets with much opposition from Laban de Denmar, a Servian married to Malaki's daughter Muriel. Laban is an apostate from the faith. He is ambitious, and if he can get his father-in-law to abdicate he proposes to take his place as president. Malaki, however, is determined to help the "maimed lion," and after a powerful scene between the two men the Israelite gives instructions to a small army of secretaries as to the disposition of various troops, the airship fleet, and a large amount of money. Laban apparently repents, and is entrusted by his father-in-law with an important cypher message. This he reads, intending to telegraph it through to Britain's enemies. The traitor's plan, however, is frustrated by his wife, who cuts the wire and who eventually—"for Zion"—stabs her husband dead. In the last scene, the interior of the Guildhall, peace is declared, Britain having completely vanquished her enemies, and the Lord Mayor, in the unavoidable absence of England's monarch, after thanking Malaki for his timely assistance, crowns him King of Palestine!

Mr. Lawson made an impressive and dignified figure of Malaki, his impassioned delivery of his speeches and his impersonation throughout being a very effective one. The traitorous Laban de Denmar was admirably portrayed by Mr. A. Royston; and Miss Lucille Sidney made a sympathetic and charming figure of the young wife Muriel, especially good being her acting in the final episodes with her husband. The other parts were all capably undertaken. The "episode" was magnificently mounted, the Guildhall scene, with the splendid uniforms and ladies' costumes, being a very brilliant picture.

Charles Henry Smith, aged thirty-four, of 20, Winch-place, Deacon-street, Walworth, was charged on remand, on Thursday, before Mr. Fordham, at West London, with stealing £20 belonging to Exhibitions (Limited), Japan-British Exhibition, Shepherd's Bush. Defendant, it appeared, was employed as stileman at the "Witching Waves" Show, Japan-British Exhibition, and on Bank Holiday left to get his tea as usual, and never returned. He had with him the takings, which, the prosecution averred, amounted to £20. The police were communicated with, and the defendant was arrested on the following day.

When taken into custody by Detective Cameron, he said he was just off to the Isle of Wight to spend a holiday. A sum of nearly £5 was found in his possession, and he declared that that was the only money he took away from the exhibition. Detective Cameron informed the magistrate that the man had hitherto borne a good character, and left the army with a very good sheet. Mr. Fordham observed that, considering the number of men employed in a similar capacity at the exhibition, it was necessary to pass a sentence which should deter others from committing a breach of trust. He sentenced the defendant to four months' imprisonment in the second division.

The rendezvous of W. J. Churchill's famous minstrels at Llandudno might well be termed the natural amphitheatre, though the thousands of visitors to the neighbourhood of the Great and Little Orme call it the Happy Valley. Nature and Art were surely never more felicitously allied; and vast audiences drink in the fine air of the North Welsh hills and listen to sweetest melody at the same time. Mr. Churchill's popularity with visitors and residents alike is not a thing of mushroom growth, and he needs no greater testimonial than the fine audiences drawn daily to the charmed half-circle of artists, who combine so well clean fun and harmony. Mr. Churchill's season ends on Saturday, Oct. 3.

The head office staff and managers of the London Theatres of Varieties, Ltd., are having their annual outing on Sunday, the 14th. They will leave Paddington by the 10.35 for Windsor, where they will board the magnificent steam launch Britannia for a forty miles river trip through beautiful Thames scenery.

The party will consist of gentlemen only, and will be limited to 100. Friends desirous of joining the merry throng are cordially invited to make early application to the manager of any hall controlled by the company, or to Mr. C. Adams and Mr. Stevenson at the head offices, 39, Charing Cross-road, W.C.

The 669th meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association was held on Wednesday, when the following were present:—Fred Herbert (chairman), Arthur Gallimore, Alf Herald, T. C. Callaghan, Jack Straw, W. E. Gillin, and C. Douglas Stuart. The weekly statement showed an increase of forty new members and receipts of £44 4s. 6d. Last week was a record one for business at the London office, sixty-one vouchers being issued and 753 concessions being secured. Mr. E. Seymour, of the Bell Hotel, Aberystwyth, was appointed agent, and the agency at Weston-super-Mare was transferred to Mr. W. Norman, of the Victoria Hotel, Weston-super-Mare.

It is a good many years now since a young and unknown Australian suddenly leapt into fame as the author of an exciting novel, which immediately caught the fancy of the reading public of the whole English-speaking world. "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," without claiming to be a work of genius, or even of any particular merit as a literary effort, was just one of those books that appeal instantly to that vast section of the reading public who do not yearn so much after instruction in the fiction they devour as for the pleasant excitement of following the straightforward story containing a well-preserved mystery right up to the concluding chapters. The nearest approach to the success and popularity of Fergus Hume's book that readers of two decades ago will call to mind was Florence Warden's "House on the Marsh." But, while the latter did not readily lend itself to dramatic adaptation, the Australian novelist's work was recognised at once as containing all the elements of a popular stage-play. This honour was soon accorded to it: "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab" was dramatised, produced at the Princess's Theatre, and has kept the stage ever since.

"The drama's laws the drama's patrons give," and the patrons of the "regular" drama having accepted The Mystery of a Hansom Cab as an abiding dish, it was quite in the natural order of things that the patrons of the variety stage should demand a condensed version of the dainty. Thanks to the enterprise of Miss Louisa Peach, the condensation process has been applied to the play, and the result was presented before a Bank Holiday audience, which immediately set its mark of hearty approval on the venture. It is not stated who is responsible for the new adaptation, but whoever did it has done it well and truly. The well-known story is followed faithfully, all the salient points have been admirably retained, and the plot moves straight away from start to finish without a pause or so much as a false step. Relieved of all the "realistic" effects which are only possible in a play intended to form a whole evening's entertainment, the plot moves quickly but surely to the dénouement, and might even be taken as a model of how such work should be done.

Miss Louisa Peach has been fortunate in gathering around her a company admirably selected to do justice to the author's intention. Miss Peach herself appears as the "slum girl," Sal Rawlins, and adds to her long list of dramatic successes one of the greatest of all. She simply abandons herself to the vulgarity and noble-heartedness of the poor outcast, but her vulgarity—if, indeed, that be the right expression—is never allowed to approach within measurable distance of the offensive. The audience take this heroine of the slums to their hearts on her first appearance, and hold her there till the fall of the curtain. Miss Louisa Peach has never done anything better. Mr. E. Howard Templeton is a fine, manly Brian Fitzgerald, acting with quiet but convincing force and greatly helping to keep up the tone of every scene in which he appears. Mr. H. Gray Dolby is duly stiff and starchy as Mark Fretleby; the Roger Moreland of Mr. C. C. Calvert is a study of quiet and incisive villainy—cool, collected, and heartless. Oliver Whyte has a good representative in Mr. Jack Collinson; and Mr. Henry Rivers is unobtrusive as Kilsip. Miss Gladys H. Walton is bright and agreeable as Madge Fretleby, speaking her lines with admirable clearness. In her one painful scene as Rosanna Moore Miss Brenda Wilton makes a great impression, her delivery of the dying woman's somewhat lengthy speeches never being allowed to become wearisome. Perhaps the most perfectly artistic performances of the evening are supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daly. These sound actors belong to a good old school—a school which taught its pupils to fill in every moment with appropriate by-play, to enunciate every syllable with its due weight and emphasis. Mr. Daly's performance of the old solicitor, Mr. Calton, is an object-lesson to the younger generation of players. Mrs. Daly's Mother Guttersnipe is perfect; the maudlin drunkenness of the besotted old hag is splendidly realistic, while kept within artistic limits. If it be possible to admire a female, even on the stage, dying of delirium tremens, Mrs. Daly is the actress to force our admiration. The play is admirably put on the stage.

Encouraged by the success of the new pavilion recently built on the promenade at Westbrook, the Margate Town Council have unanimously decided to build a much more commodious undercliff pavilion and winter garden, abutting on to their new promenade which has been constructed under the cliff at the Fort. It is proposed to cut the cliff back nearly to the present band-stand on the Fort, and to utilise the roof of the Pavilion as a continuation of the promenade. The plans show a hall 150ft. long by 80ft. wide, giving a floor area of 12,000 superficial feet, less the amount of space taken up by the stage, and the height of the room will be 30ft. The approach to the hall and winter garden from the Fort will be by a wide road at a gentle incline, and the entrance for pedestrians will be by this road or by terraces. The estimated cost is £20,000. The Westbrook pavilion has been built and many other improvements have been effected out of the surplus from the municipal entertainments, in addition to which £2,000 has gone direct to the relief of the rates, and it is anticipated that this new pavilion will add materially to the Corporation's profits. The scheme is to be completed by next season.

Mr. George Robey has been retailing to a Liverpool paper a few stories which relate to his fondness for practical joking. Thus: "It was at Liverpool that the idea of a practical joke occurred to me. Another member of the company and myself were going to London by a train that was usually crowded, so I determined to try and get a compartment to ourselves by frightening everyone else away. We got to the station early, chose our seats, and then I stuck winkle heads all over my face with spirit gum, and wrapped a dirty towel round my head. Everyone who came along shunned me like the plague, and several who got in without noticing me made every conceivable excuse to get out again. One old gentleman, having arranged all his bags, rugs, and other impedimenta, almost had a fit when at last he put on his glasses and saw me.

"He was bound for London like ourselves, but, to escape, pretended to have got into the wrong train, and my friend helped to bundle him, rugs, bags, and all, into one on the other side of the platform, which started before he could get out again, and which was not due to stop till goodness knows where! Evidently complaints were made to the stationmaster, for when we stopped at Leicester the fever cart was on the platform and frantic officials rushed up and down trying to find the plague-stricken individual of whose presence they had no doubt been warned by wire. Fortunately, I had 'cleaned' up meanwhile, so their search was fruitless."

NEW HERNE BAY PIER PAVILION.

The Lord Mayor of London, accompanied by the Lady Mayoress and Sheriffs Rolls and Slazenger, visited Herne Bay on Wednesday to open the new Pier Pavilion. Among those present were Alderman H. E. Davis, Mayor of Gravesend (proprietor of the Gaiety, Chatham), and other Kentish Mayors. The visitors were met on arrival by Mr. E. H. Ramsey, chairman of the local council, who told the history of the pier. He said that the first pier was opened in 1832, and that it was an important factor in the conveyance of passengers from London to Canterbury and other parts of Kent. When the railway was constructed, however, the pier was allowed to fall into disuse. It was pulled down in 1872. It was replaced and opened in 1873 by the then Lord Mayor of London. In 1895 a new company was formed to construct a longer pier. That was commenced in 1896. The company had varying fortunes, and in 1908 the Council acquired it under Act of Parliament for £6,000—a small sum. The council were going to endeavour to show that under municipal control success could be achieved. The pavilion about to be opened had cost just over £5,000, and was part of an expenditure on the pier of £26,000.

Before declaring the pavilion open the Lord Mayor inspected about a score of Army and Navy veterans who are living at Herne Bay, and also several troops of Boy Scouts who are camping in the neighbourhood. The veterans he praised for the services which they had rendered to their country, and pointed to them as examples which the boys should be proud to follow. Cheers were given for his lordship, and the guests moved towards the new pavilion. But the boys were not satisfied; they wanted a further inspection and more speeches, and so the Lord Mayor told them that he was glad to see so many well-set-up boys, and urged them to do with earnestness and thoroughness every task they commenced.

Then the boys demanded a speech from the Lady Mayoress, and after some hesitation her ladyship consented. Boys were such funny things, she said, that she hardly knew what to say. She would tell them a story. A class was being inspected, and a Scottish boy was asked the meaning of the word "regenerated." "Born again," he replied. "Would you like to be born again?" asked the inspector. "No," was the emphatic answer. "Why not?" For some moments the boy hesitated uneasily. "I might be born a wee lassie," he said at last.

After formally opening the pavilion with a golden key, handed to him by Mr. Percy Waldram, one of the architects, the Lord Mayor attended a luncheon presided over by Mr. Ramsey, the popular comedian Mr. Charles Coborn delighting all with his singing of "The man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo."

The building provides a spacious and lofty auditorium with an exterior of simple but pleasing design. The general construction consists of a steel framework securely bolted to the pier substructure framed in with timber and covered externally with wood and with plaster inside. The main proportions were largely governed by the necessity of selecting a general cross section of particularly strong form, and the necessity of providing against severe wind pressures upon every part has considerably affected the details. Fortunately, as is not infrequently the case, it was found that the exact dependence of the material of the frame to do its work in the most efficient manner has resulted in general lines which give an impression of not ungraceful strength.

The auditorium is 133ft. long and 94ft. 6in. wide, the main columns being 75ft. apart, and is 35ft. high to the centre of the ceiling. The floor is to be covered with rock maple for roller skating. The stage, 50ft. by 26ft., will accommodate a large operatic company, and ample provision is made for artists, including no fewer than six private rooms for principal artists—an important point in securing high-class musical and theatrical talent. The sides of the auditorium are partly closed with collapsible screens, which in fine weather will be opened, and in the remaining parts of the walls eight wide double emergency doors are provided, in addition to the four large main entrance doors.

The auditorium will seat an audience of 2,000, and the stage being raised somewhat higher than usual, obviates as far as possible the disadvantage of a necessarily level floor. A large ventilation trunk will be constructed in the roof, exhausting the air through four large ceiling openings to the large central turret, which forms the chief external feature. Considerable attention has been given to the ceiling curves with a view to securing the best acoustic properties.

A buffet and tea-room, 25ft. by 25ft., are arranged on each side of the entrance vestibule, approached from the pier through entrance lobbies. Sculleries and accommodation for gas-cooking are arranged in connection. Turrets are formed in the roof to thoroughly ventilate these, and the cloak-rooms and lavatories, and are made prominent features in the external design.

A wide promenade has been formed all round the building, with wide staircases to the pier and the auditorium lobbies, and with ample space for sheltered seats.

The design was selected in public competition, the assessor, appointed by the Royal Institute of British Architects, being Mr. E. T. Hall. Mr. Percy J. Waldram, F.S.I., and Messrs. Mascrop-Young and Glanfield are the joint architects.

The entertainment manager is the experienced Mr. Arthur J. Barclay.

Investigation was made by the Watford Bench on Tuesday into the sensational train incident which occurred at Bushey on July 6 last. A man named John Burke, aged 22, of Govan, was found in a first-class carriage of a train from Euston with his throat cut, after having been requested to leave another compartment owing to complaints made against him by Miss Jessie Templeton, who was travelling to Bushey to visit some friends. The accused was committed for trial.

An anonymous writer to a Glasgow paper denounced the methods of training animals adopted here by many "smiling foreigners" armed with huge whips. On behalf of the Volpi Italian Circus, Mr. Edwin Gilley at once took up the cudgels and showed that cruelty was no part of the training adopted by the Bros. Volpi in the training of their dogs, monkeys, &c., as could be seen by anyone who cared to attend their daily rehearsals.

The directors of Moss' Empires, Ltd., have resolved to pay an interim dividend on the ordinary shares for the half-year to June 30, 1910, at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax. The transfer books were closed on Thursday, and will remain so up till and including Aug. 12.

Mr. Ernest Clifford returns to town on Aug. 15, and opens at the Standard (ninth visit) and the Paragon with new songs, which have proved a big hit in the provinces.

Reginald Payne, one of the most versatile actors we possess, opened at the Hastings Hippodrome last week as the King in Mr. Frank Elliston's excellent costume sketch, Long Live the King, and showed a deep knowledge of stagecraft and technique in his portrayal.

Mr. Arthur Verne, who from October of last year to May of this was an in-patient of the National Hospital, Queen's-square, Bloomsbury, and was afterwards progressing so favourably during a stay at the seaside, has, we regret to hear, had a relapse, and is again compelled to keep his bed

MASKELYNE AND DEVANT'S MYSTERIES.

The unique entertainment given at the perfectly-equipped St. George's Hall by Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant can always be relied upon to interest and amuse, and the programme presented at the reopening on Monday was quite up to the usual standard, being pleasantly varied and entirely enjoyable. Mr. Owen Clark, a clever conjurer, presents a series of magical problems, among which may be mentioned a clever hat trick, a mystifying plate-smashing and restoring feat, some particularly clean coin manipulation, and other novel and bewildering experiments. In the second part of the programme Mr. Clarke gives a selection from Mr. Devant's répertoire of illusions and mysteries, including the "Cones of Confusion," "The Little Chantecler," "The Mascot Moth," and "Beau Brocade," the latter an especially well-worked and perplexing illusion. Not the least enjoyable feature of Mr. Clark's entertaining interlude is the running fire of humorous remarks which accompany the performance, and his clever contributions to the programme are loudly applauded. Memora, the "human encyclopædia," answers rapidly the numerous and difficult questions put to him by members of the audience, and is seldom caught tripping, and he certainly appears to have the world's history at the tip of his tongue. His novel and interesting turn is keenly appreciated.

Mr. Maskelyne is reintroducing his famous automaton "Psycho," claimed to be the most wonderful and scientific android ever constructed, and such a marvellous mechanical figure should certainly prove a big attraction. "Psycho" puzzled London audiences something over thirty years ago, and Mr. Maskelyne asserts that it still remains a scientific problem. Many imitations were forthcoming when it was first presented to the public, but they were soon exposed, and in one instance a diminutive human being was discovered in the "mechanical" figure. "Psycho," however, is open to close inspection, and the sceptic is permitted to gaze through his body and examine the glass cylinder and plinth on which the head and bust of the Indian figure rest. Three gentlemen from the audience were invited on the night of our visit to join him in a hand at whist, and "Psycho" manipulated his cards quite by himself, always putting down the correct one, skilfully smoking a cigarette and gazing with Oriental indifference at the play of his human partner and opponents. Certainly a most wonderful and puzzling figure.

A delightful quarter of an hour is spent in the company of Mr. Archie Naish, the clever and resourceful humorist at the piano. A droll impersonation of a waiter who had previously been a cabby; a skit on the classical pianist and his "audience"; and a screamingly funny mock melodrama are but a few of the items in a most enjoyable interlude, and the audience showed their appreciation by generous applause. Animated pictures are also a much-appreciated item.

The programme concludes with the magical farce The Scarab, the many mysterious and laughable incidents which happen in Sandiman's private museum at Hampstead to all those who for the time being possess the scarab being most mirth-provoking. It may be mentioned that the scarab is a large emerald gem taken from the neck of an Egyptian mummy, the owner of which has only to wish for a thing and it is granted. Particularly funny is the incident where Harriett, the maidservant, holding the jewel in her hand, longs to be dressed like a lady, and in the twinkling of an eye a complete transformation in her appearance takes place. The coming to life of the mummy, the sudden appearance of the safe and its evil-looking occupant, and many other wonderful doings are all executed with marvellous rapidity and smartness, and the farce is capitally played by the clever little company responsible for its presentation, Messrs. W. Mayne, E. Arnold Mussett, E. Morehen, Charles Glenrose, A. Booth, and Miss Ida De Verrell all enacting their parts admirably. The evening's enjoyment is also contributed to considerably by the selections of the excellent little orchestra under the direction of Mr. F. Cramer.

Rutherglen Skating Pavilion.

That well-built, commodious Pavilion known as the Rutherglen Skating Rink, situated at East Main-street, Rutherglen, is to be offered for sale by the auctioneers, J. and R. Edmiston, within the Faculty Hall, St. George's Place, Glasgow, on Wednesday, Aug. 11, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The building was only erected about six months ago at a cost of over £3000, and is admirably adapted for the business of a rink or for cinematograph entertainments, being very centrally situated in a well-populated district. The subjects are held on lease, and the ground rent is £80 per annum. The low upset price is £1500.

West Stanley Rink.

The skating rink for West Stanley is still well patronised, each session being largely attended. Dancing competitions have been held during this week.

Bolton Magistrates and the Cinematograph.

The Bolton Borough Licensing Justices recently, in granting music licences to new cinematograph theatres now being built, said great care should be taken over the kind of pictures thrown upon the screen. They thought that the pictures ought to be of an elevating character, and they hoped that the Electric Theatres and other places where there were cinematograph exhibitions would not show the films of the recent fight in America or of any other fights. They hoped the proprietors would take note of the desire of the Bench, and if they acted accordingly it would be pleasing not only to the Bench but to the public.

Della Ray.—There have been many artists by the name of Ray. Music-hall nomenclature is very confusing and misleading to the uninitiated, and imitation is often adopted. There is no remedy.

A. J. (Watford).—L'Aventurière was adapted by Tom Robertson under the title of Home, of which the dramatic rights are at the disposal of Samuel French, Limited, Southampton-street, Strand, W.C.

A. H.—(1) A licence is still necessary. (2) You should register at Stationers' Hall. (3) No time is needed. We should advise you to consult "Story's Dramatic and Musical Law" (price 5s.), published at this office, on the important questions raised.

Percy H. Vernon.—A Woman's Way was produced by amateurs at the Public Hall, Redditch, on Feb. 14, 1901; but there is no record of it beyond the mere mention of the title, which later was used for two sketches and a three-act comedy, produced for copyright at the Haymarket, April 14, 1909.

BREAKING RECORDS FOR BIG BUSINESS EVERYWHERE.

The fourth annual excursion of the Belfast Royal Hippodrome staff took place last Sunday to Garron Tower, and a delightful day was spent. Close on one hundred made the journey. The arrangements for the "outing" were in the capable hands of Messrs. George Dobler (assistant-manager of the Hippodrome) and J. Robinson. In addition to the staff, amongst those present were Mr. Henry T. Downs (general-manager), Mrs. Downs, the Misses Downs, and Mr. T. Downs, Mr. Fred Wilby (stage-manager), Mr. Edgar Haines (chef d'orchestre), Mr. Arthur Charles (Charles and Russell), as well as Mr. Dobler. Other friends present were Mr. Will White (general-manager New Alhambra Theatre), Mrs. White and Miss Mabel White, Mr. Herbert Rogers (general-manager St. George's Hall, Belfast), Mr. Dave Simpson, Mr. J. Taylor, Mr. Sam Landa, &c. Mr. Chas. W. Henderson (chairman of the directors), who motored from Belfast to be present at the dinner at Garron Tower, made a speech which was warmly received. A memorable day was spent.

In the action of Curzon v. Carlile, in the Chancery Division, before Mr. Justice Parker, Mr. Maughan moved on behalf of the plaintiff for an injunction to restrain defendant from producing and acting in a play or sketch called King of the Road, which was performed at the Surrey Vaudeville and the Bedford, Camden Town, on the ground that certain of the characters and incidents were identical with those in Beau Brocade, by the authoress of The Scarlet Pimpernel.

It had been performed in the provinces, and it was apprehended that this short and abbreviated form would be very injurious to the prospects of plaintiff's play. Defendant, who appeared in person, said that he had not adapted his sketch from plaintiff's play, but from the book. Mr. Maugham explained that what he asked for was a perpetual injunction, and for the payment of costs, which had been agreed. Defendant had asked as a concession that he might be allowed to continue his performance for two days, so as to complete, and plaintiff agreed to that. The injunction asked for was granted.

Miss Ghita Corri is making a big success this week at the Royal Court, Warrington, where she is topping the bill, as usual.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required. — St. James's Gazette.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 6, 1910.

DEATH AND THE DRAMA.

Death has been prominently brought before the profession of late. The cheerful philosophy of the actor and actress makes them disinclined to dwell unnecessarily on the inevitable end of all, though when it comes they meet it with commendable courage and calmness. A striking example of this bright philosophy is the recorded reply of Charles Mathews, who, as he lay dying, accidentally drank the contents of a bottle of ink in mistake for medicine. When the error was explained to him, he enquired if he should also swallow a piece of blotting-paper. The training of the dramatic artist in self-control was shown by the behaviour of the young man who some years back at the Novelty Theatre was fatally stabbed by mistake in a scene in which one of the characters was killed by another in the play. The actor, urged by his companion, carried out the mimic death till the curtain fell, and passed away afterwards in the green-room. Mr. Birrell has sneered at meeting the King of Terrors in make-up and motley; but there seems no good reason why the uniform of one calling should be less fitted to die in than that of another. At any rate, the number of actors who have been called away while exercising their profession is considerable. The first instance on record is that of Molière, who was acting in his own play of Le Malade Imaginaire in 1673. At the fourth representation, in which he was performing the principal character, whilst engaged in the burlesque ceremony of receiving the doctorate, as he held up his hand to say the word juro—"I swear"—he fell down in a fit of apoplexy, and was carried off the boards senseless, to die within a few days without recovery of consciousness. The most noted instance is that of poor Palmer, in 1798, at Liverpool. The story of Palmer's death is usually told thus: He was acting the part of the Stranger at Liverpool in 1798, when, on uttering the words "There is another and a better world," he dropped dead on the boards. The version is not quite correct. A short while before he had lost his wife and his favourite son. This preyed on his mind, and he said to some friends that he thought his troubles would soon bring him to the grave. On the morning of the day of his death he was much dejected, and all the efforts of his friends could not rouse him from melancholy. In the evening he appeared in the character of the Stranger in Kotzebue's drama, and in the first two acts exerted himself with great effect. In the third he displayed evident marks of dejection, and as he was about to reply to the question of Baron Steinfort, relative to the Stranger's children, he became deeply affected, and made an effort to proceed, but broke down, overcome by his emotion. Then he fell on his back, heaved a sigh, immediately expired without a groan. The great actor Betterton was persuaded, when old and suffering from gout, to appear at the Opera House in the Haymarket in The Maid's Tragedy, by Beaumont and Fletcher, which was given for his benefit. He took the leading part—that of Melanthus. But he had suffered so greatly that in order to enable himself to appear he used violent medicines to reduce the swelling in his feet. This drove the gout to his head, and he dropped on the boards, to be carried out and die three days later on April 28, 1710.

William Bond, in 1735, also appeared on a benefit night as Zara in the great hall of the York Buildings, when he played the part of Lusignan, and as he was in the act of blessing his children—dramatically—he sank, was taken home on his chair, and died next morning. James Spillen, a clever comedian, was seized with an apoplectic fit whilst performing on the stage in The Rape of Proserpine on Jan. 31, 1730, and never recovered consciousness. On Jan. 21, 1741, All's Well that Ends Well was being enacted at Drury Lane, with Peg Woffington in the rôle of Helena. She suddenly fainted as she stood in the wings, ready to come on in the first act, and her part had to be read. The actor Milward, who played the King's part, became very ill, but was obliged to struggle through, after which he returned to his bed, and the piece was not put on the boards again till Feb. 10, when Peg Woffington had recovered and Milward was convalescent. Unfortunately he was put into a suit that proved too tight for him and had not been properly aired. He was seized with a shivering fit, and, seeing how ill he was, someone asked him what ailed him. He answered pleasantly, "How is it possible to be sick when I have such a physician as Mrs. Woffington?" The attack, however, proved fatal. In 1759, Patterson was enacting the Duke in Measure for Measure, and when he said:

Be absolute for death; either death or life shall thereby be the sweeter:
Reason thus with life:— If I do lose thee,
I do lose a thing that none but fools would keep:
A breath thou art—

he sank into his fellow-actor Moody's arms and expired. In 1776 an actress, Mrs. Jefferson, looking on at a rehearsal, fell into the arms of the same actor, Moody, and with a sigh was gone. In 1794 Baddeley was dressed for Moses, and was preparing to come on when he was taken ill, and shortly after died. In 1799 Chickenham burst a blood-vessel whilst performing in Monk Lewis's play of The Castle Spectre. In 1817 Canning was playing in that favourite drama of Rowe's, Jane Shore. As he uttered the words "May such befall me at my latest hour" he reeled, dropped on the stage, and expired. The most famous instance is that of Edmund Kean. In 1883 he was acting the part of Othello. He had uttered the words, "Othello's occupation's gone," when he fell in his son's arms, and had just strength enough to whisper, "I am dying. Speak to them for me!" In 1850 Mrs. Glover took her last benefit, but was almost unconscious all the time she was on the stage, and died three days later. In 1858 Harley, whilst playing Bottom in A Midsummer Night's Dream, was struck with paralysis immediately after having uttered the words, "I have an exposition of sleep come upon me." He had to be carried off the boards, and died within a few hours.

In 1861 James Bland was standing at the stage-door, prepared to come on in his part, at the old Strand Theatre, when he dropped down dead. In 1863 James Rogers, who had for some time been ailing, but had battled manfully with his disorder, and had evoked roars of laughter by his humour in a burlesque at St. James's Theatre, staggered off the stage, sank in an armchair, and gasped for his wife, who ran to him. He took her hand, and, looking lovingly into her face, quoted Mr. E. C. Blanchard's line, "The little ruffle is o'er," and was dead. In 1865 Miss Cotterell was seized with a fit whilst at a rehearsal, and expired. In 1872 Henry Barrett, after playing in a farce, expired in a cab.

Of late years these stage deaths have been rare, though it is a question whether the more lingering departure which is general is to be preferred to "dying in harness" in the earnest exercise of one's calling. There is something fine in the spirit which nerves the actor to struggle to the last, and to only yield up his vocation with his latest breath; and one of the finest instances of this heroism is the sudden death of Henry Irving at Bradford in 1905, soon after speaking on the stage the last words of Becket in Tennyson's play: "Into Thy hands, O Lord! Into Thy hands!"

A POPULAR THEATRICAL WEDDING.

Mr. George Barrett and Miss Betty Rutherford were fortunate in having a lovely day for their wedding, which was celebrated on Thursday, 28th ult., at the Chapel Royal, Savoy. The Rev. Hugh Chapman officiated and gave an address. The bride looked charming in a dress of soft white satin, with an overdress of chiffon bordered with pearl and crystal trimming of fringe. She wore a wreath of orange blossom and white heather, with an old Limerick lace veil, and carried a sheaf of Madonna lilies. Miss Dora Fraser, of Daly's Theatre, was the only bridesmaid, in the unavoidable absence of Miss Molly Seymour. She was arrayed in a dress of pale pink ninon and a large black hat, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations, the gift of the bridegroom, who also gave her a brooch. Mr. Jack McArdle was the best man, and Mr. R. Lindo, of Drury Lane Theatre, gave the bride away. Mr. Lauri de Frece acted as groomsman.

The reception at the Waldorf Hotel was numerously attended, and the handsome presents were much admired. Among them were gifts from Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Collins, silver tea service; Mr. Richard Lindo, pair silver entrée dishes; Mr. Harry Preston, manager of the Albion Hotel, Brighton, silver soup tureen; Dr. and Mrs. Laver (bride's sister), cheque; Mr. Paul Rubens, a pair of silver candlesticks; Mr. and Mrs. Davy Bell, a handsome Sheraton cabinet with silver tantalus and cut glasses; Mr. and Mrs. James Farmiloe, silver kettle and spirit lamp; Mr. J. THE OPERA SEASON.

The grand opera season of 1910 at Covent Garden closed on Saturday night, July 30, with a brilliant performance of Il Barbiere di Siviglia. In the past season only one novelty was forthcoming, M. Laparra's Habanera, but in the welcome revival of Delibes's sparkling opera Lakmé a valuable addition was made to the répertoire. Early in the season the illness of Dr. Richter prevented him conducting the second cycle of the Ring, and by the sad death of King Edward, a great patron of the Opera, all hopes of a brilliant season at Covent Garden were ended. In spite, however, of these drawbacks the Syndicate have given us magnificent performances of the older operas and very artistic revivals of modern works such as Debussy's Pelléas et Mélisande and Charpentier's Louise, the scenery and mounting of which were triumphs of stage-management. Aida, with new scenes, was a splendid spectacle, and its performance has never been surpassed at Covent Garden. Saint-Saëns's Samson et Dalila continues its hold on popular esteem, and the revival of Verdi's fine opera Otello was a particularly interesting feature of the past season, as well as the same composer's Gli Ugonotti, given with a magnificent cast. As regards the operas, twelve have been given in Italian, six in French, and five in German. Two cycles of Wagner's Ring and two performances of Tristan und Isolde were given. Traviata has been heard seven times. Bohème, Samson et Dalila, and Barbiere di Siviglia six each, Lakmé, Rigoletto, Madama Butterfly, Faust, and Aida five times, Louise four, Pelléas et Mélisande, Tosca, Tess, and Gli Ugonotti three each, Habanera, La Sonnambula, and Manon Lescaut twice, and Otello once. At the head of a long and distinguished list of artists, which includes many English singers, Mme. Tetrazzini, Mme. Melba, Mlle. Destinn, and Mme. Kirkby Lunn have sung superbly throughout the season. Mme. Edvina has greatly advanced her position, and excellent work has been accomplished by Mme. Saltzmann-Stevens and Mme. Kousnietzoff. The past season has been rich in tenors. Mr. Riccardo Martin, an American artist, sang grandly in Aida, and created a most favourable impression in other operas. Signor Zerola, M. Dalmorès, Signor Rostowsky, and M. Franz have each greatly distinguished themselves; while among the baritones excellent impersonations have been given by Signor Sammarco, the Russian artist, M. Baklanoff, Signor Scotti, and the English-speaking vocalists Mr. Edmund Burke and Mr. Murray Davey. Other singers who have achieved success are Mr. John McCormack, Signor Mercoux, Mlle. Symiane, Signor Malatesta, Signor Zucchi, M. Morin, Mme. Bérat, that fine artist Herr Van Rooy, M. Crabbe, and our native vocalists, Mr. D'Oisly, Mme. Edna Thornton, Miss Elizabeth Amsden, Mr. Sydney Russell, Miss Amy Evans, &c. The conductors were Dr. Hans Richter, Signor Campanini, Herr Von Schuch, M. Frigara, and Signor Panizza. Congratulations for the success of the past season must also be extended to the general-manager, Mr. Neil Forsyth, the musical-director Mr. Percy Pitt, the stage-manager M. Fernand Almanz, and the scenic artist Mr. Harry Brooke.

THE BEECHAM SEASON.

The highly successful season of comic opera at His Majesty's Theatre organised by Mr. Thomas Beecham concluded on Saturday night with a spirited performance of Tales of Hoffmann, and lovers of music have to thank Mr. Thomas Beecham for the enterprise he has shown in producing new operas and giving interesting revivals of Mozart's and Johann Strauss's earlier works. The Mozart Festival, which included Il Seraglio and Così fan Tutti was a distinct success. Twelve operas were sung in English, but only two, unfortunately, composed by native musicians, Sir Charles V. Stanford's Shamus O'Brien and Mr. Clutsam's A Summer Night. The beautiful scenery and artistic attention to every detail in Tales of Hoffmann, Muguette, and Die Fledermaus aroused general admiration; while an important feature of the operatic performances at His Majesty's has been the large number of talented British artists in the principal parts. Since the commencement of the season on May 12 Tales of Hoffmann has been performed thirty-four times, Muguette and The Marriage of Figaro eight times, Johann Strauss's delightful opera Die Fledermaus was given seven times, and Feuersnot five. Il Seraglio had four performances, and Così fan Tutte three, while Werther and Impresario were only heard once. Besides Mr. Thomas Beecham, the conductors were Messrs. Cuthbert Hawley, Hubert Bath, Hamish MacCunn, Frank Mummery, and Emil Krautz. The orchestra and chorus were excellent, and among other artists who have greatly distinguished themselves in the past season may be mentioned Messrs. Joseph O'Mara, John Bardsley, Alfred Heather, Charles McGrath, and Frederick Ranalow, Miss Edith Evans, Miss Caroline Hatchard, Mme. Zelie de Lussan, Miss Ruth Vincent, and Miss Beatrice La Palme, also Messrs. John Coates and Walter Hyde.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I am about to produce a new play with the above title, and I beg through the medium of your valuable columns to inquire if any of your numerous readers can advise me of this title being used before. It will be obvious that it would be detrimental to my interest to use a title on which anyone else has a claim, hence my request for this information.—Yours faithfully,

FLORENCE BAINES.

Metropole, Devonport, Aug. 2.

The French Palace of Arts and Industries to be erected in the Strand will boast a bijou theatre capable of accommodating an audience of 800 persons. The theatre, which will be situated in the left wing, will contain a Royal box, approached from a Royal entrance on the boulevards. It is the intention of the Palace syndicate to present some of the finest products of French dramatists, portrayed by well-known French actors and actresses.

The race for Doggett's Coat and Badge, the possession of which is keenly contested annually on the Thames, was duly decided on Wednesday, when six young watermen "out of their time within the year past" competed for the trophy. Tom Doggett, it may be repeated, was one of the most famous comedians of the early days of the eighteenth century, and established his position at Drury Lane and other London theatres. The event, which has the distinction of enjoying the longest continuous history of any in the world, was instituted by the comedian on Aug. 1, 1716, to commemorate the Accession of his Majesty King George I. Mr. Doggett took a warm interest in watermen, and by his will left a sum of money in trust, invested in land, in the charge of the Fishmongers' Company, who now carry on the race.

The course stretches from London Bridge to Chelsea, and the race was rowed in very rough water. The six competitors were Richard Pocock, of Eton; Robert Charles Bland, of East Greenwich; Henry Thomas Gibson, of Putney; Alfred Stephen Jeffries, of Erith; Joseph Lee Beckett, of Fulham; and John Clasper Rough, of Putney. Pocock, who started favourite, took the lead at once, and retained it to the end, his time being 5sec. short of half an hour. Jeffries finished second, Gibson third, Beckett fourth, Rough fifth, and Bland last. Each competitor received a money prize, the gift of the company.

Miss Nita Rae, who has had considerable experience as a playwright, being the authoress of several very successful dramas, has produced a most interesting play. The drama is cleverly written, the dialogue containing some really excellent passages, while the interest from rise to fall of curtain is poignant, thrilling, and intense. It deals with the temptation of a girl, who, thinking her sister dead, marries her sister's betrothed. The scene opens on board the Magnolia. Harold Montfort is returning to England after seven years in the gold diggings of Australia, where he has struck a rich find. On landing, he mistakes Margaret Beaumont for his affianced wife, Marcella Beaumont. Margaret, thinking her sister dead, determines to keep up the deception and marry Harold herself. Shortly after the wedding the supposed dead sister, Marcella, calls upon Margaret. It transpires that the account of her death was false, and she has married Stephen Ormroyd, a gambler and roué. Henceforth Margaret's life is one of fear lest her secret should become known to her husband. She befriends her sister by supplying her with money, and it is during one of these secret visits that she is met by Charlie Armstrong, who thinks she is visiting the house for the sake of gambling. He quite casually discloses the fact to Dr. Chard, a friend of the Montforts, but he is discreet enough not to mention it to Montfort. His suspicions, however, are aroused by hearing Mrs. Armstrong refer to these secret visits of his wife to Stephen Ormroyd's gambling den, and furthermore by certain insinuations made by Beatrice del Sylvia, a Spanish signora, whose acquaintance he had formed on board the Magnolia. She, being in love with Harold herself, accuses Margaret of having been the mistress of Stephen Ormroyd in Paris and of still having secret meetings with him. Harold, blinded by the apparent proofs of his wife's perfidy, casts her off and volunteers for active service. Margaret follows, in order to be near him in the hour of danger; but Harold again mistakes her constancy and good intentions on seeing her in the chance company of Stephen Ormroyd, who has also come out to the front. Stephen Ormroyd next murders a drummer boy—Bob Sparks—who is entrusted with valuable dispatches. He is arrested, escapes, and is befriended by Margaret because he is her sister's husband. Harold comes suddenly upon the scene, and again seeing Ormroyd, casts her off once more. So great is her despair that she goes mad. Harold has her taken to his home in England and cared for by a Mrs. Starling, who is none other than Beatrice del Sylvia disguised as a nurse. She is slowly poisoning Margaret, but is herself disposed of by Stephen Ormroyd after an altercation. He then attempts the life of Harold, but is thwarted by the timely presence of Dr. Chard and handed over to justice for the murder of the boy Bob Sparks. Marcella's reappearance is the signal for a reconciliation between Margaret and Harold, who discovers all the time that he has been "married to the wrong woman."

The company responsible for the initial performance (Miss Dora Hammersley's celebrated stock company, under the personal supervision and direction of Mr. Charles Kean) is a particularly powerful one, each member of which must be heartily congratulated on their work. The drama was received with emphatic expressions of approval on the part of the large and thoroughly interested house on Monday evening. Its success on the road may be safely predicted. The part of Margaret Montfort called for much deeply-emotional acting, and Miss Dora Hammersley represented the character with sincerity, and completely won the hearts of the audience by a touchingly sympathetic and charmingly picturesque performance of the rôle. The mad scene was carried through with artistic restraint, and the intensity of her acting held the audience in thrall, her sterling performance being loudly cheered by a discriminating house. She was ably supported by Mr. Charles Kean, whose fine appearance and crisp and distinct utterance of his lines were exactly suited to the part of Harold Montfort, which it would be difficult to imagine more effectively enacted. Mr. Leslie Vyner essayed the rôle of the callous Stephen Ormroyd with a degree of studied villainy quite fascinating in its intensity; Doctor Chard was portrayed with suitable dignity by Mr. James Somerville; Miss Kitty Thomas was excellent as Marcella Ormroyd, and instilled the necessary pathos and dramatic feeling into the character; Beatrice del Sylvia was distinctly well played by Miss Violet Delmaine; Miss Lizzie Taylor as Mrs. Poppermore caused much merriment by her persistent and untiring efforts to capture the heart of Doctor Chard at the price of much physical discomfort; and the comedy relief was capably provided by Mr. Ted Mooney as Charlie Armstrong, who contributed a humorous interpretation of the part, being ably assisted in the fun-making by Miss Clarise Jenner as Letty Armstrong. A special word of praise is due to little Bella Reid for her intelligent rendering of the part of the drummer-boy, Bob Sparks. Messrs. Alexander Brown, Charles McGregor Gow, and Bernard Morris were alike excellent in minor parts. The drama was well mounted and artistically dressed.

The New Brighton Tower palatial amusement resort, with its many shows and novelties, was visited by upwards of 50,000 people last Monday. Never since the Tower's inception has such a vast crowd been within its grounds. One feature of the day's programme was the 45 seconds train service on the Scenic Railway, which resulted in all records on this fascinating railroad being broken. To-day there will be a brass band contest in the Tower Athletic Grounds in aid of the Liverpool Theatrical Gala Fund. £250 are offered in prizes.

At the St. Helens Police Court on Monday Wilfred Armitage made an application for a licence for two girls (twins) of twelve and a half years named Lily and Nelly Armitage, whose stage names were Tiny and Mite, to appear in a performance at the Hippodrome. The Chief Constable said that applicant had written from Ilford, London, for a licence, and on the 21st ult. another application came in from Pudsey, Yorkshire, from a Mrs. Mary Jane Payne, the aunt and legal guardian of the children, to whom the licence was granted.

At a meeting of creditors held under a receiving order made against Edward Alfred Tupper, described as of Walter House, Strand, it was reported that the debtor, in the course of a varied career, had managed a music hall, sung on the stage, travelled extensively, and seen active service with the army in South Africa and elsewhere.

"BROTHERS; OR, WHY WOMEN WEEP."

Drama, in Five Acts, by Mr. John Barrett, Produced at the Theatre Royal, Leigh, on Monday, Aug. 1.

John Gray ..... Mr. Harry Cullenford
Dr. Clinton ..... Mr. R. H. Brookes
Guy Royston ..... Mr. Herbert de Ville
Tony Ray ..... Mr. Fred Carroll
Frank Foster ..... Mr. J. H. Lowe
Attendant at Asylum ..... Mr. T. Barrett
Warder ..... Mr. L. Dennis
May Clinton ..... Miss Violet Prescott
Mary Gray ..... Miss Lena Valli
Bessie Gray ..... Miss Esmai Ellys
Maria ..... Miss C. Elling

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

All the essentials of popular melodrama are to be found in Mr. John Barrett's new play—tentatively performed at the Public Hall, Hastingden, on July 30—which is well written, and affords excellent opportunities for acting. The comedy is clever and the dialogue sound and attractive. The action of the play opens on the farm of John Gray, his real name being John Clinton, he having had to leave his home in England in disgrace, the real culprit being his brother Jonathan. He is happy with his devoted wife Mary and his only daughter Bessie, a pretty, unsophisticated girl. In the opening scene Bessie confesses to her mother her love for a stranger, Guy Royston, who has been visiting in the neighbourhood during the absence of John Gray, away in New York. Upon his return she asks her father's consent to marry Guy Royston, but this Gray refuses to give until he has seen her lover. Bessie then asks her father about his adventures in New York, and he forthwith relates an exciting incident in the Bowery, in which he rescues a poor starving woman from the brutality of her husband. He gives the scoundrel a good thrashing, and afterwards collects a substantial amount from the crowd to provide for her destitution. Guy Royston appears on the scene, and upon being introduced to John Gray by Bessie as her future husband, her father is horrified to find in Guy Royston the persecutor of the poor woman he rescued in the Bowery. He ignores him and enters the house with his wife. Royston endeavours to persuade Bessie to elope with him, but she refuses. He then drugs her, and with the assistance of Tony Ray, abducts her to New York, where he is supposed to marry her. The shock kills her mother, and old John Gray swears he will find Royston and have a bitter reckoning.

In the second act (twelve months are supposed to elapse) we are introduced to Dr. Clinton, who is medical adviser at an asylum in New York. Hero Royston apears, having deserted Bessie and her child. He holds a mortgage on Clinton's place, and informs him if he does not consent to his marriage with his daughter May, he will foreclose. Clinton, not wishing to see the business it has taken all his life to build up ruined, consents on condition that May is willing. May is a dutiful child, and although in love with Frank Foster, the governor of the asylum, she agrees to marry Royston to save her father. Bessie is befriended by May, who finds her work, and whilst on a visit to her May extracts the story from Bessie regarding her missing husband, whom Bessie believes has met with an accident and been killed. Royston overhears their conversation and decides to get rid of her. In the next scene he breaks open Bessie's desk, and whilst in the act of trying to destroy their marriage certificate is confronted with Bessie, who now sees him in his true colours. He strikes her in the back with a dagger, leaving her for dead.

In searching for his daughter Bessie in the streets of New York, John Gray is found by Tony Ray, who takes him to his rooms, which adjoin Bessie's. Upon hearing Bessie's scream, he rushes in and finds her lying unconscious. Royston soon after returns, and he is seized by Gray and shot in the arm during the struggle. Ultimately Royston swears Gray is mad, and he is conveyed to the asylum, but the governor, Frank Foster, has heard Gray's story and believes him to be perfectly sane. He expostulates with Dr. Clinton regarding the matter, but Clinton, fearing Royston, declares he is mistaken. However, at Foster's instigation, he agrees to see Gray again, and upon being confronted with him is astounded to find his long-lost brother, whom he had last seen in England twenty years ago. He then decides to give Gray his liberty, and upon learning that Royston has previously gone through a form of marriage with Bessie, declares that he shall not wed May. Finally Royston accidentally shoots himself. Foster is betrothed to May, and all ends happily.

Miss Esmai Ellys played Bessie in a pathetic and convincing manner; Miss Violet Prescott gave a charming portrayal of May Clinton, and Miss Lena Valli made the most of her oportunities as Mary Gray. Mr. Harry Cullenford merits praise for his clever study of old John Gray; Mr. J. H. Lowe made a manly exponent in the part of Frank Foster, and Mr. Herbert de Ville acted effectively in the rôle of the villainous Guy Royston. Mr. R. H. Brooks interpreted Dr. Clinton in a careful and conscientious manner; and Mr. Fred Carroll as Tony Ray, and Miss C. Elling, as Maria, kept the audience in roars of laughter by their humorous impersonations.

THE THEATRES ALLIANCE AND LICENSING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Permit me to correct two slight errors in your excellent leading article of last week, "Committee and Sub-Committee." Mr. Mulholland is not the present president of the Theatres Alliance. It was a distinct feature of the Suburban Theatre Managers' Association, from which the Alliance sprang, that its proceedings and methods should not run the risk of being stereotyped by permanency of chairmanship or other offices, and the president is elected annually, the present holder of that office being Mr. Wentworth Croke, with Mr. Ernest Stevens as vice-president.

Later on you say, "With regard to the Censorship Committee's opinion that the licensing of the forty theatres which are now in the jurisdiction of the Lord Chamberlain should be transferred to the London County Council the Theatres Alliance considers it is not desirable that this jurisdiction should be enlarged." The wording of your article is here a little ambiguous, and might lead to the impression that the Alliance object to the enlargement of the London County Council's jurisdiction.

The Censorship Committee's report advised the abolition of the Lord Chamberlain's jurisdiction by placing the control of the West End and other theatres under the London County Council. To this the West End managers, it is understood, object. The alternative, it seemed to the members of the Alliance, if the present anomaly of dual control is to be abolished, would be the extension of the Lord Chamberlain's jurisdiction by giving to him the powers now exercised by the County Council, and it is this that is objected to.

The modern method appears to be either to shelve matters after a lengthy and expensive inquiry or to ignore entirely the wishes and recommendations of those interested or specially informed. It is earnestly to be desired that in the present case something different may be done, and the Alliance welcomes your assistance and suggestion.—Yours faithfully,

J. MOVERLEY SHARP, Hon. Sec.

"The Law of Musical Copyright." By Albert A. Strong, LL.B. Price 1s., post free 1s. 1d. Published at The Era Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Our English authorities are not so slow after all. The agitation for adequate protection of music by copyright, we read, only began in the closing years of the reign of Good Queen Bess. Three hundred years afterwards Mr. T. P. O'Connor succeeded in getting the Musical Copyright Bill through.

Mr. Fred Trussell, manager of the London Hippodrome, commences his vacation this week-end. With Mrs. Trussell he will lead the simple life on the Norfolk Broads, yachting and fishing, a delightful way of renewing health and vigour that has been followed by Mr. Bertie Shelton, recently returned to Cranbourn-mansions from Wroxham.

Mr. Seymour Hicks has arranged for Miss Dare to produce and appear in a new musical sketch by him, entitled The Model and the Man. Miss Dare will play this for one week at Southsea, on the 15th, after which she comes to the Hippodrome for an extended period. The lyrics of The Model and the Man are by C. H. Bovill, and the music by Frank Tours.

Edmund Gerson, the New York manager who is directing Miss Robson at Terry's Theatre, has not lost time on this side. Associated with Mark L. Stone, a prominent American manager, he has arranged to open in London next summer a grand temple of pleasure on the lines of Luna Park and Dreamland, Coney Island, and will present performances and amusements entirely new in this country.

The christening of Joseph Henry, the latest addition to the Chirgwin family, is fixed for to-morrow (Sunday). Amongst those who are expected to be present are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elvin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Masters (Joe and Harry being the prospective godfathers), Mr. Wal Pink, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tate, Mr., Mrs., and Master Lotto, Miss Clifford, Mr. and Mrs. A. Boissett, Mr. Chas. Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Austin, and others.

Miss Margaret Halstan, supported by Mr. Dawson Milward and company, will appear in a sketch by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, authoress of The Likeness of the Night, entitled A Supreme Moment, at the Coliseum on Monday. The little piece was written in 1900, before the production of the four-act play mentioned at the St. James's revealed the fact that Mrs. Clifford was a promising dramatist. Another notable newcomer to the Coliseum is the cheery Miss Millie Hylton with new songs.

Miss Annie Hughes has acquired the entire rights of The Fourth Kiss by W. Douglas Newton, a sketch which achieved a great success when played at the Empress, Brixton, quite recently. Miss Hughes will appear in this in conjunction with Mr. Mayne Lynton when her present tour with Miss Tommy finishes. Miss Hughes is achieving quite a triumph, since she is to appear two consecutive weeks in Manchester, Nov. 21, as Sans-Gêne in Napoleon's Washerwoman, and the following in The Fourth Kiss. It is seldom that the same artist tops a variety bill two weeks in succession at the same hall.

The new theatre at Wimbledon is proceeding apace, and the magnificent block of buildings is already a landmark, although portions of the tower and the dome have yet to be added. Architecturally the theatre is notable, and, with the Assembly Hall, Turkish baths, offices, &c., embraced in Mr. Mulholland's scheme, it will without doubt be by far the most imposing public building in the district. In providing for a holding capacity of nearly 4,000 persons, the variety season to be given during a part of the year has of course been borne in mind; but the feature of the auditorium is that, while very large, it looks but medium-sized and cosy. The opening will probably take place in September.

"A Boy's Proposal," the comedietta by Arthur Eckersley which was produced at the Adelphi on March 29 last year, was produced on Monday, for the first time on the variety stage, at the London Hippodrome, where it is admirably played by Miss May Chevalier, Mr. Hubert Druce, and Master Hobbs.

Mr. Dick Knowles, like Mr. George Robey, is a very keen collector of curios, especially those which have a literary connection. With great delight he exhibits a most interesting relic—the original Burns mug, which he obtained from the Kirkpatrick family near Dumfries. Incidentally we may explain that this "mug" is not a portrait, but a vessel from which the immortal "Rabbie" himself often used to drink from on his visits to their house. It is made of stout teak wood bound with heavy brass stays, and weighs three pounds, and will hold nearly a quart.

Soon after Mr. Knowles had installed it in his home in New York it was stolen. He at once offered a substantial reward for its recovery. The delinquents, being frightened by this action, and finding it almost impossible to dispose of the article, sent it back by a district messenger boy to the police-station. The worthy constable who received it, evidently obsessed with the idea of the "Black Hand" and similar terrorist organisations, took it for a bomb, and carefully placed it in a bucket of water until it was eventually claimed.

Loved during a busy life by his comrades, Charles Wilson is still remembered, and to honour his memory a stone has been erected over the grave where he sleeps in a corner of Highgate Cemetery. On Thursday afternoon, the memorial was unveiled in the presence of a few of Charlie's old chums. These included Mr. Bertie Shelton, manager of the Stage Department of the Moss and Stoll Empires, Mr. B. G. MacLachlan, manager of the theatrical side at Cranbourn-mansions; Mr. E. A. Pickering, formerly with Mr. Wilson at the Alhambra, and now acting-manager at the Palace; Mr. Philip Howden, scene-painter, who illustrated so many of Charlie's successful ballets; Mr. L. Gustave, of Long Acre, and Mr. Prior, of the Times, both close personal friends; and Mr. Joseph Vine, of Milward's, Ltd., who was responsible for the work.

The Rev. J. T. Bingley, the chaplain of Highgate Cemetery, conducted a short service at the unveiling, and when the covering was removed by Mr. Vine, admiration was generally expressed for the design. The emblems of faith and hope are typified in the polished cross and the unpolished rugged-looking anchor chained to it—both being cut out of a solid block of Aberdeen granite. The neat curb is of the same stone, and a small urn of Sicilian marble is placed on the grave in the midst of a profusion of flowers. A wreath, tied with purple ribbon, with the words "Not Forgotten" attached, was placed on the tomb.

Charles Wilson,
Who passed away 25th July, 1909, in his forty-ninth year. This Memorial is erected by some of his friends as a tribute of their esteem. A devoted husband and father, deeply mourned by his wife and children. Resting until the day break."

The Birmingham Hippodrome was reopened on Monday evening. Mr. Ben de Frece, who comes from Colchester, is in charge.

A company has been registered under the title of the New Birmingham Hippodrome, Limited, with a nominal capital of £5,000 in £1 shares, in which new company the Variety Theatres Controlling Company hold a large interest, practically running the concern. The Controlling Company are doing their utmost to take over all contracts, and to give other dates in cases of lost engagements through the closure, though they claim they are not legally compelled to do so.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Ross, professionally known as Amy Sivroni (of the Sivronis), who passed away at 2 a.m. on Wednesday. The deceased lady was only 39.

The Margate Corporation is pushing ahead with its big scheme for undercliff gardens, sea promenades, and a large pavilion, or kursaal, for orchestral concerts and entertainments. The new pavilion is not intended to be in any sense a theatre or music hall, but will continue to provide on a more elaborate scale the outdoor entertainments that have been so successful.

It will be just above the promenade, at the base of the cliffs, and in fine weather will be open to the sunshine and sea breezes. It will accommodate 1,500 to 2,000 people, and the scheme is estimated to cost about £20,000. During the eight years the outdoor entertainments have been under the control of the Corporation there has been a surplus of £14,000.

We learn on the best authority that Mr. T. Allan Edwardes has sold the Grand Theatre, Derby, and his lease of the Hippodrome, Nottingham, to a London syndicate, the principals of which include Mr. Alfred Butt, Mr. Walter Gibbons, and Mr. Walter de Frece.

During his association with Derby, Mr. Edwardes has brought to the town many of the leading lights of the theatrical world, and it is to be regretted that the support extended to his enterprise on various occasions has not been of the character to which it was entitled. The great majority of Derby playgoers will, we feel sure, recall many features of his management with the liveliest feelings of gratitude.

The friends of Mr. P. C. Rowe, manager of Swansea Empire, will be pleased to hear that he has recovered from his recent illness, and that Mr. Stoll has kindly granted him leave of absence until the end of the year to enable him to take a trip to the Mediterranean to complete his convalescence.

An outbreak of fire occurred on Thursday night in the new Pavilion of the pier at Herne Bay. It originated in the fusing of an electric wire, and smoke rolling in at the entrance to the pavilion caused many of the audience to hurriedly start from their seats in the middle of a performance by the band of the Northumberland Fusiliers ("The Fighting Fifth.")

A stampede was, however, averted by the coolness of the conductor, Lieut. Cooper, who proceeded with his music as if nothing had happened, and the bandsmen's undisturbed demeanour had its effect upon the audience, the majority of whom remained in their seats. The fire was soon extinguished and the audience gave a round of cheers to Lieutenant Cooper and his bandsmen.

A large number of influential people have promised their patronage for the two concerts to be given at the Colston Hall, Bristol, as a testimonial benefit to Mr. Horace Livermore, amongst them being the Lord Mayor and Sheriff, and other leading gentlemen of the city. It will especially interest his many Bristol friends and admirers to learn that "Chocolate" (Mr. G. H. Elliott) has signified his pleasure to take part in the benefit performances and to do all he can to assist to make them successful.

The annual Liverpool theatrical gala attained its jubilee on Tuesday, when the twenty-first gathering was held on the grounds of the Liverpool Football Club. Since the gala was started the sum of over £15,000 has been raised for local medical charities and several of the theatrical institutions. During one year George Robey himself collected £400, and on another occasion nearly almost as much was realised by Miss Ada Reeve.

On Tuesday the gathering was a great success, scores of artists engaged in and about Liverpool kindly coming forward to give their support to the good cause. One special feature was a two hours entertainment on the ground, when over £200 was realised from that source alone. In connection with the movement a brass band contest is to be held to-day at New Brighton; a sacred concert is announced for to-morrow at the Hippodrome, a matinée on Tuesday at the Empire, &c.

The Palace Theatre (Doncaster), Ltd., has been formed with a capital of £15,000, divided into 7,500 5 per cent. cumulative preference shares of £1 each, 6,900 ordinary shares of £1 each, and 600 deferred shares of £1 each. There will also be a first mortgage of £1,500 at 4 per cent., and 8,500 first debentures at 5 per cent. The preference and ordinary shares are now offered for subscription at par. The company acquires a freehold site in Hallgate and Silver-street, Doncaster, containing 1,780 square yards, and including the freehold fully-licensed premises known as the Young Union Inn, and will erect thereon a theatre of varieties.

Mr. Ernest Bridgen, who is back with his old governors, Messrs. Thorton and Allen, being now at the South Shields Empire, was one of the happy crowd at the staff outing of that house on Sunday. They were accompanied by Mr. Wells, manager, Empire, Newcastle; Mr. Thompson, manager, West Hartlepool; Mr. Lauder, manager, Avenue, Sunderland; Mr. Kilgour, assistant-manager, Newcastle Empire; and other old friends. Mr. Bridgen was associated with the New Cross Empire for five years, and was also at Walham Green.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Joseph Duffy, Mayor of Wallsend-on-Tyne, who died on Friday, the 29th ult. Mr. Duffy, it will be remembered by many of our readers, was responsible for the erection of the new and handsome Borough Theatre of Varieties in Wallsend last year. Mr. Hugh Duffy, son of deceased, is the present proprietor and manager of that popular resort, which will shortly reopen. The remains were interred with civic honours on Tuesday, and at the requiem mass at St. Columba's Church, Wallsend, the Mayor and Borough Councillors were present. On the way to the cemetery the band played Chopin's "Funeral March," and at the graveside the service was conducted by the Rev. Father Downey. A large number of floral tributes of affection were placed upon the grave. A tribute was paid to the value of Mr. Duffy as a public man at the Borough Police Court by Alderman Matthew Murray on Monday. Councillor M. W. Swinburne also referred to the loss suffered by the Bench, and on behalf of the solicitors practising at the court Mr. J. McIlvenna expressed sympathy with the family.

Elaborate preparations are being made at the Palace Theatre for the reception of Mlle. Myrma, the Parisian swimmer and diver. An oval-shaped tank, measuring 18ft. by 12ft., with a depth of 8ft., and carrying 11,500 gallons of water, has been sunk into the stage.

To accomplish this no fewer than fifty men have been employed for over a month in working out an ingenious invention of the stage-carpenter, whereby the main joists has been cut so as to be taken away in a few minutes, and then replaced after the artist's appearance. The initial cost of preparing for Mlle. Myrma's engagement is said to be a record for a single "act." She will appear at the Palace on Monday next.

The London County Council (General Powers) Bill having passed through all its Parliamentary stages, received the Royal Assent on Wednesday, and forthwith becomes law. All four were great friends of the murdered woman, Belle Elmore.

In the scheme proposed for the flotation of the Middlesex Empire, the capital of the company is to be £50,020, divided into 50,000 ordinary shares of £1 each and 400 deferred shares of 1s. each. The ordinary shares carry a preferential dividend of 10 per cent. The object of the company is to acquire "a valuable freehold site situated in Drury-lane, London," at an approximate cost of £32,000. Upon this site it is proposed to erect a new theatre of varieties at a cost of a further £32,500. The Middlesex Theatre of Varieties is fully licensed. Mr. Oswald Stoll's name is mentioned in connection with the venture.

Mr. E. W. Hancorne James has resigned his position as manager of the Balham Hippodrome, having been appointed acting-manager of the New Cross Empire, of which fine Moss and Stoll hall he takes charge on Monday next. Mr. James is one of the oldest of Mr. Gibbons' managers, having been with him for upwards of six years. He began at the Grand, Clapham Junction, but was soon after transferred to Balham. Thence he went to Ealing to open the local Hippodrome, and, having worked that up into a substantial success, returned to Balham, where he is greatly popular.

An incident at the Euston in January, 1907, in which Dr. Crippen, his wife, Belle Elmore, and Mr. T. Weldon Atherstone, the victim of the Battersea flat tragedy, figured, is described by Mr. H. M. Holles. It was the time of the strike, and the performers were received with whistles, shrieks, and cat-calls.

"One lady," Mr. Holles states, "was particularly distressed. She had just retired amid a storm of hisses after vainly endeavouring to sing. The leading actor in a sketch that was to be played was extremely indignant at the rude treatment she had received, and expressed the deepest sympathy with her. Shortly afterwards her husband, who appeared greatly concerned, led her away. The distressed lady was Belle Elmore, the murdered woman; the husband was Dr. H. H. Crippen; and the actor who sympathised with her was Mr. Atherstone."

The usual monthly meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund Committee will be held at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road, on Wednesday afternoon next.

We regret to announce the death, at the early age of thirty-two, of Ada Zillah Hunter, professionally known as Zillah Price, wife of Mr. W. Parke-Hunter, of Mays and Hunter, the well-known banjoists, who made such a success at the Alhambra, Tivoli, &c., some few years ago. The Great Lester, who has arrived in London, is to make his English début at the Hippodrome on Monday. He is said to strike a new note in the ventriloquial line. Carrying his jay figure into the auditorium, he at the same time causes it to continue its amusing patter, exercising his art to such good effect that the words seem, even to those who are quite close to the ventriloquist, to come from the mouth of the dummy. The Great Lester, who was born in Poland, is a descendant, four generations removed of the famous composer Tschaikowsky.

Mr. Graham Falcon has entered into a special arrangement with Mr. Albert Leigh for the Royal County Theatre, Bedford, to be run as a permanent variety theatre, and, judging from the reception given to the artists on Monday night, when the place was reopened, the success of the undertaking is well assured.

The artists included the Maningoes, whose balancing feats are truly marvellous; Lucy Coventry, who sings and dances very cleverly; Clive Watts, who in addition to singing a good comic song and reeling off a deal of patter, gives some clever dances; and Andre Romanoff, the famous gipsy violinist, who was encored thrice; Howard Ward and Louie Davis are very funny in their musical-comedy skit, Wanted, a Typist; and Daisy Hicks is a comedienne with a charming manner and a pleasing voice. The lariat and lasso manipulation by the Four Mexicans was enthusiastically received.

In connection with the affairs of the Amusements Development Syndicate (Ltd.) the Official Receiver reports that it was registered on June 9, 1909, with a nominal capital of £5000, and was formed to acquire places of entertainment, theatres, concert-halls, or public gardens. It was promoted by Humphrey Brammall, who is an undischarged bankrupt, and William Alfred Beale. On Oct. 21, 1909, the company entered into an agreement for the tenancy of the Britannia Theatre and the Britannia Tavern, Hoxton.

Possession of the theatre was given to the company, but the tavern was never handed over, and the directors state that the company has, in consequence, suffered considerable damage, which is returned at £1000. They attribute the failure to this cause. The theatre was opened on Dec. 27 with the pantomime Dick Whittington, which ran for seven weeks. The enterprise was a financial failure, the takings being insufficient to pay the artists' salaries. The statement of affairs shows liabilities £3764, of which £2467 is returned as unsecured, and assets £512 10s., with a deficiency as regard contributories amounting to £4714 10s. The liquidation remains in the official receiver's hands.

On Monday next a turn of a distinctly novel and mystifying nature will be introduced, for the first time in England, by Mr. Frank Glenister at the London Pavilion. It comes direct from Berlin, where it has created one of the biggest variety successes known in that city.

The act opens with Mlle. Durga, in Salome costume, executing a charming but mystic dance, eventually exerting her mystic powers on a lady seated playing a piano. The apparent result of this influence is to cause, without interrupting the playing, both the lady and the piano to rise and fly to and fro in the air and turn a complete somersault before it gently descends to the floor again.

Other well-known names in Mr. Glenister's programme include Wish Wynne (who returns to make an enormous success with her quaint comedy studies); Violet Loraine; the ever-mirthful T. E. Dunville; May Henderson, the Dusky Comedy Queen; the Five Cliftons; Ada Oxley and company, in a farcical sketch entitled Peggy; Alice Hollander; and Annie Abbott, the Little Georgia Magnet, who made such a sensation some years since at the Alhambra, remains in the bill.

Those clever little entertainers, Beatie and Babs, after fulfilling a four weeks' starring engagement at Munich, where they were one of the greatest successes known, open at the Palais D'Eté, Brussels.

Owing to the success of Miss Daisy James at the Holborn and Kilburn Empires Mr. Walter Gibbons has re-engaged her for a further week, commencing next Monday, at both these halls. Her latest success is a song "The squeegee dress."

At Scarborough County Court on Wednesday his Honour Judge Dodd, K.C., gave judgment against the Scarborough Corporation in an action brought against them by the Scarborough Olympia Picture Palace and Aero Exhibition (Limited), for damages for having wrongfully entered on the Olympia premises, which the Corporation own, and obliterated the word "Olympia," which the plaintiffs (the lessees) had had painted on the roof in large white letters.

The defendants contended that by painting the word the plaintiffs had infringed a clause in the lease, and also that as the rent exceeded £700 per annum the jurisdiction of the County Court was ousted. The Judge: It would be a pity for the Corporation to be baulked of more expensive litigation if they want it. The Town Clerk, who appeared for the Corporation, said he would waive the point of jurisdiction.

The Judge held that the clauses of the lease did not support the Corporation, and they would therefore have to pay damages. No doubt the lessees could paint the word back when they liked. He entered judgment for the plaintiffs for £5 5s. to repair what the defendants had done, and £1 15s. for the loss of the advertisement.

Mr. Ben Woodger, Secretary of the Music Hall Home, desires, on behalf of the committee, to thank Mrs. O'Brien (Rule's, Maiden-lane) for box collection of £1 5s.; W. T. The general meeting and presentations will take place on Thursday, Sept. 1, at the Terriers' Headquarters, 69, Kennington-road, S.E.

A year ago one of the coal-passers on the "Mauretania" jumped overboard, and the first-class passengers arranged a concert on behalf of his widow and children. In helping to draw up the programme, writes the New York correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, one of the officers, probably through the ship's doctor, heard that a girl of 20 named Bessie McGlynn, in the second cabin, had an unusual voice, and would gladly sing at the benefit.

She did, and her rendering of the old ballads of Scotland and Ireland delighted everybody. Upon landing she obtained employment as a chambermaid at the Ansonia apartment house, on Upper Broadway, and a few weeks ago one of the tenants, Mrs. Sharley Cobarn, who had happened to be on the "Mauretania," and heard the girl sing while she was making the beds, recognised her, with the result that Bessie is to be given a chance to cultivate a remarkable contralto voice.

She is an orphan, born in Co. Longford, sang in a parochial school of suburban Glasgow, and, with sister Kate, saved up enough money, like thousands of brave Irish girls, to try her fortunes across the Atlantic. When questioned by a New York musical critic as to the extent of her range, she answered, "The only range I know anything about is the gas range in Ansonia. I sing because I love to, and because I can't help it; but your talk about pitch and range and keys is double Dutch to me."

Last week at the Birmingham Empire Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas proved a greater success than ever, Mrs. Lucas reciving during the week no less than nine bouquets, of which she is specially proud. One of the oldest temperance speakers in the Midlands, an octogenarian, who had not previously entered a music-hall, came specially to the Birmingham Empire to see their characters from "Pickwick," afterwards asking permission to come to their dressing-room to compliment them on their act. Next week they commence a month's holiday at their bungalow, "Mush Mush," Laleham-on-Thames.

Miss Melinda May, Secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., on behalf of the committee, begs most gratefully to thank the following:—Miss Billy Merson, donation, 7s. 6d.; Miss Kate Toole, donation, 2s. 6d.; Mrs. Paul Courtney (collection at Hastings last week), 2s.; Mrs. Ernest Collins, useful parcel of clothing; Mrs. Herbert Shelley, babies' new clothing; Mrs. Gintaro, gentlemen's boots; Miss Flo Banks, ladies' hats and blouse, gentleman's hat.

Please note that a prize will be given to anyone, in or out of the profession, collecting the most money for this deserving charity in twelve months commencing from Nov. 4 last. Will anyone make an offer for the fifteen large sized band books given by Messrs. Dennis and Morris (per Sisters Macarte)? Could anyone help us with Mrs. Arthur Hatton's address? She holds the winning ticket, No. 50, for the handsome portière curtain. Will subscribers please make all cheques and postal orders payable to Music Hall Ladies' Guild?

The grand new Circus Bech-Olsen, which was opened at Copenhagen on Wednesday, is an event in the world of the arena, and the fine building, due to the admirable enterprise of the gentleman whose name it bears, was crowded at the inauguration. The first programme has an international significance; but art, as we all know, is cosmopolitan, and it is evident that the best artists only of each country are good enough for the new house. The all-star programme includes those graceful and intrepid ladies the Three Ohmys, in their world-famous jockey act; Miss Guttenberg; the Three Marionos; Wally von John; Mr. Batty, in a haute école act; the Meteors, gymnasts; Toscana; Fritz and Brasso; the Six Kaytons; Eugen and Narion, and others—a great aggregation of talent.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MR. FRANK CASS at Croydon has been creating nightly a great impression by his fine rendering of that sterling song "'Tis a faded picture." Much has been heard of this song, and very much more will be heard of it when the time arrives for Harlequin once more to wield his "bat." Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers of the number.

MR. TOM E. FINGLASS, at the London Coliseum, has been scoring with some new material, and once again has the vast audiences with him during his artistic rendition of "Will you ride with me across the moonlit prairie?" a song that has been published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MISS FLORRIE GALLIMORE, who with her "Sammy played the saxophone" has been charming her numerous admirers throughout her successful current tour, has acquired from Messrs. Murphy and Liston a song of great merit entitled "Jones." Messrs. Francis and Day are issuing both items.

AT the London Tivoli and elsewhere that mistress of refined vocalisation Miss Queenie Essex has been singing "Goo-goo Land" with the archness and point inseparable from all she does. The song, which is by Fred W. Leigh and C. W. Murphy, is issued by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MR. DAVID DAY'S firm are bringing out in sheet music form a pretty song entitled "Queen of the sea," written and composed by J. Wright and sung by Miss Connie Gilbert.

MR. WILL GODWIN has disposed of the latest child of his brain—a charming ditty entitled "You and I"—to Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

HENRY E. PETHER, who is enjoying a vacation at Margate, has just set to music a remarkably pretty lyric by Leonard Cooke, which has been secured for the purpose of publication by Messrs. Francis and Day. It is entitled "With all my heart."

T. W. THURBAN (of "Brooklyn Cakewalk" fame) has evolved a distinct novelty in the shape of a ragtime reel entitled "Gee whiz!" Messrs. Francis and Day are issuing the same.

MISS FLORRIE GALLIMORE has been making an enormous hit this week at the Palace, Bath, with a song from the pens of those able writers, Murphy and Lipton, entitled "Jones." This number is in the hands of Francis and Day, and promises to be one of the hits of the year. We shall certainly expect it to be heard in every pantomime at Christmas. In such capable hands as Miss Gallimore's, it is bound to become the rage.

AMONG numerous other recent acquisitions about to be published by Messrs. Francis and Day there may be mentioned—"Oh, mother (that's why I came home in the morning)," a song sung by Miss Vera Wootton, written and composed by J. P. Harrington and Maurice Scott; "There's a ship sailing in the morning" (sung by Mr. Frank Harwood), by Harry Gifford and Leonard Cooke; and "A plain cotton gown," by Harry Castling and Henry E. Pether.

A GREAT impression was made by Mr. Gordon Stretton on the audiences at the Argyle, Birkenhead, recently whilst singing those admired songs "It may be true what you say, Mr. Coon," by Lester Barrett and Hermann E. Darewski, and "Somebody's sweetheart," by Tom Mellor and Harry Gifford, both of which are published by Messrs. Francis and Day. The same success attended Mr. Stretton's efforts to please at Dundee and Glasgow, and Mr. Clark, of the Birkenhead Argyle, instantly secured his services for a long time ahead. His new song, by Mellor and Gifford, "There's a brown girl in Old Dahomey" is a fine specimen of the art of the well-known pair of writers for the variety stage.

MR. F. V. ST. CLAIR has again achieved a triumph in song-writing in "Mary from Tipperary." This song is the property of Mr. Fred Barnes, with whom it is a huge success, and it is published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

MR. EUGENE STRATTON'S new song, "I may be a millionaire," by Fred Godfrey and Charles Collins, has entranced its multitudinous hearers at great houses during the week now ending at the New Cross Empire, and during the forthcoming week the denizens of Stratford will have their turn. The song, which will be issued immediately by Messrs. Francis and Day, will be embellished with a fine portrait of Mr. Stratton in character in Sidney Kent's best and most admired style.

THE well-known phrase "Came, saw, and conquered" fitly applies to Miss Florrie Forde's triumphs during the past few days at Derby Castle, Isle of Man. The all-pervading strain of "Flanagan" is everywhere to the fore, and the greatest exponent of chorus songs of the time has been nightly the recipient from delighted thousands of the applause which is rightly her due. The demand for copies of the song is great, but there has been no delay in supply, Messrs. Francis and Day having prepared for all emergencies. Miss Forde's other songs, including "Rip Van Winkle" and "I haven't had my licence cancelled yet," are also in much request. These likewise are published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT, at the Nottingham Empire, has not only been lauded to the skies by audiences during the past week for his admired new numbers, such as "Mr. Owl" and "There's a little black Cupid in the moon," but has had to yield to imperative calls for those old favourites of the populace, "I want to go to Idaho" and "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," both of which are also Messrs. Francis and Day's publications. Mr. Elliott, who is in great form just now, is set down to appear at that fine house, the Empire, Bradford, next week.

THAT charming artist Miss Lil Hawthorne has been during the week a big factor towards the enjoyment of visitors to Manxland, and at the Palace, Douglas, has in new and old songs maintained easily her assured position as a foremost artist. "Little maid of Monte Carlo" and "Don't cry, little girl," both of which are published by Messrs. Francis and Day, have been greatly enjoyed, not only by the enthusiastic Glasgow visitors to the island, but by Miss Hawthorne's faithful and admiring adherents of the white rose and the red.

MESSRS. FRANCIS AND DAY'S list of sixpenny popular editions is growing portentously lengthy, and will shortly include no fewer than 650 items. Among the latest additions may be mentioned the following:—"Keep on walking," "My little moon-boat," "In the old Dutch dairy," "We're all waiting for a girl," "Come into the garden, John," "Put on your tat-ta, little girlie," "Moonshine," "I don't mind leaving the dear homeland," "Sam," "When Father was Mother for a day," "La-la-la-la, sing this chorus with me," "'Tis a faded picture," "Follow me, girls," "She's a London lass is Lucy," "And just then he fell out of bed," "Don't do away with the Peers (piers)," "There's a little black Cupid in the Moon," "All hands on deck," "You must hear all and say nowt," "Will ye no' come back again?" and "My orchard is short of a peach like you."

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE TIVOLI.

The cosy theatre in the Strand presents a Bank Holiday programme that witches away the summer nights in fun and harmony and pleasantry. Mr. Joe Wilson being absent on his holiday, Mr. James Howell, the popular treasurer and acting-manager, is directing the entertainment, which has as one of its chief attractions a duologue, or comedy sketch, written by George Grossmith, jun., and entitled

"A NIGHT OF THE GARTER."

Fred .....MR. BEN WEBSTER
Muriel .....MISS MONA HARRISON

The trifle is chiefly noticeable for the fact that it has been chosen for the variety début of Mr. Ben Webster. The incidents presented in the course of the little piece have been made quite familiar to music-hall audiences through a production known as My Burglar, played with considerable success by Thorpe and Coe at the London Pavilion and other houses, and therefore Mr. George Grossmith, jun., can claim little originality for his work. Fred, the husband, has in Muriel a musical wife, who bores him by her continued piano-playing; and she is rather surprised that he should have any objection to her fantasias and sonatas, because he had offered so much encouragement to his mother-in-law, who was continually singing on her last visit. He explains that he induced mamma to sing in order to stop her talking. The conversation turns on the subject of dress allowance, and Fred is astounded at the bill run up for lingerie by Muriel; and his curiosity is aroused when he notes as one of the items a jewelled garter, twenty guineas. He has not seen it, and wishes to do so. As Muriel is wearing it she refuses to show it. The subject of burglary crops up in connection with the report of a robbery in the neighbourhood, and Muriel deprecates the conduct of the lady, who has been bound and gagged by the two cracksmen. Without a hint as to his intentions Fred departs, only to return disguised as a burglar. The frightened Muriel accedes to his demand for the expensive dress off her back, and, helpless in camisole and jupon, she has to remove the garter. When the swag attains respectable proportions, Fred bags it and departs. Muriel throws the furniture into confusion, and on his return tells tarradiddles as to the terrible struggle she has had with armed ruffians, who have torn the dress from off her back, &c. We take it that Muriel will hand down the jewelled garter as a family heirloom, without any chronicle of her silly adventure. Mr. Ben Webster was of course more than equal to the slight responsibilities of the rôle of Fred; and Miss Mona Harrison, a graceful and clever comedienne, showed us that she can play the piano with taste, and looked particularly charming. In her treatment of the disrobing scene her daintiness and refinement were particularly marked.

The chief comic star of the bill is Little Tich, who has returned with a capital number, "The Territorial," in which he gives a capital mock-tragic recitation. His older numbers, "The Gas Inspector" and "The Bargee," are as popular as ever. There is a warm welcome for the American boys, Bob Adams and Bob Alden (the Two Bobs), who, in the expressive vernacular of the States, have "won home" at this house by their extremely clever exposition of American characteristic songs and dances. We have many good turns from "the other side," and the Two Bobs are among the "top notchers." The Ten-Ka Japanese troupe are making their first appearance at the Tivoli, and their entertainment seems to sound the last word in ingenious deception; and another remarkable turn is presented by Larola, an equilibrist of remarkable capacity, invention, and skill. Early in the evening Miss Anita Bartling, a graceful jongleuse, proves that she has studied to some advantage in the best of all schools—the Cinquevalli; Miss Violet Lloyd and Mr. Horace Lane are responsible for a merry quarts d'heure with their amusing duologue Tonie, which comes for the second time to the Tivoli. Other returns include Tom Clare, a piano-humorist of the first rank, whose work is always funny, always artistic, and always refined. "Cynthia" and "The night the old cow died" are two capital songs. Dale and O'Malley have a very bright show; Dutch Daly's patter and concertina playing catch on; Miss May Moore Duprez as a Dutch girl gives a very good reproduction of the style of Happy Fanny Fields; Miss Bessie Slaughter sings in forcible style; Miss Minnie Mace dances in spirited fashion; and Max Waldron's female impersonations are decidedly clever. Other turns include Sam Mayo, José Collins, and Queenie Essex. The entertainment concludes with some up-to-date pictures on Ruffell's Bioscope.

THE COLISEUM.

The flowing tide of success is greatly in evidence at the fine house in St. Martin's-lane, and standing-room only has been the order of the days and nights. Master Edward Garratt, in the new comedy sketch, entitled Mortimer Magnus, M.P., is responsible for shouts of laughter, and receives ablest assistance from the other members of Bellew and Stock's company—two ladies and a gentleman whose names do not figure on the programme. The scene is the interior of a boarding-school where a precocious child is momentarily expected, its guardian's letter to the schoolmistress stating that the boy is more like a middle-aged man in his habits than an infant of five, and instructing her to garb him in dress suitable to his tender years. Presently there arrives on the scene Mr. Mortimer Magnus, a diminutive M.P., who, to escape the attention of a number of suffragettes, takes shelter with his private secretary in the drawing-room of the school, being carried in in a large valise by the zealous secretary. This gentleman departs to see if the coast is clear, and the pompous little M.P. is then taken by the schoolmistress to be the expected precocious youngster, and the fun that follows—especially when the indignant little man is forced to don the bib and short frock of a baby—is better imagined than described.

Mr. Tom E. Finglass is splendidly received for his excellent rendition of his new song, "My Baby," in which he sings of his pride and joy at being the father of a bouncing boy who is as black as himself, and the song, which has a most captivating refrain, is one likely to become annexed by the man in the street, and a like reception was accorded his "Will you ride across the moonlit prairie with me?" the dance that follows, in which the cowboy coon has the help of a lady, being given with the dash and vehemence for which Mr. Finglass is noted. Miss Ada Reeve has a great welcome, and, with songs that are well contrasted, evokes continuous applause, her numbers including "Please play me something that's dreamy," "Nobody knows, nobody cares," "When Richard the First sat on the Throne," and "Foolish questions." Even then Miss Reeve is not allowed to depart till she has given the Oliver Twists in front "Love me just a little, Sue." Little Elise Craven, assisted by Master Bert Clerc, enchants beholders by her clever dancing, and Montgomery and Moore are as smart a pair of cross-talkers, singers, and dancers as America has yet sent us, the gentleman of the twain being an astonishing fine pianoforte player. The altercation at the end of their act, in which each strives to have the last word (with the usual result), being one of the funniest things heard on a stage. The entertainment includes, also, such well-known favourites as Yamamoto and Miss Koyoshi, Goodfellow and Gregson, the Brothers O'Brien on the bars, Lily Flexmore, the Five Mowatts, and the Bioscope. Mr. Louis La Rondelle's orchestra gives a spirited rendering of H. Fragson's "La Parisienne" march, and, also, later in the evening, a selection from "Iolanthe" that is much to the taste of visitors.

THE OXFORD.

"WHINES AND SPIRITS."

Potty Porter .....MR. JOE ELVIN
Professor Swankey .....MR. GEORGE DENHAM
Blaber .....MR. KENNETH ALTAMONT
Mrs. Swankey .....MISS LUCIE EVELYN
Maud .....MISS GRACIE VICAT
Mrs Porter .....MISS ROSE CASTELLI

For the purposes of his latest comic sketch Mr. Wal Pink has evoked the spirits. He has been bold enough to make fun of spiritualism, or rather of those who profess to be able to hold communication with the spirits of the departed. But we are inclined to believe that even the ardent believer in spiritualism would not be able to forbear from laughing at the harmless skit produced for the first time at the Oxford on Monday evening. Professor Swankey, his wife, and daughter, are impostors; they take advantage of the credulity of a large number of men and women, and they make it pay, though Maud, the daughter, is rather disposed to rebel aginst taking part in the trickery. Blaber, the attendant, is also inclined to express in unmistakable terms his opinion of so-called spiritualism. The fun begins with the appearance on the scene of Potty Porter, who has come to see "the bogies." He is introduced by the Professor to his wife and daughter Maud, and the charms of the younger lady evidently make an impression on the susceptible Potty. A séance is arranged, and when the lights are turned down the visitor to Swankey's abode sees on the walls hideous skulls grinning at him. However, he pays the fee of two guineas, and hopes to have his money's worth in the shape of spiritualistic manifestations. He expresses a wish to hold communication with his old pal, "Bloggy," who while on earth was a bookmaker, and when Potty's desire has been fulfilled and knocks on the table signify that the spirit is responsive to the medium's appeal, he asks for a tip for the Cambridgeshire, and further suggests that "Bloggy" should send along the trifling loan that has never been repaid. Potty next requests that he should be placed in communication with his wife, and the mysterious knocks are again heard. Thereupon the investigator into the mysteries of spiritualism denounces the whole thing as a fraud, because his wife is alive. He receives a shock, however, when what is said to be the spirit of his wife appears and proceeds to interrogate him respecting a certain lady who is in the milk business. It turns out that the supposed spirit is his own wife, who preceded him on a visit to the Professor. Mr. Joe Elvin in the character of Potty Porter was as amusing as ever, his funny allusions and effective facial expression being the cause of great merriment. Mr. George Denham as the Professor, Miss Lucie Evelyn as Mrs. Swankey, and Miss Grace Vicat as Maud gave valuable assistance. Mr. Kenneth Altamont was amusing as the aged attendant, Blaber, and Miss Rose Castelli gave an excellent portrayal of Mrs. Porter.

Miss Marie Lloyd received a hearty greeting on Monday evening, but since then indisposition has prevented her from appearing, and her place on the programme has been taken by Dale and O'Malley, humorous patter comedians. Mr. Tom Woottwell has scored in the character of a rag and bone merchant, and he introduces many laughable jokes having reference to the goods in which he deals. Mr. George Chirgwin, the White-eyed Kaffir, finds no difficulty in maintaining his popularity as an eccentric comedian and vocalist. Talbot and Pearce, in their pretty and refined Irish song scena "Over the Garden Wall," sing duets in charming style, and conclude with a spirited Irish jig. Mr. Milt Wood, who comes from America, excels as a wooden shoe dancer. Miss Victoria Monks meets with a flattering reception, as does also Miss Queenie Essex. Mr. Hubert Shelley scores with his Irish songs and comical stories, and Kitts and Windrum do well in "What a Night!" The Sisters Reeve, duettists and dancers, are pleasing young artists; King and Benson, comedians, find favour, and so, too, do Devon and Earle as clever dancers. Other successful turns are given by Mr. W. S. Wyndham, comedian; Mr. Barney Armstrong, comedian; Mr. Harry Grey, the "Australian nugget"; the Warsaw Brothers, in a comedy musical act; Miss Edna Latona, male impersonator; and Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, trick cyclists. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is also an attraction.

THE SOUTH LONDON.

One of the rare specimens of the successful adaptation of a four-act play to the limitations of a music-hall sketch is provided in Her Luck in London, which occupies a prominent position in the South London bill. The piece has been touring the provinces prosperously for some years, and seems likely to renew its popularity at the variety theatre. The pith of the play has been preserved, and renders quite clear the story of Nell Harborne, who, tired of the monotony of country life and the strict puritanism of her father, resolves to try her luck in the great metropolis. Here she falls a victim to the wiles of Richard Lenowen, the keeper of a gambling den, and is soon relegated to the position of decoy. In this capacity she meets the Hon. Gerald O'Connor, who offers her his hand in marriage. Afraid to tell him by word of mouth the story of her shame, she eventually puts it into the form of a letter, and hands it to one of her companions to post; but that unscrupulous lady pockets the epistle, and in conjunction with Lenowen uses it for blackmailing purposes after Nell and O'Connor are married. When O'Connor learns of his wife's past life he upbraids her for bringing disgrace on his name, and bids her leave his house, but the lady so bitterly reproaches him that he takes her back to his heart.

The burden of the playlet falls upon Miss Mary Neil, who sustained the chief rôle on the first production. She depicts the wayward country girl with much charm, but her dramatic and emotional powers are revealed in the strong concluding scene, Nell's despair at the thought of leaving her husband and her bitter denunciation of conventionalities of life being quite thrilling. Miss Neil created a great impression, and was repeatedly recalled. Mr. Stuart Cleveland gives a sound and finished rendering of the stern and inflexible father, his lines being marked by admirable elocution. As Gerald O'Connor Mr. Herbert Standing, the bearer of a name familiar in the theatrical world, is meritorious; Mr. Jack Haddon makes the wickedness of Richard Lenowen palpable, and receives adequate support from Miss Marie Ranier as a discreditable frequenter of the Hilarity Lounge; and Miss Marie Auckland is a sufficiently cold and callous Lilian Harborne. The scenery is elaborate and picturesque, no expense having been spared in its provision.

Sketches abound in Mr. William Payne's programme, which includes The Biter Bit, by the Brothers Horne, which still retains its power to amuse. The young lady who sings and dances is much applauded. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Leonard appear in their comedy act, Coming Home; Reg Bolton has some funny things to say and sing in his scena, The Editor's Imp; and the Smythsons, in the comedietta Love Germs, also make for merriment and secure it. A popular contributor to the programme is Miss Queenie Leighton, who scores especially in her chorus song "Paradise Alley"; and a welcome interlude is supplied by Miss Maud Courtney, who sings a song to which apt replies are interjected by a gentleman in a private box, the effusion being cleverly written and artistically worked. Others in the entertaining programme are Mr. C., who "sings and talks"; Mr. Fred Hastings, comedian; and Ruffell's Bioscope, on which up-to-date events are portrayed. Mr. William Payne is always alert and efficient as manager, and has an obliging assistant in Mr. William Lynch.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

An excellent bill was presented on Monday to the delighted holiday audience, who received it with unstinted applause. The inimitable Eugene Stratton is always a big favourite, and his artistic method, tuneful songs, and fine dancing are as enjoyable as ever. His latest success, "I may be a millionaire," and his other contributions were all loudly applauded. Miss Olga Dorè made a big hit with her cleverly-rendered operatic selections; Hans and Lux, the ever-popular comedians, earned hearty laughter by their really funny patter and humorous performance; the Grassis are particularly agile acrobats, and also prove themselves clever novelty musicians.

Tom Haig and Millie Novel win applause for their comedy acrobatic turn; Carl Howard is successful in pleasing the audience with his unique concoction of comedy and magic; Albert Whelan has a warm and well-deserved reception for his interesting entertainment; clever Miss Bertha Winder once more delighted all with her wonderful and varied dancing; Carter Livesey's new sketch entitled An Amateur Anarchist amused everybody. The popular comedian gave a richly humorous performance of the character of Adam Armstrong, a Yorkshire porter, and he was well supported by Miss Lilian Rosebery and Mr. Leo Minster. Pictures concluded the entertainment. Mr. Fred Epitaux is the courteous acting-manager and Mr. Will Horsfield his able lieutenant. Mr. Walter Smith is the capable stage-manager, and Mr. Forbes Russell the popular director of the orchestra.

ILFORD HIPPODROME.

The above hall of amusement is realising our prediction at its opening, and each week the bookings have been eminently satisfactory. Under the White Ensign, at the top of the bill, is a realistic naval playlet, admirably presented by Miss Edith Lewis and company. The scenery and costumes are very effective and greatly enhance the production. Another excellent sketch is presented by Mr. Sydney Mason and Miss Theresa Moore, entitled The Usurer, a dramatic episode brimful of exciting incidents and cleverly played by the artists engaged.

Cruikshank, styled "the fool of the family," is a very droll clown, and his irresistible wit and quaint songs are quite to the liking of the house. A pretty vocal comedy scena in a dainty setting is The Scarecrow and the Stars, given by Miss Maud Hillman and Mr. Maurice Russell, who introduce some excellent singing. Eileen Northe, the Cullercoats fisher-lass, is the possessor of a rich contralto voice, and she is the recipient of unstinted applause for her sweet singing of Tosti's "Good-bye" and an encore song. Athas and Collins are popular, and cause endless merriment with their duologue and sand-dance. Cyrus Dare, vocal illusionist and child impersonator, comes in for a warm reception, his singing of "My sweetheart when a boy" being a special number. Daisy Mayer, presenting character studies, gives a clever rendering of her monologue song, "Ain't you going to let me say good-bye?" Her dancing and witticisms also find much favour. Other excellent turns are the Westbrooks in their novelty dancing scena, and the Sisters Casselli, speciality dancers, whose high kicking is a special feature. The orchestra, under the musical direction of Mr. Adolphe Wolff, renders excellent music, and is quite a feature of the performance.

CAMDEN HIPPODROME.

A popular holiday programme is put forward by Mr. Chas. Beresford, who is well rewarded for his efforts. That comic sketch, My Pal Jerry, which is at the top of the bill, is proving as big a draw as ever. Lew Lake as Nobbler and Bob Morris as Jerry keep the house in continual delight, and the Court scene, which has been improved since we last saw it, causes screams of laughter. La Belle Linda is a charming lady cyclist, who performs many clever tricks in a finished and graceful fashion, and with an ease that makes the most difficult appear simple. An amusing ventriloquial entertainment is given by Gillin, who has quite a comical lot of chatter with his little assistant.

The Lyric Mummers present a novel vocal scena, which is much appreciated, and they give some very pretty numbers, the male partner especially singing "Genevieve" in fine style and with great taste. Freddy French is a lively comedian, who first appears as a Suffragette and delivers a comic speech on this pressing subject, finally coming to blows with a policeman, and getting into serious trouble. He next sings of the different styles of dancing, and gives clever examples, which score a big hit. Ruby Roya has a bright number, "Ain't none of you got no home?" which she makes the most of, and afterwards gives a neat dance. Sibb and Sibb accomplish a wonderful aerial gymnastic display, and are much applauded for their efforts.

Mimicry is always popular, and Miss Rosie Archer is rapidly making her way as an exponent of the art, for her impersonations are most lifelike, especially those of Margaret Cooper, Vesta Tilley, Vesta Victoria, and Gertie Gitana. She manages to catch the voice especially well, and she has to respond to two encores. A novel idea is that of Dolls Alive, as presented by the Barnard family. The scene is a doll shop, with a little stage at the back, where the dolls give a comic scene, which is worked on marionette lines, and is most diverting. Miss Maud Wilton, the dainty comedienne, and the Bioscope, with some fine flying pictures, conclude.

ROTHERHITHE HIPPODROME.

On the evening of our visit to this favourite house there was a bumping attendance, without doubt due to the general excellence of the programme submitted by the enterprising management. Kloof and Ramsey, the popular comedy duo, gave an exceptionally smart musical turn, their "Tea-table" act being specially selected for applause; Mr. W. B. Raby rendered to an appreciative audience in characteristic style his song "Sleep"; Dower and Denville, the comedians with the educated feet, dance well, and were rewarded with hearty plaudits; Miss Lillie Sprightly has a catchy song in "I want you all to come with me," the swinging chorus of which was taken up by the "gods"; and Mr. Paul Pelham received well-earned approbation for his rendering of "Two little drummer boys" as a descriptive song.

It is not often that one sees on the variety stage such a powerful one-act dramatic play as that presented by Mr. Cecil Gray and company, entitled To-morrow's Dawn, and during the thirty minutes the company occupies the stage it is safe to say the audience are held spellbound by the dramatic realism. The scene is laid in the lounge hall in Norton Castle. Miss Dora Eastlake as Natalie admirably portrayed the adventuress who has sworn to revenge herself against the house of Norton, and to gain her object becomes Countess of Norton. Mr. Frank Dale as Capt. Francis Vivian, the willing accomplice of the adventurous Countess, played his part well, as did also Mr. Eric Norman as Tony Fowler. Mr. John Manners left nothing to be desired as Capt. the Hon. Jack Granby; Mr. Cecil Gray displayed fine dramatic fervour as Dorian, who believes he has killed his brother in a quarrel over his wife's honour; and the play was well staged. The enthusiastic greeting from the house was well merited, and thrice Mr. Gray had to come before the curtain.

Miss Eileen Douglas has two good songs in "Miss Lollipop" and "I'll show you how to paddle your canoe." At the close of her second number she tripped the light fantastic in good style. Francis has some very smart juggling tricks. His manipulation of the cannon balls is exceptionally clever, and deserved the loud applause given. Mr. George Newburn, the inimitable mimic, is ever a favourite, and delights the audience with his impersonations of well-known artists. Tilley Wagner and company provoke lots of laughter with their breezy, farcical skit entitled A Call to Arms. The Bioscope pictures depicting Mr. Cody's accident at Aldershot are well reproduced. The genial manager, Mr. Fred T. Murray, is ever busy looking after the interests of the house and the comfort of the patrons.

WOOLWICH HIPPODROME.

This week the management have secured a first-rate company. A big favourite is Chung-Ling-Soo, the world-famous Oriental conjurer, with his varied and clever entertainment. Will Musgrave is a dapper comedian, his songs "Not to-night, Josephine, not to-night" and "Father says he's seen a lot of it" being very funny. Esme Gordon's song "Never look for trouble" goes well, and her final dance shows much skill. Gladys Soman has a sweet and powerful soprano voice, and uses it to the best advantage, especially in "Star of my life."

The Brennons (Will and May) are really clever dancers. The gentleman, who is the holder of the World's Championship Belt, "foots" it merrily on the glass cube with lights beneath. The Oakes Duo have an extremely funny act, Making a Man of Her. After some grotesque business, the man proceeds, while the lady is singing, to dress her in male attire and "make-up." Marie Hurley is a smart comedienne, and advises all girls in her song to "Take your guide-book with you," whilst she also pleases greatly with "Love is like a balloon."

Hunt and Thomas in their latest skit, Her Birthday, are very good. The lady, weary of waiting for her husband on her birthday whiles away the time by singing. She then discovers a telegram, and decides to open it. Mistaking the meaning of it, she goes into a paroxysm of rage and temper, all the while congratulating herself that she is calm and self-possessed. Her husband enters, and then the fun commences. The poor fellow cannot get in a word edgeways, and in his endeavours to get away from her a case falls from his pocket. She pounces upon it and opens it, disclosing a jewelled garter. Explanations are useless. She still rails on, until at last he tells her the wire was sent for her and the garter is a birthday gift. The excellent Bioscope films are greatly appreciated.

"ON THE SANDS."

"A Frolic," in One Scene, Music Composed, Selected, and Arranged by George W. Byng, Produced at the Alhambra on Monday, Aug. 1.

Eton Boy French Dancer	Miss Elise Clerc
A Young Lady Visitor	Miss Pet Lindell
Her Sweetheart	Miss Daisy Rogers
A Runaway Schoolgirl	Miss Rita Leggiero
Her Father	Mr. R. Vallis
Her Mother	Miss N. Brown
Her Governess	Miss F. Mansell
Gipsies	Misses Gina Cormani and Lillie Lauri
Boatman	Mr. Tom Coventry
Detective French Dancer	M. Emile Agoust

A suggestion of the seaside that is very fresh and welcome is provided in the holiday programme at the Alhambra, of which the new "frolic" On the Sands is a feature. All the gaiety, life, and movement and the effective combinations of colour that one associates with the popular home of ballet are present in the production, which represents the sands of a favourite watering-place with amazing fidelity, the breakers rolling in in quite natural style, the pierhead rearing itself realistically in the near distance, and bathing tents lining the beach.

The story is of the usual slender type, but lends itself to the introduction of picturesque groups innumerable. A neat sailor drill is followed by the arrival of a number of schoolgirls to indulge in their morning dip, but hardly have they entered the water than a group of irrepressible schoolboys arrive, and after a game at leapfrog conceive the fiendish idea of purloining and dressing-up in the clothes of the young ladies who are disporting in the waves. The dismay of the girls on finding their clothes missing from their tents, however, is dissipated by the return of the lads, who, in a series of dances, transfer the costumes to their rightful owners. Meanwhile, one of their smaller companions has been stolen by a gipsy band, and re-enters habited in Russian garb—an opportunity not to be missed of giving one of the lively dances characteristic of that nationality. The arrival of an accomplished Parisienne and her equally clever companion brings a delightful burlesque of Mlle. Pavlova and Mr. Mordkin, and the end of the "frolic" is reached by a series of mazy evolutions, in which ribbons of red, white, and blue are wound and unwound round the pillar of a beacon light which is erected on the beach.

The principals and corps de ballet work untiringly to secure the success obtained. Mme. Elise Clerc is a comely Eton boy, and acts with the animation and spontaneity that one expects of the ringleader of a troop of schoolboys. Her best work, of course, is reserved for the impersonation of the French dancuse, an exquisitely dainty assumption. She is now paired by M. Emile Agoust, a newcomer to the Alhambra, who should long remain, and her pas de deux with that gentleman is distinguished by the grace and finish that mark the clever artist. Miss Rita Leggiero plays the runaway schoolgirl, and her experiness, both in her step-dance and in her Russian evolutions, excites once again the admiration of all. The Misses Gina Cormani and Lillie Lauri make handsome gipsies, and lead their revels agreeably; and Mr. Tom Coventry realises the old boatman quaintly. The rest of the characters combine to form a familiar picture of life on the sands, and attain perfection in the duties allotted to them. Mr. George W. Byng's music is melodious and sparkling, and appropriate to every occasion. It would hardly have been complete without the introduction of Miss Madge Temple's popular song "On the silvery sands," which serves as an excellent selection to "ring up" with, and is again introduced in the course of the ballet. Mr. E. H. Ryan has achieved another triumph in the setting of the new work.

Interest is aroused in the first appearance in England of Olympia Desvall and her trained ponies and dogs, who do in combination many of the tricks usually undertaken by those animals separately. One clever fox-terrier throws a backward somersault from the horse which is attached to madame's elegant go-cart, on to the shoulders of monsieur, who is standing by her side, and various other tricks are accomplished, which give every satisfaction to the sightseer.

The spectacular magnificence of Femina, the beautiful and eloquent pantomime of Mlle. Leonora, and the terpsichorean graces of Mlle. Britta, continue to arouse thunderous applause. The wonderful nerve and skill of the Uessems induce thrills of admiration; the Schichtl marionettes gain repeated cheers for their marvellous work; Merlin's conjuring is of a completely baffling character; Henry Helme wins merited approbation for his fine singing; and the generous programme, which is started by the Royal Colibris in their comic act The Baby, the Nurse, and the Corporal, is concluded by Jury's Imperial pictures, which depict the very latest events. Mr. Alfred Moul has supplied a holiday entertainment that cannot fail to attract.

Miss Mina Green will produce at the Olympia, Shoreditch, on Monday next, a new and original song-scena, "In the Land of the Cingalee," which has been written and composed for her by J. F. Lambe and Alf. J. Lawrence. The same lady has in preparation another scena dealing with an Egyptian love romance, written by the same author and set to music by Fred Elton, of "On board an ocean liner" fame.

Miss Daisy Rhyl has procured some charming song slides for J. F. Lambe and Denham Harrison's pretty Irish song "Won't you wear your old knee-breeches?" which she will sing at Leicester next week. The same young lady has been scoring all along the line in "Won't you come to Madeira with me?" which is also the work of J. F. Lambe, and is published by the National Publishing Company.

"THE FIGHTING PARSON" JUDGMENT.

Judgment was delivered in the King's Bench Division on Tuesday by Mr. Justice Phillimore in the case of Barrasford and another v. Gray, in which damages were claimed from Mr. George Gray for breach of an agreement to appear for one week, from Dec. 3, 1906, at the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, in his dramatic sketch The Fighting Parson.

Mr. Hume-Williams, K.C., and Mr. Martin O'Connor (instructed by Messrs. Amery Parkes, Macklin, and Co.) appeared for plaintiffs; and Mr. M. Shearman, K.C., and Mr. Storry Deans (instructed by Messrs. Morris and Rickards) were for defendant.

The claim, his lordship said, was for £130, liquidated damages, or, in the alternative, for general damages. Various defences had been set up, such as that the contract had been made with Mr. Barrasford alone, that Mr. Barrasford did not give authority for the action, and that the sum sued for was a penalty, and not liquidated damages. On all these points his decision was against defendant. With regard to the point that this was a penalty, his lordship said that where, in a contract, there was a clause purporting to stipulate that one particular sum of money should be paid for any breach of that contract, large or small, so that for some breaches the sum would be so excessive that it could not be supposed to have been contemplated, that would be a penalty. In this case defendant was to give a week's performances at four different halls in the provinces for £150 in each, and a week's performances at the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, for £130; and it was stipulated that if he failed to fulfil any one of these engagements he should forfeit the amount which he would otherwise have received for the week's performances. If he appeared on five nights and did not appear on the sixth, or if he did not appear at all, it would equally be a failure to fulfil the engagement; and therefore the defence contended that this was a penalty. His lordship was satisfied, however, that he would be going far beyond the authorities if he held that this was a penalty, and there would be judgment for the plaintiffs for £130 damages, with costs.

Mr. Shearman said he presumed that the usual time would be allowed for payment of the money into court, with a view to an appeal, and his lordship assented.

Mr. Harry Barclay, comedian, has now settled down in Leigh as manager at the Assembly Rooms.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Mr. John P. Harrington, whose visit to Mr. Geo. Lashwood in South Wales was chronicled in this column last week, is finding all the enjoyment that he expected. He writes Messrs. Feldman and Co. re "Mister Pat O'Hare," that the great "George" is making a tremendous hit in this song, and the general opinion is that it will be a terrific pantomime winner. He also sends the Arthur-street firm most satisfactory news re their ballad "Beautiful Garden of Roses," in which Miss Alice Kingsley is gaining golden opinions.

Miss Nellie Neil is still the recipient of congratulations on her rendering of "Ev'rytime the clock goes tick-tock." She has been singing this song regularly since she first produced it at the Hippodrome, Yarmouth, in March last, and writes Messrs. Feldman and Co. that it seems to grow in popularity each town that she visits.

Mr. Arthur Aldridge, "the Pavilion tenor," is going great guns this week at the Pavilion with Feldman's new march song entitled "Mary, you're a big girl now." This number promises to become one of the Feldman hits in coming pantomimes.

Two more Feldman numbers which are enthusiastically received nightly have been produced by Miss May Lilian Levey. They are entitled "Rain, rain, go away," written and composed by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, and "Oh! boys, I've seen you there," from the pen of John P. Harrington and John Neat. The irresistible choruses will soon be heard everywhere.

From all over the country news comes to hand of the success of "Marie Louise," by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford. This is a number which lends itself to effects, and should be a prime favourite with all the best pierrot troupes in the country. This song is published by Messrs. Feldman and Co., who predict for it a popularity equal to "I like your old French bonnet."

"Let's have a little bit of Sunshine" and "What's the matter with father?" are creating something like a furore at Maidstone this week. The numbers are sung by Mr. Fred Barnes, and published by Messrs. Feldman and Co.

Miss May Mars is just now paying a welcome return visit to the Isle of Man, where she last year made herself and "Charlie Brown" immensely popular. On the present occasion Miss Mars is singing two songs by the same authors (A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott), "Ship ahoy!" and the chorus ballad "I wonder if you miss me sometimes." Both songs are tremendously successful, but the last-named has taken Douglas by storm. It is played, sung, and whistled in every part of the island. The Star Music Co. find it necessary to warn artists that this is not a free song. Written permission must be obtained.

Ernest D'Almaine has become a firm favourite with visitors to Douglas Head, where Charles Dare's famous minstrels delight thousands each day. At each performance Mr. D'Almaine creates a furore with his rendering of Mona's favourite ballad "I wonder if you miss me sometimes." Next week Mr. D'Almaine sings this number at the Empire (Mr. Dare's cosy little theatre), where beautiful coloured slides will serve to add a new interest to this charming song.

Miss Maud Mortimer is this week delighting patrons of the Palace Theatre, Blackburn, with Mills and Scott's ubiquitous ballad "I wonder if you miss me sometimes," and flattering reports are also to hand from Dublin and Cardiff, where it is being sung respectively by Miss Nellie Wigley and Kitty Clinton. Londoners have not been neglected, for Miss Marie Blythe has been winning unstinted applause and many recalls with the same song at the Bedford. The Star Music Co. are already receiving applications for pantomime rights.

Whit Cunliffe has found another great winner in his latest comedy song "He's all right." This is by Alf Ellerton, R. P. Weston, and Maurice Scott. The Star Co. have the number in the press.

George Lashwood, who is at present on the Stoll tour, is making an enormous success with his new chorus song "The Moonlight Promenade," by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott. To hear the genial George in this number is a revelation. His original method of cajoling the different sections of the audience to sing the chorus is provocative of much spontaneous laughter, and gets home every time. This is another Star Co. winner.

All Coventry, where Ernie Mayne is starring, is singing "Pork and rabbit" this week, and he is holding the stage for upwards of half an hour. He produced with instantaneous success there on Tuesday a burlesque vocal scena, Pawning a Shirt, written and composed by J. P. Long.

Mr. Edgar Graham has secured from Mr. F. V. St. Clair a new scena for his Living Marionettes entitled "The Music-Hall Parliament."

Mr. St. Clair has scored with a great chorus song, which should be heard in the pantomimes. It is named "I love to see them when they're working in the mills." The refrain is very catchy. Wee Georgie Wood has been scoring at the Oxford with one of Mr. St. Clair's humorous readings.

Miss Amy Clevere's tuneful new number "Black Belle (I'm sorry you're a coon)," is from the same pen that furnished the talented lady with her fine "Ain't you got a black moon?" and G. A. Stevens has published this later number also with Messrs. Francis and Day.

OPENING OF CROYDON HIPPODROME.

This latest addition to the Moss and Stoll circuit was opened on the twice-nightly principle on Monday, and the auditorium was packed at both performances. There was no special ceremony to mark the inauguration, but a ready passport to the favour of the Croydon folk was found in the fine programme arranged by Mr. Oswald Stoll, who has for resident-manager Mr. Stanley Hope (formerly of Jersey). The district-manager is Mr. J. Christie, the stage-manager Mr. D. Horace Harcourt, and the musical-director Mr. H. Kattray, who has been promoted to this position from a leadership at the Shepherd's Bush Empire. The building does honour to the genius of Frank Matcham, who designed it. The old Theatre Royal, on the site of which the Hippodrome is built, was run for many years by Messrs. Roberts, Archer, and Bartlett. On Monday, Harry Simms, light comedian, had the honour of being the first to tread the stage. A great ovation awaited Vesta Tilley, who gave of her best. The Three Meers brought down the house in their comedy wire act; and Jen Latona's comedy songs were encored. Bert Coote and company were immensely popular in the sketch A Lamb on Wall-street; Leonard Charburn's Young Stars gave a pleasing turn; Siems, a clever card and coin manipulator, did well; O'Gust's quaint mimicry caught on; and the Bioscope pictures were worth seeing.

Miss Marie Hall leaves Southampton to-day in the Kenilworth Castle for South Africa. The celebrated violinist will open her world's tour in Durban, and will play in Johannesburg and Cape Town. Miss Hall has also engagements in China, Japan, Australia, and New Zealand, and will return to this country via Canada.

American Vaudeville Artists in England.

[By Americus.]

The American steamers have been a little slack during the past week, relative to the importations of vaudeville artists. The average this week is much lower than any previous week. However, the few that came into port and opened have met with splendid success. The Palace Theatre and the Coliseum both received their share of the new importations.

Montgomery and Moore.

The matinée on Monday at the Coliseum saw for the first time the act known as the "Real Vaudevillians," Montgomery and Moore, two high-class American entertainers, with twenty-five minutes of real fun and laughter. In fact, this couple made such an impression with the audience right from the start, that there was no question as to them becoming real favourites in London. They are both artists in their line, and the English patrons were quick to appreciate their efforts.

Five Mowatts.

These clever fellows from Chicago have been seen in London before, with their premier club juggling act. Closing the big bill at the Coliseum, they proved themselves to be masters of the position, and won unlimited applause throughout for their fine exhibition of skill.

The Great Lester Coming Soon.

The Great Lester is due in London to-day or the first of next week. This clever performer sailed on the Kronprinz from New York last week. He may pay a visit to Berlin before coming into London, where he is booked for an appearance in September.

American Toe Dancer.

Bessie Clayton arives in Paris to-day, where she will remain for three months, returning to America in October. Miss Clayton is making the trip for a vacation and rest, and will spend some few weeks in London before returning to the States.

Miss Gussie Holl Returns.

Miss Gussie Holl, the German imitator, comes to London for a few days, after which she will return for the winter to Berlin, where she is booked on the Continent for a lengthy period.

Harry Corson Clarke and Margaret Dale Owen.

Sailing this month from New York will be Harry Corson Clarke and Margaret Dale Owen, who closed their season some few weeks ago in the States, and will spend their summer and a couple of the fall months in London and on the Continent. Whether the couple will play any time in London has not been decided up to date.

Mr. Passpart in London.

The European representative of the Great Orpheum Circuit, Mr. Passpart, arrived in the City from the Continent on Tuesday night, and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Merrian at the German Club on Wednesday evening. Mr. Passpart came over for a week's stay to attend to some business in addition to paying a little visit to his sister and his daughter, who is with the Merrian act at the Palace Theatre.

London Favourite Signed for the Orpheum Circuit.

I was informed on Monday evening by one who knows that one of the most popular vaudeville artists has signed for Orpheum. When I saw the price that the Orpheum was paying for this act, I chuckled to myself that American managers consider England's best at most any price. The lady who is getting this tremendously big salary is playing London this week. I promised not to mention any names. I may tell you later.

McIntosh Here.

Hughie McIntosh, the Australian promoter of big boxing matches, arrived early in the week from America, and sails back either to-day or Wednesday. All I can say, relative to this busy fellow, is that he has a big boxing treat in store for the lovers of the hit-and-get-away game, in addition to a number of theatrical and vaudeville novelties, which he has gathered during his last trip round the world, and which he will present during the coming fall here in England.

Jimmie Britt.

The clever little lightweight, Jimmie Britt, has had a number of good offers from music-hall agents to do a sketch or monologue in the halls. Jimmie says, "If I could get eight or ten minutes of good stuff I would not mind; but before I do, you can bet I will have a good number, or I don't appear."

Diving Lessons.

The Board of Control of the American Bachelors' Club met last Thursday night. The principal topic before the Board for consideration was: Does Chuck intend to continue taking diving lessons at Brighton, and why is it he is infatuated with this sport? Also, who is the fellow who is trying to outdo Bolo in full dress, and who claims to be a good Bachelor?

Nat Wills' Big Motor.

Standing behind the stage door of the Palace most every day is a big motor. I inquired of Frank Damar the owner, and he replied, "It belongs to a tramp." I thought it funny that a tramp could own such a fine machine. After inquiry I was told that the wealthiest tramp in the world, who was also an actor, was the real owner. Of course, then he told me his name, and I purchased some soda-water!

Bert Levy Booked for Continent.

Six American Dancers.

Some dancing will be seen at the Palace, commencing on Monday night. The Six American Dancers will make all kinds of music with their feet, and do it in all kinds of different ways. Three girls and three boys, who are past masters in their particular line, and who present a pretty and skilful dancing act of the highest class.

The Good-Night Club.

America has organised a Good-night Club. Some of the foremost in its organisation are Dr. Cook, Jimmie Jeffries, vaudeville hypnotists and the Agency Law. As Walter Kellys would often say, "Kiss yourself good-bye!"

Gerrard and Gardner Here.

Mingled among the throng of the American artists every evening, one can notice performer after performer going over and shaking hands with a quiet little couple, and exchanging greetings. The team is Gerard and Gardner, who have been in London for a little, and who have been known in America as two of the foremost entertainers the States have produced. After a stay here, they will return to the other side for the beginning of the seasoin in vaudeville.

EARLE REYNOLDS AND NELLIE DONEGAN.

THOSE CLUB FELLOWS.
5 MOWATTS 5
Playing ENGLAND and the CONTINENT.

Mooney and Holbein.

The senior member of the act has been putting on an act at the Bedford during the past week. The team is thinking seriously of returning to America, where they have been offered a tour. But Mooney says, "I like London, and I rather hate to leave the big city."

Heavy Correspondence.

Eddie Emerson is going to buy a typewriter. The American mail is bringing Eddie so many lovely letters that he is afraid he will get behind with his correspondence.

Geo. Cohan Offered £2,000 a Week.

The New York papers printed an account last week where Marcus Loew had offered Geo. M. Cohan ten thousand dollars for one week at the opening of one of his new theatres. This is some money, isn't it? Suppose George had accepted this offer! I am afraid Marcus Loew would have been the victim of a joke. In fact, the joke would have been on Marcus. Still, he got away with it all right, and got plenty of advertising for his opening. So what's the diff.?

Mindel Kingston a Big Success.

John World stands around the stage of the Follies in New York and says, "I told you." The act up to this summer was known as World and Kingston. But John was so deeply interested in mines that he found it was an effort to play so many engagements with so little rest, so he decided to let Miss Kingston do the act alone. The result is she has been a big winner, and now demands a big price. The act is booked for England after the Follies engagement.

Tournament of Club Jugglers.

Emerson and Baldwin, the Five Mowatts, and another high-class club juggling act are booked for Blackpool the week of August 15. Clubs will be some conversation during the time so many experts line up together.

At Burnley.

McLallen and Carson open at Burnley next week on the Macnaughton tour. The act is thinking seriously of going back to America for a short stay, returning to England to play for some time to come.

Nellie Donegan Much Better.

Nellie Donegan, who has been at Miss Fowler's private nursing hospital in Beaumont-street for the past four weeks, is getting along fine, and will be able to be out by this time next week. Dr. Richards has advised her that she must not attempt to work before September first at least.

Next Week at Leeds.

Helen Trix will be out of London next week, playing at Leeds, after which she returns for a tour of the Stoll houses in and around London.

Miss Held's Mother Very Ill.

I regret to hear of a cable received last Wednesday night by Russell and Held, notifying them of the serious illness of Miss Held's mother in the States. The act is at the Paragon this week.

Martin Beck Gets English Star.

I was quietly told on Tuesday evening by one who knows that Martin Beck had succeeded in getting Ada Reeve's name to a contract for twenty-four weeks. I was also informed that the salary was way up in four figures, and as great as any artist from this side has received for an American appearance. I, personally, am glad to say that I think Miss Reeve is what we call a big find in America, for I don't know when I have sat and enjoyed a single act more than I did this lady's early in the week at the Coliseum. Here is one great artist who is going to be a sensation in America immediately after she makes her appearance.

Berlin Variety Theatre a Sure Thing.

There have been many rumours of the building of a variety theatre in the heart of the city of Berlin by Martin Beck, Meyerfield, and Mr. Alfred Butt, and there have been just as many contradictions of the rumour. I was informed Tuesday night that the Berlin theatre is an assured thing, and that the combination have all agreed to the plans, and that the final articles of agreement will be signed next week by those interested. The plans show that the seating capacity will be 2,000, with a large foyer running around the first balcony.

President Meyerfield Arrives Tuesday.

President Meyerfield, of the Orpheum circuit, will arrive in London on Tuesday. Mr. Meyerfield has been taking a slight tour of the Continent, and enjoying a good vacation in addition to looking after the details of some business relative to the Orpheum circuit.

"Lucky" Baldwin.

"Lucky" Baldwin, of the team of Emerson and Baldwin, advises me that upon his arrival in New York he will not make the jump to Kansas City, Mo., with his partner, but will spend some little time with his parents and friends during the few weeks' vacation the team will take after their arrival home. The team have been rebooked here, after their American time is played.

Great Diver.

The big tank is in at the Palace, and Devine Myrma will start splashing next week.

"Ginger Girl and Sister."

The Doherty Sisters, known as the "ginger girl and her sister," American singing and dancing comedians, are at the Hippodrome. The team arrived last week from a long tour on the Orpheum circuit.

The Strong Man.

Gerard, the strong man, with his act, arrived a few days ago from a tour over the Sullivan and Considine circuit. Mr. Gerard is rebooked over the circuit for next year, and as soon as his Continental time is played will return for a long stay in America.

Magnates' Day in Variety.

Wednesday was a big day in London. There were a number of meetings held between the big men of the vaudeville world. I am convinced of one thing, and that is the Messrs. Butt, Meyerfield, Beck and De Frece combination is a strong one.

Cafés Booker Coming.

Jennie Wagner, of the Hurtig and Seaman's office, who books a number of cafés in the West, including the Portolo Café, 'Frisco, which plays big acts sometimes four months, sails for London next month to look up some good novelties for these cafés.

A Good American Sketch Writer in Town.

Mr. C. Mitchell, of the team of Quinn and Mitchell, who have met with fine success year after year in the States in their own sketches, arrive in London from Carlsbad Wednesday night. Last season the boys played The Real Estate Agent, which proved another big winner for them. Mr. Mitchell sails for New York Saturday, and will open with his act at Atlantic City Aug. 15, and then go direct on the Orpheum tour for thirty weeks, opening in Kansas City.

Waxman in Manchester.

M. D. Waxman plays Manchester next week. This clever actor has made arrangements for New York time, and will produce his big success, Captain Dreyfus, next season with close on to 100 people in the sketch, which will be about the largest cast ever presented in a variety theatre in America.

For Australia.

Harry Rickards has on his books for his tour in Australia the comedy acrobatic pantomime act, Spissell Brothers and Mack. The boys will leave for Australia as soon as they finish their English engagements.

Staley Feeling Much Better.

Andy Staley, who was somewhat under the weather for a few days last week, was around the headquarters a few nights ago, and says he is beginning to feel like himself once again. A slight attack of indigestion was the cause of all the trouble.

Jolson in Town.

Harry Jolson, who did so fine at the Hippodrome recently, and who will shortly appear at the Coliseum, is back in London for a day or so. Mr. Jolson is playing the Stoll tour.

Nat Wills at the Palace.

Nat Wills opened at the Palace Monday afternoon, and got by fine. The tramp comedian was a little bit nervous at the start, but soon got his audience in nice shape, and from that time on he had no trouble in making them laugh at his jokes and parodies every second.

Grace Foster Looking Fine.

"The trip across the water to good old Milwaukee," says Miss Grace Foster, "was one grand trip for me, and I really enjoyed the little vacation immensely." Ritter and Foster will get back in harness about the 15th of this month.

THE NEW COPYRIGHT BILL.

The following is the text of the Bill to amend and consolidate the law relating to copyright :—

Be it enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :—

PART I.

IMPERIAL COPYRIGHT.

Rights.

1.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, copyright shall subsist throughout the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends for the term hereinafter mentioned in every original literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic work the author whereof was at the date of the making of the work a British subject or a resident within such parts of His Majesty's dominions as aforesaid :

Provided that if any work in which copyright subsists is first published elsewhere than in the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends, then, except as otherwise provided by this Act, the copyright in the work shall cease on such publication.

(2) For the purposes of this Act "copyright" means the sole right to produce or reproduce the work or any substantial part thereof in any material form whatsoever and in any language; to perform, or, in the case of a lecture, to deliver, the work or any substantial part thereof in public; if the work is unpublished, to publish the work; and shall include the sole right,—

(a) in the case of a dramatic work, to convert it into a novel or other non-dramatic work;

(b) in the case of a novel or other non-dramatic work, to convert it into a dramatic work, either by way of multiplication of copies or by way of performance in public;

(c) in the case of a literary, dramatic, or musical work, to make any record, perforated roll, or other contrivance by means of which the work may be mechanically performed; and to authorise any such acts as aforesaid :

Provided that—

(i.) copyright shall not be infringed by making for private use an abridgment or a translation of a literary or dramatic work, or an adaptation, transposition, arrangement, or setting of a musical work, or studies or sketches from an artistic work, or by making fair extracts from, or otherwise fairly dealing with, the contents of any such work for the purposes of criticism or review;

(ii.) nothing in this Act shall prevent the author of an artistic work who is not the owner of the copyright therein from using any mould, cast, sketches, or studies made by him for the purpose of the work, provided that he does not thereby repeat or imitate the main design of the work;

(iii.) copyright in a work of sculpture or artistic craftsmanship, if situate in a public place or building, and copyright in an architectural work of art, shall not be infringed by making paintings, drawings, engravings, or photographs thereof;

(iv.) copyright in a lecture delivered in public shall not be infringed by a report of the lecture in a newspaper unless the report is prohibited by notice given either—

(a) orally, at the beginning of the lecture, or, if the lecture is one of a series of lectures given by the same lecturer on the same subject at the same place, at the beginning of the first lecture of the series; or

(b) by a written or printed notice affixed, before the lecture, or the first lecture of the series, is given, on the entrance doors of the building in which the lecture or series of lectures is given, or in a conspicuous place near the lecturer, in letters not less than an inch in height.

TERM OF COPYRIGHT.

2.—(1) Subject to the provision of this Act the term for which copyright shall subsist shall be the life of the author and a period of fifty years after his death :

Provided that if at any time after the death of the author of a work which has been published or performed in public a petition is presented by any person interested to the Comptroller-General of Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks alleging that, by reason of the withholding of the work from the public or of the price charged for copies of the work or for the right to perform the work in public, the reasonable requirements of the public with respect to the work are not satisfied, and praying for the grant of a licence to reproduce the work or perform the work in public, the Comptroller shall consider the petition, and if, after inquiry, he is satisfied that the allegations contained therein are correct, may grant to the petitioner a licence to reproduce or perform the work in public on such terms as respects price and payment of royalties to the owner of the copyright in the work, and otherwise, as he may think fit.

(2) Any decision of the Comptroller under this section shall be subject to appeal to a judge of the High Court, and the decision of that judge shall be final.

(3) A licence granted by the Comptroller under this section shall not apply to any self-governing dominion, but the provisions of this Act with respect to the grant of licences shall apply to every self-governing dominion to which this Act extends, subject to such necessary modifications as the Legislature of that dominion may determine.

OWNERSHIP OF COPYRIGHT, &c.

3.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the first owner of the copyright in any work shall be the author of the work :

Provided that—

(a) where the work was ordered by some other person and was made for valuable consideration in pursuance of that order, then, in the absence of any agreement in writing to the contrary, the person by whom the work was ordered shall be the first owner of the copyright, unless the work is an architectural work of art, or is an artistic work intended for a public place or building, in which case the author shall be the first owner of the copyright, but shall not be entitled to make, or authorise the making of, reproductions of the work except with the consent of that other person, and that other person shall be entitled to the same remedies in respect of the infringement of the copyright in the work as if he were the owner of the copyright; and

(b) where the author was in the employment of some other person and the work was made in the course of his employment by that person, the first owner of the copyright shall, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, be the person by whom the author was employed.

(2) The transfer on sale or otherwise of an artistic work, other than an engraving or photograph, by the owner of the copyright therein shall, in the absence of an express agreement to the contrary, be deemed to transfer the copyright in the work in any case where the transferor is not the author of the work.

(3) The owner of the copyright in any work may assign the right, either wholly or partially, and either generally or subject to limitations to any particular country or place, and either for the whole term of the copyright or any part thereof, and may grant any interest in the right by licence, but subject to the foregoing provisions of this section as to the effect of the transfers of certain works, any such assignment or grant shall not be valid unless it is in writing signed by the owner of the right in respect of which the assignment or grant is made, or by his duly authorised agent.

CIVIL REMEDIES.

4.—In addition to any remedies otherwise conferred by law, the owner of the copyright in any work shall have the same remedies against a person having in his possession for sale or dealing with any pirated copies of the work, or any plate used or intended to be used for the production of pirated copies of the work, as if the copies or plate were his property, and accordingly may take proceedings for the recovery of the possession thereof or in respect of the conversion thereof.

INFRINGEMENT BY SALE, &c.

5.—Copyright in a work shall be deemed to be infringed by any person who sells or lets for hire, or exposes, offers, or has in his possession for sale or hire, or distributes or exhibits in public, or imports for sale or hire into any part of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends any work which to his knowledge infringes copyright or would infringe copyright if it had been made within such parts of His Majesty's dominions as aforesaid.

EXEMPTION OF INNOCENT INFRINGER FROM LIABILITY TO PAY DAMAGES, &c.

6.—Where proceedings are taken in respect of the infringement of the copyright in any work and the defendant in his defence alleges that he was not aware of the existence of the copyright in the work, the plaintiff shall not be entitled to any remedy other than an injunction or interdict in respect of the infringement if the defendant proves that at the date of the infringement he was not aware and had not reasonable means of making himself aware that copyright subsisted in the work :

Provided that if the proper particulars were before the date of the infringement correctly entered in a register established under this Act, or, in the case of a work first published in, or the author whereof was a resident in, a British possession under the law of which a register has been established within that possession, if similar particulars have been correctly entered in that register, the defendant shall be deemed to have had means of making himself aware that copyright subsisted in the work.

REMEDIES IN THE CASE OF ARCHITECTURE.

7.—(1) Where the copyright in any work is infringed by the construction of a building or other structure, the owner of the copyright shall not be entitled to obtain an injunction or interdict to restrain the construction of such other building or structure or to order its demolition when constructed.

(2) Such of the other provisions of this Act as confer on the owner of the copyright in any work the same remedies against a person having in his possession for sale or dealing with a pirated copy of the work as if it were his property, or as impose summary penalties, shall not apply in any case to which this section applies.

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.

8.—An action in respect of infringement of copyright shall not be commenced after the expiration of twelve months next after the infringement.

SUMMARY REMEDIES.

PENALTIES FOR DEALING WITH PIRATED COPIES, &c.

9.—(1) If any person commits any of the following offences

(a) makes for sale any pirated copy of a work in which copyright subsists; or

(b) sells or lets for hire, or exposes, offers, or has in his possession for sale or hire any pirated copy of any such work; or

(c) distributes or exhibits in public any pirated copy of any such work; or

he shall, unless he proves that he acted innocently, be guilty of an offence under this Act and be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding forty shillings for every copy dealt with in contravention of this section, but not exceeding fifty pounds in respect of the same transaction :

Provided that a person convicted of an offence under paragraph (b) of this subsection who has not been previously convicted of any such offence, and who proves that the copies of the work in respect of which the offence was committed had printed or marked thereon in some conspicuous place, a name and address purporting to be that of the printer or publisher, shall not be liable to any penalty under this section unless it is proved that the copies were to his knowledge pirated copies.

(2) If any person makes or has in his possession any plate for the purpose of making pirated copies of any work in which copyright subsists, he shall, unless he proves that he acted innocently, be guilty of an offence under this Act, and be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds.

(3) The court before which any such proceedings are taken may in addition order that all copies of the work or all plates in the possession of the offender, which appear to it to be pirated copies or plates for the purpose of making pirated copies, be destroyed or delivered up to the owner of the copyright.

SEARCH WARRANT AND HAWKING OF PIRATED COPIES OF WORKS

(a) if satisfied by evidence that there is reasonable ground for believing that pirated copies of the work are being hawked, carried about, sold, or offered for sale, may by order authorise a constable to seize the copies without warrant and to bring them before the court, and, on proof that the copies are pirated, may order that they be destroyed or delivered up to the owner of the copyright :

(b) if satisfied by information on oath that there is reasonable ground for believing that an offence under this Act is being committed on any premises, may grant a search warrant authorising the constable named therein to enter the premises between the hours of six of the clock in the morning and nine of the clock in the evening (and, if necessary, to use force in making such entry, whether by breaking open doors or otherwise) and to seize any copies of any work or any plates in respect of which he has reasonable grounds for suspecting that an offence under this Act is being committed, and may, on proof that the copies or plates brought before the court in pursuance of the warrant are pirated copies or plates intended to be used for the purpose of making pirated copies, order that they be destroyed or delivered up to the owner of the copyright.

POWER TO SEIZE COPIES OF WORKS ON HAWKERS.

11.—(1) A constable may, without warrant, on the request in writing of the apparent owner of the copyright in a work, or of his agent thereto authorised in writing, and at the risk of that owner, seize any pirated copy of the work which is being hawked, carried about, sold, or offered for sale.

(2) Every copy so seized shall be conveyed by the constable before a court of summary jurisdiction, and, on proof that it is a pirated copy, shall be destroyed or delivered up to the owner of the copyright.

POWER TO ARREST WITHOUT WARRANT PERSONS SELLING, &c.

12.—(1) Any constable may take into custody without warrant any person who in any street or public place sells or exposes, offers, or has in his possession for sale any pirated copies of any such work as may be specified in any general written authority addressed to the chief officer of police, and signed by the apparent owner of the copyright in such work or his agent thereto authorised in writing, requesting the arrest, at the risk of such owner, of all persons found committing offences under this Act in respect to such work, or who offers for sale any pirated copies of any such specified work by personal canvass or by personally delivering advertisements or circulars.

PIRATED COPIES OF WORKS.

(2) A copy of every written authority addressed to a chief officer of police under this section shall be open to inspection at all reasonable hours by any person without payment of any fee, and any person may take copies of or make extracts from any such authority.

(3) For the purposes of this section the expression "chief officer of police"—

(a) with respect to the City of London, means the Commissioner of City Police;

(b) elsewhere in England has the same meaning as in the Police Act, 1890;

(c) in Scotland has the same meaning as in the Police (Scotland) Act, 1890;

(d) in the police district of Dublin metropolis means either of the Commissioners of Police for the said district;

APPEALS TO QUARTER SESSIONS.

13.—Any person aggrieved by a summary conviction in England or Ireland of an offence under the foregoing provisions of this Act may appeal to a court of quarter sessions.

EXTENT OF PROVISIONS AS TO SUMMARY REMEDIES.

14.—The provisions of this Act with respect to summary remedies shall extend only to the United Kingdom.

IMPORTATION OF COPIES.

15.—(1) Copies made out of the United Kingdom of any work in which copyright subsists as to which the owner of the copyright gives notice in writing by himself or his agent to the Commissioners of Customs and Excise, that he is desirous that such copies should not be imported into the United Kingdom, shall not be so imported, and shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be deemed to be included in the table of prohibitions and restrictions contained in section forty-two of the Customs Consolidation Act, 1876, and that section shall apply accordingly.

(2) Before detaining any such copies or taking any further proceedings with a view to the forfeiture thereof under the law relating to the Customs, the Commissioners of Customs and Excise may require the regulations under this section, whether as to information, conditions, or other matters, to be complied with, and may satisfy themselves in accordance with those regulations that the copies are such as are prohibited by this section to be imported.

(3) The Commissioners of Customs and Excise may make regulations, either general or special, respecting the detention and forfeiture of copies the importation of which is prohibited by this section, and the conditions, if any, to be fulfilled before such detention and forfeiture, and may by such regulations determine the information, notices, and security to be given, and the evidence requisite for any of the purposes of this section, and the mode of verification of such evidence.

(4) The regulations may apply to copies of all works the importation of which is prohibited by this section, or different regulations may be made respecting different classes of such works.

(5) The regulations may provide for the informant reimbursing the Commissioners of Customs and Excise all expenses and damages incurred in respect of any detention made on this information, and of any proceedings consequent on such detention.

(6) The foregoing provisions of this section shall have effect as if they were part of the Customs Consolidation Act, 1876.

(5) The registers and indexes established under this section shall be in the prescribed form, and shall at all reasonable times be open to inspection, and any person shall be entitled to take copies of or make extracts from any such register, and the registrar shall, if so required, give a copy of any entry in any such register certified by him to be a true copy, and any such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the matters thereby certified.

(8) The Board of Trade may make regulations prescribing any matters which under this section are to be prescribed, and generally for carrying this section into effect, and any such regulations may require that, in the case of an artistic work desired to be registered, there shall be furnished a representation of the work sufficient for the identification thereof.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS AS TO CERTAIN WORKS.

18.—In the case of a literary, dramatic, or musical work or engraving not published, nor, in the case of a dramatic or musical work, performed in public, nor, in the case of a lecture, delivered in public, in the lifetime of the author, copyright shall, subject to the provisions of this Act as to first publication elsewhere than in the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends, subsist till publication, or performance or delivery in public, whichever may first happen, and for a term of fifty years thereafter.

Provided that—

(a) if the author of any work in which any right specified in the first column of the First Schedule to this Act subsists at the commencement of this Act has before that date assigned the right or granted any interest therein for the whole term of the right, then at the date when but for the passing of this Act the right would have expired the corresponding right conferred by this section shall, in the absence of express agreement, pass to the author of the work, and any interest therein created before the commencement of this Act and then subsisting shall determine; but the person who immediately before the date at which the right would so have expired was the owner of the right or interest shall be entitled at his option (to be signified in writing not more than one year nor less than six months before the last-mentioned date) either—

(i) to an assignment of the right or the grant of a similar interest therein for the remainder of the term of the right for such consideration as, failing agreement, may be determined by arbitration; or

(d) the sole right of making and authorising the making of records, perforated rolls, or other contrivances by means of which literary, dramatic, or musical works may be mechanically performed shall not be enjoyed by the

APPLICATION TO BRITISH POSSESSIONS.

25.—(1) This Act, except such of the provisions thereof as are expressly restricted to the United Kingdom, shall extend throughout His Majesty's dominions: Provided that it shall not extend to a self-governing Dominion, unless declared by the Legislature of that Dominion to be in force therein either without any modifications or additions, or with such modifications and additions relating exclusively to procedure and remedies or necessary to adapt this Act to the circumstances of the Dominion as may be enacted by such Legislature.

(2) If the Secretary of State certifies by notice published in the London Gazette that any self-governing Dominion has passed legislation substantially identical with this Act, except for the omission of any provisions which are expressly restricted to the United Kingdom, or for such modifications as are verbal only, or are necessary to adapt the Act to the circumstances of the Dominion, or relate exclusively to procedure or remedies or to works first published within or the authors whereof are residents in the Dominion, then, whilst such legislation continues in force, the Dominion shall for the purposes of the rights conferred by this Act be treated as if it were a Dominion to which this Act extends.

LEGISLATIVE POWERS OF SELF-GOVERNING DOMINIONS.

26.—(1) The Legislature of any self-governing Dominion may at any time repeal all or any of the enactments relating to copyright passed by Parliament (including this Act) so far as they are operative within that Dominion: Provided that no such repeal shall prejudicially affect any legal rights existing at the time of the repeal.

(2) In any self-governing Dominion to which this Act does not extend, the enactments repealed by this Act shall, so far as they are operative in that Dominion, continue in force until repealed by the Legislature of that Dominion.

(3) Where His Majesty in Council is satisfied that the law of a self-governing Dominion to which this Act does not extend, and which has not passed legislation substantially identical with this Act, provides adequate protection within the Dominion for the works of authors who at the time of the making of the work were British subjects resident elsewhere than in that Dominion, or who, not being British subjects, were at such time residents within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends, His Majesty may, by Order in Council, direct that this Act, except such parts (if any) thereof as may be specified in the Order, and subject to any conditions contained therein, shall, within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends, apply to works the authors whereof were at the time of the making of the work residents within the first-mentioned Dominion, and that copyright subsisting by virtue of this Act in any work shall not cease by reason of the work being first published in that Dominion; but, save as provided by such an order, works the authors whereof were residents in a Dominion to which this Act does not extend, and which has not passed legislation substantially identical with this Act, shall not, whether they are British subjects or not, be entitled to any protection under this Act:

Provided that no such Order shall confer any rights within a self-governing Dominion, but the Governor in Council of any self-governing Dominion to which this Act extends, may by Order, confer within that Dominion the like rights as His Majesty in Council is under the foregoing provision of this subsection authorised to confer within other parts of His Majesty's dominions.

POWER OF LEGISLATURES OF BRITISH POSSESSIONS TO PASS SUPPLEMENTAL LEGISLATION.

27.—The Legislature of any British possession to which this Act extends may modify or add to any of the provisions of this Act in its application to the possession, but, except so far as such modifications and additions relate to procedure and remedies, they shall aply only to works the authors whereof were at the time of the making of the work residents in the possession and to works first published in the possession.

APPLICATION TO PROTECTORATES.

28.—His Majesty may by Order in Council extend this Act to any territories under his protection and to Cyprus, and on the making of any such Order this Act shall have effect as if the territories to which it applies or Cyprus were part of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends.

PART II.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

29.—(1) His Majesty may by Order in Council direct that this Act (except such parts, if any, thereof as may be specified in the order) shall apply—

(a) to literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic works, or any class thereof, the authors whereof were at the time of the making of the work subjects or citizens of a foreign country to which the order relates, in like manner as if the authors were British subjects; and

(b) in respect of residence in a foreign country to which the Order relates in like manner as if such residence were residence in the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends; and

(c) to works first published in a foreign country to which the Order relates, in like manner as if they were first published within the parts of His Majesty's dominions; to which this Act extends; and thereupon, subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, and of the Order, this Act shall apply accordingly:

Provided that—

(i.) before making an Order in Council under this section in respect of any foreign country His Majesty shall be satisfied that that foreign country has made, or has undertaken to make, such provisions, if any, as it appears to His Majesty expedient to require for the protection of persons entitled to copyright under the provisions of Part I. of this Act:

(ii.) the Order in Council may provide that the term of copyright within such parts of His Majesty's dominions as aforesaid shall not exceed that conferred by the law of the country to which the Order relates:

(iii.) the provisions of this Act as to the delivery of copies of books shall not apply to works first published in such country, except so far as is provided by the Order:

(iv.) the Order in Council may provide that the enjoyment of the rights conferred by this Act shall be subject to the accomplishment of such conditions and formalities (if any) as may be prescribed by the Order:

(v.) in applying the provisions of this Act as to existing works the Order in Council may make such modifications as appear necessary, and may provide that nothing in those provisions as so applied shall be construed as reviving any right of preventing the production or importation of any translation in any case where the right has ceased by virtue of section five of the International Copyright Act, 1886.

(2) An Order in Council under this section may extend to all the several countries named or described therein.

EVIDENCE OF FOREIGN COPYRIGHT.

30. Where it is necessary to prove the existence in a foreign country to which an Order in Council under this Part of this Act applies of the copyright in any work, or the ownership of such right, an extract from a register, or a certificate, or other document stating the existence of such right, or the person who is the owner of such right, if authenticated by the official seal of a Minister of State of the said foreign country, or by the official seal or the signature of a British diplomatic or consular officer acting in such country, shall be admissible as evidence of the facts named therein, and all courts shall take judicial notice of every such official seal and signature as is in this section mentioned, and shall admit in evidence, without proof, the documents authenticated by it.

APPLICATION OF PART II. TO BRITISH POSSESSIONS.

31.—(1) An Order in Council under this Part of this Act shall apply to all His Majesty's dominions to which this Act extends except self-governing Dominions and any other possession specified in the order with respect to which it appears to His Majesty expedient that the Order should not apply.

(2) The Governor in Council of any self-governing Dominion to which this Act extends may, as respects that Dominion, make the like orders as under this Part of this Act His Majesty in Council is authorised to make with respect to His Majesty's dominions other than self-governing Dominions, and the provisions of this Part of this Act shall, with the necessary modifications, apply accordingly.

(3) Where it appears to His Majesty expedient to except from the provisions of any order any part of his dominions not being a self-governing Dominion it shall be lawful for His Majesty by the same or any other Order in Council to declare that such order and this Part of this Act shall not, and the same shall not, apply to such part, except so far as is necessary for preventing any prejudice to any rights acquired previously to the date of such Order.

PART III.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS.

THE CHARLES WILSON MEMORIAL AT HIGHGATE CEMETERY, UNVEILED ON THURSDAY, AUG. 4.

PROVISIONS AS TO ORDERS IN COUNCIL.

33.—(1) His Majesty in Council may make Orders for altering, revoking, or varying any Order in Council made under this Act, or under any enactments repealed by this Act, but any Order made under this section shall not affect prejudicially any rights or interests acquired or accrued at the date when the Order comes into operation, and shall provide for the protection of such rights and interests.

(2) Every Order in Council made under this Act shall be published in the London Gazette and shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after it is made, and shall have effect as if enacted in this Act.

SAVING OF UNIVERSITY COPYRIGHT.

34.—Nothing in this Act shall deprive any of the universities and colleges mentioned in the Copyright Act, 1775, of any copyright they already possess or may hereafter acquire under that Act, but the remedies and penalties for infringement of any such copyright shall be under this Act and not under that Act.

SAVING OF COMPENSATION TO CERTAIN LIBRARIES.

35.—There shall continue to be charged on and paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom such annual compensation as is at the commencement of this Act payable in pursuance of any Act as compensation to a library for the loss of the right to receive gratuitous copies of books:

Provided that this compensation shall not be paid to a library in any year unless the Treasury are satisfied that the compensation for the previous year has been applied in the purchase of books for the use of and to be preserved in the library.

(a) in the United Kingdom, on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and twelve, or such earlier date as may be fixed by Order in Council;

FILM GOSSIP.

The Cinematograph and Charity.

CINEMATOGRAPH pictures illustrating the good work that is being done by the Middlesex Hospital are now being shown at the Foresters' Music Hall, Mile End, every evening. During the exhibition a collection is made in aid of Prince Francis of Teck's fund to relieve the Middlesex Hospital of the existing heavy debt.

New Picture Hall in Bristol.

THE exceedingly handsome new Bristol picture hall, known as the King's Hall, Old Market-street, was opened on the 28th ult. The King's Hall is the property of Mr. J. E. H. Moneypenny, who also owns the Queen's Hall, situated in Peter-street. No expense has been spared in erecting a building which is a credit to all concerned. The decorative work is very artistic, and is a most effective combination of white and gold. Mr. C. Grant, who has managed the Queen's Hall so admirably, will also have the King's Hall under his control. The following was the capital programme of films shown:—Red Man's Way (dramatic), The Entombed Balkan Woman (dramatic), The Nurse's Trunk (comic), The Conqueror (dramatic), Two Bears (comic), Tontolini as a Ballet Girl (comic), The Persistent Lover (comic), and John the Usher (dramatic).

The Animatophone.

THE Animatophone is the latest thing in the entertainment line. It is a combination of the cinematograph and the gramophone. By its means you may hear the music of the finest opera and watch at the same time the movements in dumb show of the principal singers on the stage. During last week at the Cinematograph Theatre in Great Windmill-street, Piccadilly Circus, a private animatophone exhibition was held, when some selections were given (in English) from Verdi's Il Trovatore. The acoustic properties of the theatre are excellent, and it was possible to follow every word of the opera.

Presentation to Mr. Harry Tindell.

MR. HARRY TINDELL, who has been manager at the People's Palace, Portsmouth, for Jury's Imperial Pictures, Ltd., since the opening, and who leaves to take up another appointment with the firm in London, was the recipient of several handsome presents from the staff, &c., including gold mounted umbrella, silver-mounted walking-stick, and pipe and tobacco pouch, suitably inscribed. Mr. Tindell during his stay in Portsmouth has made many friends.

THE Picture Palace at Hunstanton maintains its popularity under the management of Mr. S. W. Barkham. The fine selection of films for this week includes The Converts, Sugar Industry, Coaching Marathon, The Imps, and a number of excellent comics.

Arthur Hickman's New Appointment.

MR. ARTHUR HICKMAN has been appointed district-manager for the London and Provincial Electric Theatres, Ltd., with headquarters at Birmingham, whilst Mr. James S. De Vine succeeds that gentleman as resident-manager at the same company's house at Wolverhampton.

SHEFFIELD has this week added to its list of amusement resorts by the opening on Bank Holiday of the Sheffield Picture Palace, occupying a central situation in Union-street. It is a handsome white building, the general design, both exterior and interior, being pleasing and elaborate. It has a seating capacity of about 1,000, all the seats being of the convenient tip-up type, and commanding an uninterrupted view of the stage. The safety of the public has been kept in mind, the entire building being constructed of fire-resisting material. There are five emergency exits, and powerful hydrants are distributed throughout. The building has been erected by a local firm, Messrs. G. Longden, Limited, from designs by Messrs. Benton and Roberts. The proprietors are the Sheffield Picture Palace, Limited. Mr. Leonard Shaw is resident-manager and Mr. Horton operator.

New Picture Theatre at Sheffield.

THE latest addition to Sheffield's new picture theatres (now numbering five) is the Picture Palace, which was successfully opened on Bank Holiday. The building is centrally situated in Union-street, a few feet from the old Alhambra Palace and nearly opposite the Empire stage-door. The site, which was formerly occupied by English's Royal Cirque, is in the heart of the new local theatreland, and close to the new Town Hall. The white elevation, with its well-modelled portico, arches, alcoves, and pilasters, looks charming, and it is an architectural addition of no mean order to the street. The auditorium is about 180ft. long by about 45ft. wide, and its construction is on up-to-date lines.

Admirably Equipped Throughout.

THE visitors to the long and well-raked saloon and the luxuriously furnished balcony have a perfect view of the stage without any fear of their enjoyment being spoiled by the matinée-hat problem. The operating chamber is entirely cut off from the auditorium, and it is fitted with the latest machinery, including the Vivaphone and the Auxeto gramophone. There is a commodious and well-appointed stage with comfortable dressing rooms attached, and, in fact, every convenience for the comfort and safety of public, artists, and electrical staff. The theatre is artistically decorated throughout, and the house, being perfectly isolated, is well provided with direct exits. All the seats are of the latest tip-up pattern. The place is licensed for music, singing, and dancing. The proprietors are the Sheffield Picture Palace Co., Ltd., and Mr. Leonard Shaw, the acting-manager, is their smart and courteous representative.

Two New Picture Houses for Leicester.

LEICESTER is being well provided with picture houses, two additional ones having been completed, and are now opened to the public.

Grand Electric Palace.

THE Grand Electric Palace in Silver-street is within a very few yards of the Royal Opera House, and is the enterprise of the Midland Electric Theatres, Ltd., who have the sole rights in the Midlands for the Kinemacolor films. The building is a handsome structure, both inside and externally, and has elicited the admiration of its patrons. It will accommodate 600 people, the whole of the seating being tip-up chairs. It is unquestionably the prettiest picture hall at present opened in Leicester, the upholstering, decorations, &c., being of a most lavish and artistic kind, the colour scheme blending in a harmonious manner, and the hall can truly be called "The Palace of Beauty," as is depicted in gold lettering on the outside front of the building. There is a double set of machines, which are driven by motor, and the pictures shown are to be altered twice a week, and will include the very latest released, including the Kinemacolor pictures. Mr. Joseph Eke is the courteous local manager for the company, and bids fair to make many friends at Leicester.

Boulevard Electric Theatre.

THE other hall opened is the Boulevard Electric Theatre, which runs alongside the Boulevard Rink, being a little distance from the centre of the town, and will cater for a large district in the West End. The decorations and scenery have been done by that clever theatrical scenic artist Mr. C. D. Leigh, who was for many years at the Royal Opera House under Colonel Winstanley. The colour scheme is pale green and carnation, and the building presents a really charming appearance. It will seat 600 people, the whole of the seating being tip-up chairs. The stage is a regulation one, as it is intended to make a break in the picture entertainment by engaging talent. A very fine list of films are shown this week, and are to be changed twice weekly. The managing-director of the company is Mr. J. Noble, a gentleman well known in the town. The Hamoril Concert Party are this week's additional attraction.

Reno Pictures Prohibited.

THE Gateshead Council on Wednesday night, by sixteen votes to nine, expressed disapproval at the Johnson-Jeffries fight pictures being exhibited in the town. The Free Church Council sent a letter on the subject, expressing the hope that the pictures would not be allowed.

Life-Motion Floral Scenes.

THAT the scope of natural-colour kinematography is practically illimitable is to be amply proven on Monday evening next, when there is to be included in the "Kinemacolor" exhibition at the Palace Theatre a series of life-motion floral scenes. In no instance has the camera taken less than two whole days and nights to record the flowering of a single bud. Yet these normal effects will now be presented with such dramatic suddenness that the development of forty-eight hours is disclosed in two minutes.

Minden Day.

ADDITIONAL subjects to be shown in animation and nature's tints at the Palace include "Minden Day," trooping the colours by the Lancashire Fusiliers at Tidworth on the anniversary of the great day when seven infantry battalions met and repelled the combined French cavalry at Minden. A third reel will introduce the cream of the canine world, or the prize-winners at the many dog shows of the season at the Botanic Gardens.

Hastings Picture Palaces.

AT the Public Hall, Hastings, the People's Picture Palace Company, directed by Mr. F. R. Griffiths, who was the pioneer of this class of entertainment locally, reopened on Monday for the season under the management of Mr. Bert Forss, and presented a powerful programme of pictures, which included The Highlander's Defiance, a dramatic war picture, and Conscience, or The Baker's Boy. The pictures are varied by a clever mimical performance by Miss Rubie Zethus. The Pelham Hall Electric Theatre, managed by Mr. T. C. Daly, has secured a large share of patronage, and presents continuous performances. The American Palace Pier Company offer two performances daily to its patrons in the Pier Pavilion. At the Electric Theatre in Wellington-place continuous performances of highly interesting pictures give pleasure to many of the numerous holiday-makers.

No Sunday Pictures.

DEALING with a number of applications for renewal of cinematograph licences, the Wrexham Corporation, on the 29th ult., declined to allow entertainments to be given on Sundays, and accordingly granted in each case a six days' licence only.

Birmingham Electric Theatre.

THIS new cinematograph theatre, one of the many belonging to the London and Provincial Electric Theatres, Ltd., Charing Cross-road, London, was successfully opened on Saturday, July 30. The decorative scheme is green, gold, and white. The architects are Messrs. Ward and Ball, Colmore-road, Birmingham. Mr. Reynolds-Benjamin, the manager and chief of staff, was responsible for the excellent organisation, of which the attention to detail was a marked feature. Messrs. Dallows and Messrs. Dean, of Birmingham, were responsible for the building and decoration. The opening passed off without a hitch, and is another success to be added to the astute manager's already heavy list.

Fratton Electric Theatre.

AND yet another fine exhibition of animated pictures opened its doors to the public on Saturday afternoon, July 30. In shape and size capitally adapted for the purpose, with accommodation for some 250 "gazers," on richly-upholstered tip-up seats, the Fratton Electric Theatre, brilliantly illuminated as its name implies with electric light, in close proximity to Fratton Railway Station, if there is room for additional houses of entertainment this latest erection should command success.

Stafford Picture Palace.

THE Electric Picture Palace, Stafford, was opened on Saturday. The building, which is of corrugated iron, and lined inside with fireproof asbestos slate, has been built on the Foregate. It is 70ft. by 45ft., and is capable of holding about 600 people. There are six exits 5ft. in width, in addition to two entrances.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD

The Amended Moveable Dwellings Bill.

We are glad to be in a position to set before our readers the text of the new Bill. It will be found in a special article on this page. It is hardly possible to over-estimate the importance of the various amendments inserted by the Select Committee.

As the measure leaves the Select Committee to go before the Committee of the whole House it is a complete vindication and proof that the slanderous charges brought by fanatics and faddists against the domestic and health conditions of showpeople were without foundation. Showpeople as a class are now fully exonerated. We have to thank the members of the Select Committee for their frank acceptance of the evidence for the showmen's claim to be good and lawful members of the community, not needing special and invidious legislation for either morals or health. It is a great triumph for the organised showmen, and it will be a matter for profound satisfaction for the noble band of Guild workers who have carried on the splendid work of vindication of show life. With regard to the trade and business of the showman, there are points in the new Bill that will need careful consideration and amendment. These matters are pointed out in the special article, to which we now draw our readers' attention.

Settlement of the Oldham Dispute.

A somewhat serious dispute between the Oldham Corporation and the British Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union has, we are officially informed, been amicably settled.

The dispute arose over the important point, in these days of combination and trade organisation, of the right of collective bargaining and representative negotiations. The Corporation for a time refused to acknowledge the agent and secretary of the trade union as the representative of the members. The showmen and roundabouts owners had grievances to lay before the Borough Council with regard to the Oldham Wakes. The Corporation refused to acknowledge either the society or its secretary. This high-handed proceeding has, we rejoice to learn, been now abandoned; better counsels have prevailed, and Oldham now takes its stand with other progressive towns in recognising the advantage of dealing with the organised showmen for the maintenance and betterment of its fairs.

We understand the friendly feeling that now happily prevails has led to the redress of grievances with regard to tolls and the order and arrangement of the fair-ground. We congratulate Mr. Hurst and his colleagues in the union on the peaceful termination of the dispute.

Manchester Holiday Fairs.

This year the famous wakes at Longsight—a populous suburb of the city—coincided with the August Bank Holiday, the consequence being that many of the show concerns usually found at this fair were not able to attend it. This, however, made but little difference, for, as far as space permitted, the wakes-ground was crowded with high-class machines, shows, throwing games, pannum, and other stalls in goodly array. The principal amusement caterers were: James Norman, with cinematograph theatre; T. Hurst, with racing birds; J. Green, with motor-cars; J. H. Geoghegan, with galloping horses; Wm. Mitchell, with steam yachts; Ling, with houp-la circle and games; Gunthorpe, with photo booth; Passagno, with refreshment tent and ice-cream stalls; J. Royle, Mrs. Marsden, and Mrs. Jewell, with shooting ranges; Jennings, with gingerbread stalls; and coker-sheets, houp-la frames, football penalties, watch-la stalls, dart boards, and games by Messrs. C. Wright, J. White, Murphy Brothers, J. Jones, Jennings Brothers, Brennan, J. Leonard, Stott, Butterworth, A. Marsden, and others.

On another pitch were located E. Holland's motor-car and galloping horses sets, and Messrs. Beckett, J. Jones, and Cordwell Brothers, with houp-las and variety frames.

Alexandra's Circus on Tour.

Alexandra's Circus has just visited the Gaol Ground, Salisbury. It is the first time they have occupied this new site. We are glad to see they still retain the good old circus procession, with its triumphal cars, &c., which, after parading the city, returned to the spacious two-pole tent, with its comfortable seating arrangements and splendid lighting effects. Mr. M. Corbett, the leader of the band, deserves praise for the musical portion of the show, which was much appreciated. A most varied programme was presented, including the Bros. Zeena with one of the best horizontal bar turns we have seen. Mr. John Yelding gave two fine equestrian acts; Kurio, the contortionist, astonished the audience with the easy and graceful manner in which he performed apparently impossible feats; Mlle. Hettie, a juvenile rider, gave a pleasing turn; Hyatt introduced some wonderful juggling, and concluded by a fine display of lighted torches, which he manipulated at lightning speed whilst blindfolded and enveloped in a sack; Bess, a highly-trained mare, was introduced with much success. One of the principal attractions was that provided by the Lo-lo and May Trio of gymnaste and trapezists, which fairly brought down the house. Their turn showed skilful training, some fine tricks being given whilst being suspended by the teeth to a trapeze, and caused a perfect furore. The clowns were in much demand, Hairpin being highly amusing, and his jokes were eagerly looked for and much appreciated. He was supported by Funny Freddy and Chicken. Maccau's performing dogs provided a well-trained animal turn, and came in for a great reception. The spectacle "Raisuli" concluded an enjoyable evening's entertainment. Mr. D. Taylor, jun., is a most courteous manager, and is to be congratulated on the smartly-worked programme.

Holiday Fair and Amusements at Hastings.

For the August holidays Messrs. Gilbey and Davison have brought to the Central Cricket and Recreation Ground a big array of machine novelties and variety stalls, and holiday-makers have largely availed themselves of the galloping horses, overboats, shooting ranges, swings, houplas, and other games. The Borough Entertainments Association also have organised a series of al-fresco entertainments and fêtes. On Tuesday an illuminated concert was held in the St. Leonards Gardens. Herr Simon Wurm directed the Viennese Band, whose excerpts were varied by the Male Voice Quartet of the Westminster Singers. On Thursday a Children's Fête in the Alexandra Park was a popular function. For the maypole, fancy, and other dances the children had been well trained by Miss Muriel Jukes. Other features were Mr. Philip Goepel's School Children's Orchestra of sixty performers; a military and gymnastic display by a section of the Imperial Scouts and the Emmanuel Naval Brigade; Wallet Scott's variety company, and Wallis Arthur's popular company of comedians, the grounds being illuminated, and the Red Hungarian Band supplying music for dancing in a large enclosure on the lawn. A week of Olympic Games has included, on separate days, cycling, running, swimming, sailing and boating, bowls and quoits, a fishing competition, and a Fire Brigade tournament, to which events the Borough Member, Mr. Alfred du Cros, has contributed prizes.

Crecraft's Coliseum at Llanelly.

The very grand new show just opened here by Mrs. Crecraft, the oldest travelling show proprietress on the road, with its very elaborately carved front and its most comfortable and well-decorated interior, is really one of the finest travelling. In addition to the pictures, varieties are given nightly by Lloyd and Lewis, funny comedians; and a very clever show by Restill, the Yorkshire collier, and his daughter, Myra, thought readers.

"Rise, Sir Harry Wright, Knight."

Harry Wright was talking to some friends on Thursday in the Hall-by-the-Sea, Margate, when Lord George Sanger entered. Harry said: "Good morning, Mr. Sanger." He said: "Let me see, who is it?" "Harry Wright" was the reply. Lord George remarked: "Why, of course. How are you? I think you should be called Sir Harry Wright." Harry remarked: "But I have never been knighted." Lord George said: "Then you shall be. Bend the knee." Harry did so, and to the delight of all present Lord George raised his walking-cane, struck Harry Wright on the shoulder, and said: "Rise, Sir Harry, now we both have titles."

The White City, Manchester.

Saturday, July 30, was the occasion of the second annual brass band contest at the White City, Old Trafford, Manchester, for the permanent silver shield and seven cash prizes. The test piece was an arrangement of the works of Weber, and all the bands gave splendid renditions of it, and the judging had to be carefully considered where all were so very good. First prize and the shield were awarded to Perfection Soap Works, and others in order to Foden's Motor Works, Pendleton Old, Gossage's Soap Works, Wingates Temperance, Hebden Bridge, and Kirkby-in-Ashfield Prize.

Next Saturday, the 13th, the Boiler Makers and Iron and Steel Shipbuilders' Society will hold a demonstration and picinc at the White City, when several M.P.'s will address the crowds, and five bands will furnish music for the day, including the regular band, the Black Watch, and also the pipers of the same regiment.

The annual excursion of the White City staff will be made to New Brighton on Sunday, the 21st, and promises to be a big one. On Monday last the officials and staff of the White City presented to Mr. Joseph Samuel Robinson a handsome gold Waltham watch as a token of esteem and friendship. Mr. Robinson has been cashier of the White City for the past three years, and by his uniform courtesy and consideration has won the real affection of all his co-workers. Mr. Calvin Brown, proprietor of the White City, is building a Magic City Park in Paris, and, as it will cost about £400,000, he is anxious to have only tried men on the job, and has promoted Mr. Robinson to the post of cashier in Paris, for which city he leaves at once. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are now motoring to the French capital from Manchester, and will visit en route London and Brussels. Mr. Brown has only just returned from a trip to America, where he secured a number of novel devices for installation in his Parks in Manchester and Paris.

Guild Service at Longsight.

The annual service for showpeople and their friends and neighbours at the Wakes was this year held in Norman's Cinematograph Theatre. The show was crowded to its fullest capacity. The service was marked with the utmost feeling of reverent attention and interest. The Rector of the parish (the Rev. H. Norburn, the senior hon. local chaplain of the Guild) has provided a service at the Wakes time for the past sixteen years, and is much loved of the showpeople. The Rector took the service, the Rev. T. Horne read the lesson and preached, and the choir from the parish church and the church workers sustained the singing. The Rector at the close of the service thanked the proprietor of the show, Mr. James Norman, for the use of the booth, and all the showmen helpers who undertook the obvious labour of love in preparing the show for its Sunday use and in seating the congregation. He knew how ready the showpeople were to further the great and good work of the Guild. He spoke of his own long connection with the Showmen's Guild, and referred in warm terms to the religious and educational value of the organising chaplain's ministry. The Guild had, in his opinion, entirely changed the view of the general public with regard to show life. Showpeople were no longer subject to prejudice and suspicion, but were recognised as fulfilling a very necessary and useful work for the community. Parliament now considered and referred to the opinion of the Guild before sanctioning legislation that might be oppressive to showpeople. All this was good, and its effect was not only seen in the great improvement visible amongst showpeople as a class, but it had its good for the whole body of the people. For example, he maintained that that service was good for his parish workers, good for the congregation of his own people. It was a practical demonstration of Christian fellowship, and showed how the Church might effectively minister in his parish to the strangers within their boundary. He prayed God's blessing on the great work of the Showmen's Guild.

Guild Subscriptions, 1910.

By Mr. S. Mercer: S. Mercer, 10s. 6d.; L. Boss, 5s.; and four others at 5s. each. By the Guild Secretary: Clark Bros., £1 1s.; John Crighton, £1 1s.; J. Passagno, 5s.; J. Ford, 5s.; E. Boss, 5s.; J. Flanagan, 10s.

Mitcham Fair Dispute.

The Rev. T. Horne and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift have been working with a view of furthering a peaceful and permanent settlement of this controversy. Their work has borne fruit in the fact that one great obstacle to a settlement has been overcome. The three Mitcham gentlemen who for the past three years have held the Fair rights have now transferred them to the Board of Mitcham Conservators. This is an immense step forward, for nothing of a practical nature was possible in the way of settlement until the Board became the actual possessors of the Fair rights. The people of Mitcham, as users of the common, will now have a right to petition the Conservators for a public-spirited settlement of the dispute—one that will be acceptable to public sentiment and consonant with the often expressed wishes of the people who really value and use the Fair. The showmen also will now have a public body (amenable by the very terms of its creation to public opinion) to deal with, and not a group of private individuals, who, however zealous for their own ideas of what was really good for Mitcham, did not represent the overwhelming weight of public opinion on this matter. It is—we again state it—an immense step forward to know that at last the franchise of the Fair is in the hands of the Conservators. The next step will be to approach the Board and to submit a well-considered scheme for the transference of the Fair, with all its ancient rights and privileges, to a larger and better site on the commons.

Guild Meeting at Mitcham.

A meeting of the London showmen is called by the Rev. T. Horne to be held in Ball's Show on Wednesday next, Aug. 10, at 3 in the afternoon. The business will be to consider the present aspect of the Mitcham Fair question, and to confer upon the new Movable Dwellings Bill.

THE MOVEABLE DWELLINGS BILL (1910).

The Select Committee of the House of Lords dealing with the above measure have completed their labours. The immediate result is seen in the amended text of the Bill printed by authority of Parliament. We reproduce it for the information of our readers interested in the question, and for purposes of reference and comparison we also give the Bill as it was when referred to the Committee.

The Bill as it went into Committee.

A BILL
INTITULED

An Act to provide for the registration and regulation of Moveable Dwellings.

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

1. After the commencement of this Act a moveable dwelling shall not be used as a place of abode unless it has been registered with a registration authority in accordance with this Act:

If a moveable dwelling is used as a place of abode in contravention of this Act, the occupier and the owner shall each be guilty of an offence under this Act provided that the owner of a moveable dwelling, in respect of which an offence under this section has been proved to have been committed, shall in every case be deemed to have committed the offence, and shall be liable to pay the fine unless he proves to the satisfaction of the court before which any proceeding is instituted to recover such fine that he has used due diligence to comply with and to enforce the execution of this section and that the offence in question was committed without his knowledge, consent, or connivance.

2. The Local Government Board shall make regulations—

(1) For the registration of moveable dwellings, including regulations as to certificates of registration and as to the fees in connection with registration; and for the renewal of registration from time to time; and

(2) For the lettering, marking, and numbering of moveable dwellings; and

(3) For fixing the number of persons with reference to their age and sex for whose use as a place of abode a moveable dwelling may be registered, having regard to cubic space, ventilation, provision for the separation of the sexes, and general healthiness, and to the subsidiary accommodation afforded by tents or other structures registered for use with them; and

(4) For promoting cleanliness in and providing for the habitable condition of moveable dwellings; and

(5) For preventing nuisances, fire, and the spread of infectious disease in and in connection with moveable dwellings.

3. For the purpose of the registration of moveable dwellings the registration authorities shall be the county and county borough councils.

4.—(1) The occupier of any moveable dwelling shall produce the certificate of registry thereof when demanded by a police constable, and any such person failing so to do shall be guilty of an offence under this Act.

(2) If any person illegally detains the certificate of registry of a moveable dwelling, he may, on summary conviction, be directed to deliver up such certificate, and shall, in addition thereto, be guilty of an offence under this Act, and the court may direct any part of any fine inflicted for the offence to be paid to the person injured by the detention of such certificate.

5. Where it appears to any registration authority that the presence of moveable dwellings on any specified place or places within their area would be dangerous to the public health, or constitute a nuisance to the neighbourhood, the registration authority may by by-law prohibit such moveable dwellings being on such specified place or places; and any person acting in contravention of any by-law made under this section shall be guilty of an offence under this Act.

6. It shall be the duty of the sanitary authority having jurisdiction in the place where a moveable dwelling is for the time being situate to assist any registration authority concerned in carrying out the objects of this Act by giving information and otherwise.

7. Any expenses incurred by a local authority in carrying into effect the provisions of this Act, or any by-law made thereunder, shall be defrayed, in the case of a county out of the county fund, and in the case of a borough out of the borough fund or borough rate, and in the case of any other urban district or of a rural district out of any rate or fund applicable for defraying expenses incurred in the execution of the Public Health Acts.

8. Every registration authority under this Act shall, not later than the thirty-first day of January in every year, make a report to the Local Government Board as to the execution of this Act within their area.

9. A person guilty of a breach of any by-law or regulation made under this Act, or of any other offence under this Act, may on summary conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding forty shillings, and, in the case of a continuing offence under Section One of the Act, may further be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty shillings for every day during which the said offence continues. Offenders under this Act may be prosecuted and fines under this Act may be recovered by the sanitary authority or the registration authority within whose area the offence was committed or by the authority with which the moveable dwelling in respect of which the offence was committed was registered on summary conviction before two justices.

10. Nothing in this Act shall apply to any moveable dwelling used by any portion of His Majesty's naval or military forces, or to any encampment which may be certified as under proper supervision by the Territorial Force Association of a county.

11. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires—

The expression "moveable dwelling" includes tents and other structures capable of being moved from place to place, and also vans, carts, carriages, wagons, and other vehicles which shall be used for purposes of abode or residence, excepting vehicles temporarily used by shepherds, labourers, or other persons for farming, agricultural, or other like purposes, or for the service of local authorities:

The expression "occupier" in relation to a moveable dwelling means the person occupying or having for the time being control or charge of a moveable dwelling:

Nothing in this Act shall be taken to apply to canal boats or other boats.

12. This Act shall come into operation on the first day of January one thousand nine hundred and ten.

13. This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

14. This Act may be cited as the Moveable Dwellings Act, 1909.

All That Remains of the Old Bill.

We show in the heavy or black type all that remains of the original proposals in Lord Clifford of Chudleigh's Bill. The objectionable and invidious proposals with regard to registration, licence, numbering, and inspection of moveable dwellings are swept away by the amendments of the Select Committee. Clauses 1, 2, 3, and 4 are not seen at all in the amended Bill, and the only material proposal that touches show life is Clause 5 of the old Bill. That clause has been modified and divided into two parts, and excellent safeguards provided to limit their application and to exempt their application to lawful fairs and markets.

The Opposition to the Bill Justified.

The facts touching showlife put before the Committee by the Showmen's Guild have borne magnificent results in the new clauses with regard to sanitation, and the reference to the Local Government Board in order that the interests of travelling showmen or entertainers may be taken into consideration so as to secure that they shall not be hampered in the exercise of the legitimate business of their calling.

Further than that, it is altogether good to find what the showmen have all along pleaded for—an exemption clause; Clause 8 in the new Bill—that nothing in the Act shall affect the rights or privileges of any person in respect of any lawful fair or market.

The New or Amended Bill.

A BILL [AS AMENDED BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE] INTITULED AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR THE REGULATION OF MOVEABLE DWELLINGS.

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

POWER TO PROHIBIT ENCAMPMENT.

(3) Where a county council has, with the approval of the Local Government Board, provided sufficient land for camping grounds under this section—

(a) the occupier of a moveable dwelling may encamp upon any such ground upon payment of the authorised fee;

(b) the occupier of a moveable dwelling shall not encamp within the county—

(i) upon any common or roadside waste without the permission in writing of the county council or their authorised officer, provided that such permission shall not affect the rights of any person interested in the land whose consent is requisite to render such user lawful; or

(ii) upon any land in private occupation without the permission of the occupier of such land;

and if any person acts in contravention hereof he shall be guilty of an offence under this Act, and it shall be the duty of the police to remove such offender;

(c) where it appears to the county council that the presence of moveable dwellings upon any specified place or places within the county would constitute an annoyance to the neighbourhood, the council may by bye-law prohibit or limit the number of moveable dwellings at any one time on such specified place or places; and it shall be the duty of the police to remove any person acting in contravention of this provision;

(d) the county council may, subject to the approval of the Local Government Board, make regulations respecting the use of the camping-grounds, and such regulations may inter alia prescribe fees to be taken from the occupier of any moveable dwelling for such use.

SANITARY AUTHORITY TO ASSIST.

4. It shall be the duty of the sanitary authority having jurisdiction in the place where a moveable dwelling is for the time being situate to assist any county council concerned in carrying out the objects of this Act by giving information and otherwise.

5.—(1) Any expenses incurred by a county council in carrying into effect the provisions of this Act, or any byelaw made thereunder, shall be defrayed out of the county fund.

(2) A county council may borrow money for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the provision of land for camping grounds in accordance with the Local Government Act, 1888, or, if the council of a county borough, in accordance with the Public Health Acts.

6.—(1) A person guilty of a breach of any byelaw or regulation made under this Act, or of any other offence under this Act, shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding forty shillings, and, in the case of a continuing offence under sections one or two of this Act, shall further be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty shillings for every day during which the said offence continues.

(2) Offences under this Act may be prosecuted by the council of the county within which the offence was committed.

NAVAL AND MILITARY FORCES.

7. Nothing in this Act shall apply to any moveable dwelling used by any portion of His Majesty's naval or military forces, or to any encampment which may be certified as under proper supervision by the territorial force association of a county.

SAVING FOR FAIRS AND MARKETS.

8. Nothing in this Act shall affect the rights or privileges of any person in respect of any lawful fair or market.

The expression "occupier" in relation to a moveable dwelling means the person occupying or having for the time being control or charge of a moveable dwelling:

SHORT TITLE.

12. This Act may be cited as the Moveable Dwellings Act, 1910.

Matters for Serious Consideration.

The showmen of England will recognise and fully acknowledge the splendid work of the Select Committee as shown in the Bill now before us. We have no hesitation in praising it as a fine example of constructive statesmanship. The provision by County Councils of camping grounds at convenient places will be a great boon to legitimate gipsies, hawkers, and others using movable dwellings yet not following the fairs. The wise simplification of the sanitary laws by making the county the unit of administration will be a boon to showmen, and save them the constantly recurring irritation of over-inspection and unnecessary official visits. The exemption clause for lawful fairs and markets is a step in the right direction, but it leaves untouched the increasingly important question of private show pitches in the winter and the enterprise of opening up new centres for fairs. These faults in the Bill may be dealt with when it is in Committee of the whole House. It is quite possible that Lord Clifford of Chudleigh may accept amendments on these points when he realises their necessity to make his Bill really perfect.

The Future Action of the Guild.

During the Parliamentary recess, the Executive Committee of the Showmen's Guild will have ample time and opportunity to consider the further amendments of the Bill. Between now and Nov. 15, when Parliament reassembles, there will be important meetings of Guild members in all parts of the country—at Mitcham for the London district, Ayr for the Scotch Circuit, Hull for the Yorkshire and Northern Circuit, Oldham for Lancashire and Cheshire Circuits, Nottingham for the Midlands, and Gloucester for the West of England and Wales. Having cleared the ground of so much debatable matter and banished for ever so many deeply-rooted prejudices against show life, we can now devote our powers to the work of safeguarding our trading and business interests, so far as new legislation may threaten them. The good already obtained by combination and by Parliamentary defence work will be a grand incentive to all showpeople to strengthen and maintain the beneficent endeavour of the Guild Executive Council to vindicate and to uplift the show business and to preserve the open-air amusements of the people.

Gorton Brook Fair.

On this popular fair-ground were John Whiting's grand set of Japanese rolling cars, and various shows, games, and stalls.

Queen's Road Fair.

The greatest of all the Manchester Bank Holiday fairs is that held on Albert Croft, Queen's-road, North Manchester. The spacious ground admits of a good display, and this year's fair was especially noticable for the grand galaxy of high-class shows, machines, and other novelties. John Collins, the enterprising lessee of the ground, exhibited a fine selection from his many concerns. This included motor-cars, galloping horses, steam yachts, razzle-dazzle, cake-walk, and haunted castle. The other machine exhibits were H. Hibbert's racing birds, Wallis and Sons' bicycles, J. Plinston's looping the loop, Brierley's gem horses and swings, Starkie's overboats, gem and juvenile motors; horses, Teddy bears, &c., by Messrs. Mercer, Ford, and Thwaits; shooting ranges and bottle batteries by Messrs. Burton, Fletcher, Ford, Hughes and Martin, Humphreys, and Starkie. There were long avenues of games, stalls, and variety frames. These included houplas, penalty frames, dolly stalls, coker shies, pannum and other stalls, supplied by Messrs. S. Mercer, Clayton, Boss Brothers, Fletcher Colver, Day, Clough, Ingham, Whalmose and Sons, Horton, Bettany, Lee, Mulhearne, Black, Lynch, Ingham-Scott, Camfield, Worthington, R. Dixon, and many others.

Holiday Fairs and Amusements at Bath.

As usual about this period of the year, West of England showmen are busy attending the many flower shows, political fêtes, and galas that are held near Bath. On Bank Holiday Jennings' world's fair proved a big attraction at Frome, where also Mr. Carl Fredericks and his Les Vivandieres Costume Concert Party were also much in request with their songs, dances, and sketches. On Wednesday Marshall Hill's galloping horses and other amusements attended the popular Badminton show.

Jacob Studt's grand motor track and orchestraphone were at Ashton Gate Fair-ground last Saturday. Jennings' steam roundabouts also were due at Horningsham on Thursday, and several others, with their side attractions, have accompanied the larger shows on their rounds.

At Sydney Gardens on Monday the usual fête and gala, under Mr. Carl Fredericks' direction, was held in charming weather. Large crowds enjoyed the many and varied attractions provided. For the remainder of the week a capital lot of entertainers, under the direction of Mr. Fred Valentine, are providing gaiety for the patrons, but the importunate stormy weather has been all against good attendances.

Showman's Letter-box.

Letters await the following at The Era Office: Messrs. Anderton and Rowland, Biddall Bros., H. Fossett, T. Fossett, and J. Studt.

With a small capital you can earn £60 or more a month! Anyone can make huge profits with the new and fascinating game of Boxball, the finest amusement and most attractive novelty ever offered to the public. Young and old find it irresistible; in every town Boxball is becoming the rage. Those first in the field are reaping vast cash returns. One Boxball alley, costing £45, took in £103 in the first fifty-one days. Two others, costing £72, took in £273 12s. 4d. in five months. Piers, seaside resorts, kursaals, pleasure gardens, skating rinks, hotels, clubs, vacant shop premises—these are the places where Boxball is coining money. No assistants needed. Alleys work automatically. Read the following:—"Your four alleys opened Saturday, Pleasure Beach, Blackpool; instantaneous success; shall want more alleys." "Without a doubt these alleys are the premier attraction. The week we opened we took £25, second week £30, third week £33, and last week £40," says the manager, St. Leonards Pier. "Opened the alley, and have found it very satisfactory," Exhibition Hall, Spanish City, Whitley Bay. Other places with four alleys are earning from £30 to £35 weekly. Further particulars will be found in our advertisement columns.

ALF. BALL SUBSCRIPTION FUND.

We are confident that Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Ball's many friends in Showland will sympathise with them in this hour of calamitous loss. The destruction of the costly and beautiful Electric Lyceum by fire at Tilbury Docks recently will be a shock to many people, and its consequences terrible to Mr. and Mrs. Ball and family. It is no exaggeration to say that the hard work and well-won savings of a lifetime were spent upon the show, and now comes calamity and loss, not by any neglect on their part, but in the mysterious providence of events, struck by lightning and fired. On the Metropolitan circuit of fairs, where Ball's show is a household word, and where Alf. Ball ranks as a leader and champion of Showland, the consternation and grief will be widespread, and the sympathy most personal and real. We trust that response for contributions to the Ball Show Fire Fund will be both immediate and adequate. We strongly commend this matter to the ever generous heart of Showland.

Mr. Frank Bostock writes:—

"Enclosed please find cheque value £5 5s. for the Alf. Ball Subscription Fund. I am indeed sorry to hear of his misfortune."

In a letter, under date July 9, enclosing a cheque for £5, Mr. Frank Turner, of the Agricultural Hall and Liverpool-road, Islington, writes:—

"Herewith my small contribution to list for Alf. Ball. I am sure every showman will sympathise with a man who was always ready to help others, and I trust you will get a good list.—Yours faithfully, FRANK TURNER."

"Dear Sir,—We regret very much to hear of your sad loss, and beg your acceptance of the enclosed cheque for £10, being our small subscription to the fund now being raised, and sincerely trust that the other travellers will all do their best to assist you, and that the fund will raise a good substantial amount. Assuring you of our sympathy and desire to assist you at all times.—Yours faithfully, "CHIAPPA AND SONS.

"London, E.C., July 18, 1910."

Mr. Richard Dooner writes:—

"Your letter to hand re Alf. Ball Fund, and have enclosed cheque for £2 2s. Kindly place this to list. Deeply regret that I cannot afford more for such a deserving cause. Kindly accept my deepest sympathy. Trusting that you will be rewarded for your noble work."

Mr. Tom Norman says:—

"Herewith please find one guinea—my small subscription for the Alf. Ball Fund. I am truly sorry that present circumstances will not permit me making it more, for, if ever there was a case deserving of something a great deal more than sympathy, but the financial assistance of us all, it is this one."

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.
BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.
LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.
SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.
TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

Being a digest of the Law relating to Theatres and Music Halls, and containing chapters on Theatrical Contracts, Theatrical, Music and Dancing, and Excise Licences, Dramatic and Musical Copyright, &c., with an Appendix containing the Acts of Parliament relating thereto, and the regulations of the London County Council and the Lord Chamberlain, by

ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (London), Solicitor.

THE ERA, July 30, 1910.
Important changes in the law affecting the amusement professions have been made since the issue, nine years ago, of the second edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable book on Theatrical and Musical Law, and the third edition, just published, comes opportunely to hand. The work has been greatly enlarged, upwards of sixty additional pages being required to accommodate the mass of new information. The publication has been brought as nearly as possible up to date, and within its pages will be found analyses of important measures which have been adopted both in Parliament and out. There is, for instance, the full text of the recent Berlin Convention, and the new Copyright Act of the United States. The awards governing the relations between managers, artists, and agents are reproduced in their entirety, and a number of fresh cases illustrating the effect of the barring clauses is included.
The Musical Copyright Act, by which tardy justice was secured to song-writers and publishers, is given in full, and a digest of the measure, bringing out its salient features is also printed. A whole chapter is now devoted to the subject of children on the stage, and the important question of the Workmen's Compensation Act is exhaustively dealt with. All the decisions of the Courts affecting theatres and music-halls are referred to, many notable cases being recalled. The law governing dramatic and musical copyright is defined as clearly as its intricacies will allow, and a reliable indication of the methods to be adopted in securing protection is afforded. The progress made in the question of licensing has been too slow to allow of more than a reproduction of the terms of agreement entered into between the representatives of theatres and music-halls regarding sketches, but pronouncements under that heading are numerous.

THE ENCORE, May 26, 1910.
We have just received the third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's book on Theatrical and Musical Law, which is published at "The Era" Office, 5, Tavistock Street, Strand. Since the second edition of this work was published—nine years—many changes have taken place in the laws relating to entertainments, and these have necessitated a considerable enlargement of the volume. Full texts of the recent Berlin Convention and the United States Copyright Law are included in this edition, in which is also published the awards governing the relations between artists, agents, and managers. A number of new cases are also cited illustrating the effects of the barring clause. The Musical Copyright Act, children on the stage, the sketch question, and the Workmen's Compensation Act are all fully dealt with and in a readable and easy style, as free as possible from legal phraseology and technicalities. It is a legal axiom that ignorance of the law is no excuse for breaking it, and, therefore, it behoves everyone connected with the entertainment world to make himself acquainted with the law as it stands in relation to the profession or business in which he may be engaged. To everyone connected with the Drama or Variety Mr. Strong's book is a necessity, and this last edition is so comprehensive that anyone who consults it can have no possible excuse for infringing the law on the ground of ignorance. The work will, no doubt, have a ready and rapid sale, for all artists, managers, and agents should have it at hand.

THE FINANCIAL NEWS, June 13, 1910.
In view of the frequent litigation concerning theatrical matters there can be no doubt as to the usefulness of this little book to those whom it concerns, and, apart from its usefulness, it is really quite an interesting little volume, in saying which we are paying tribute to Mr. Strong's lucid methods of explaining the intricacies of the law. He has avoided legal terms as far as possible, and theatrical cases exemplifying legal principles he has given in full. To make this, the third, edition as complete and useful as possible, Acts of Parliament relating to theatrical matters and the regulations of the Lord Chamberlain and London County Council are set out in full in the appendix, with the text of the recent Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Act of the United States.

THE PERFORMER, May 12, 1910.
THE ARTIST'S LEGAL HANDBOOK.
We welcome a third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" Offices), as it is nine years since the second appeared, and much has happened since then, not least the foundation of the V.A.F. and the resultant Award of 1907. This will be found incorporated in the now greatly-improved and extended Appendix of Statutes, ranging from the Disorderly Houses Act of 1751, to last year's L.C.C. Cinematograph regulations. As far as is possible with further developments in daily progress, this invaluable work of legal reference for all interested in the entertainment profession has been brought up-to-date. Sixty pages have been added, and the whole revised and rendered easier of reference by the re-arrangements that have been made, and the numerous marginal headings that have been introduced. Strong, on "Dramatic and Musical Law," may be regarded as the layman's complete authority on the subject, whether he be PROPRIETOR, MANAGER, or ARTIST, and with a lucid explanation of the law so readily available, the artist will be wise to consult its pages before venturing on new contracts and agreements, whether as employed or—in these days of "combinations," sketches, troupes, and what not—as employer.

To the Publisher.
1, Renfrew-road, Lambeth, S.E.
My Dear Sir,—
I have had an opportunity of looking into the third edition of Mr. Albert Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law," published from your office recently, and I have pleasure in testifying to the great value I have found the previous editions in my practice among ladies and gentlemen connected with the profession for which your valuable paper caters so admirably.
That Mr. Strong has had a wide experience in the matters with which he deals so ably in this book is evidenced by the lucid yet exhaustive manner in which he has treated the various subjects therein, and this last edition is eloquent testimony of the care and ability which he bestows upon his work.
Brought thoroughly up to date it will without doubt find a wide circle of usefulness among the profession whose contracts, Mr. Strong aptly remarks, are so fruitful a source of litigation.
Believe me,
Yours very faithfully,
W. H. ARMSTRONG.

Jay and Mann's company is here in The Truants. In the part of Bill Chetwood, Mr. T. A. Shannon acted in excellent fashion. He was ably assisted by Miss Molly Tremaine, whose Freda Saville was a charming performance. Mr. O. Powis Griffiths acquitted himself well as Dick Chetwood; Miss Elmie Kemp eminently suited the rôle of Pamela Gray; and excellent support is given by Miss Rita Trekelle as Mrs. Collins, Mr. Mackenzie Rogan as the Rev. Philip Preston, Miss Marie Scharning as Bent, and Mr. F. Danby as Lord Strelland.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Are You a Mason? is giving universal satisfaction. The company, under the direction of Messrs. Williams and Dunn, do full justice to the irresistibly funny situations of the play. Mr. William Lockhart as Amos Bloodgood is a capable exponent of the part; Mr. Stanley Arthur as Hamilton Travers is droll in the extreme; Mr. Howard L. Tracy as the son-in-law of Amos makes a capital characterisation; and Mr. Archie Selwyn as George Fisher and Mr. Edward J. Hinge as John Halton sustain their parts cleverly; Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood is in the able hands of Miss Agnes Maude; the three daughters are represented by Miss Denbeigh-Russell, Miss L'Estrade, and Miss Townshend in pleasing fashion; and Miss Eva Holt, Miss Mary Dane, and Miss Yeoman play the parts assigned them with graceful effect.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Da Silva proves herself to be a talented contralto; and Ina Lorimer sings and dances with charm and vivacity.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—This theatre reopened on Monday, after the usual summer vacation, with Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson's play, The King and the Unknown Woman. Miss Violet Carlyle depicts Zora in an admirable manner; Mr. James Stillwell gives a powerful rendering of Prince Loris; Mr. Walter Clifford acts with vigour and resource as Prince Menski; and the important character of General Platz has an excellent representative in Mr. W. R. Winning. Mr. Cyril Harrison is a bright and effective Captain Gara; Miss Adeline Raby gives a capital reading of Countess Melvitch; Miss Ella Sennett submits a clever portraiture of Else, and Little Prudence Ayrton was quite satisfactory as Cascar. Mr. Willie Hicks, a most amusing Corporal Stack, was ably assisted in the fun-making by Miss Anema Walton as Schnapps.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—A capital programme was given here on Monday. Minola Hurst, with her miniature marvels, introducing the smallest comedians in the world, holds the premier position, and has a most gratifying reception. Torti, the Italian tenor, receives an ovation; Everhart, the hoop expert, manipulates hoops with amazing dexterity; Wilman, instrumentalist, is popular; Harry Friskey is a comedy juggler whose feats are enthusiastically applauded; Elton and Elma, in a triple-bar act, are amusing; Hal and Lal, in a ventriloquial and musical act, prove entertaining, and the Bioscope pictures conclude.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Saunes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—Judging by the full houses which are the order here at two performances nightly, the advent of drama this week in place of variety is a highly-appreciated change. Praise is due to Mr. H. Lester's capable company for its able interpretation of A Life for a Life. Mr. Lester himself contributes a fine conception of Don Leon, and he receives good assistance from the other talented members of his company as follows:—Miss Beatrice Anderson (Eulalie), Miss Dorothy Riddell (Kate), Miss Marie Ault (Nancy), Miss Winnie Warden (Venetta), Messrs. Hugh Travers (Pedro), Paul Neville (Kit Oswald), Fred Yarnold (Tim), and Wilfred Carr (Sheriff). The drama is effectively staged. Mr. Sidney C. Hill is business manager to the company.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE. — EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Others in the bill are Frances Hanlon, chic comedienne and dancer; Michael Madden, in diverting song and dance; Milner and Storey, clever comedy entertainers; Alice Edwards, expert male impersonator; Tennyson and Wallis, good in song and patter; and Angelina, a clever lady juggler. Olga's Oath, a capital sketch, is submitted by the popular actor and actress Mr. J. G. Grahame and Miss Zerlina Harrington and company.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Lessees, The Ashton Entertainments Syndicate; Acting-Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Marks.—A good programme of pictures and variety is presented. Joey Sterling, a young comedian, sings pleasingly.

AYR.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Day.—This theatre reopened for the season on Monday, when Mr. Edwin T. Hey's company appeared in Candida. In the title-rôle Miss Maire O'Neill, a recruit from the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, and an actress of exquisite beauty and freshness, played with simplicity and naturalness, not the least charming feature of her rendering being her sweet, rich voice. Mr. Ian Maclaren portrayed the Rev. James Morell with every satisfaction; Mr. Leonard Mudie as Eugene Marchbanks was seen to advantage in a difficult part; Mr. Burgess was acted by Mr. Francis Hope, Prosperine Garnett by Miss Muriel Pratt, the Rev. Alexander Mill by Mr. Frank Darch, all praiseworthy performances.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Walters.—The Dunlops, the famous comedy trick cyclists and skaters, and Lilian Sivardo, the charming and daring lady gymnast, are big attractions here this week. A number of pictures are shown, and the programme throughout is good.

BARNSLEY.—EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Will Smithson.—The bill here is headed by Jan Rudenyi, the eminent violinist, and his company, who produce a pretty playlet The Storm; Miss Alice Craven, the Lancashire lass, sings sweetly; Walt Moor, in topical effusions, goes well; the Three Pirmans give a good comic bar show; and Miss Helen Guest, Barrie and Wood, and Williams and Parker do good work; the Creo Bros. are fine comedy acrobats; and Weisker's Biograph pictures conclude.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — THE ROYALTY.—A good variety bill with two shows nightly is doing good business. The Sarnthalers in Tyrolean song and dance head the bill; the Codys are clever in cowboy work; the duologue of Milton Ray in The Puzzled Coroner is very funny; Harrison Brothers are again well received. Rosie Bard, comedienne, Otto Crusino, bass-baritone, Friscary, clever juggler, Geo. Shurley, comedian and dancer, and Arthur Milton, versatile comedian, complete a pleasing programme.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—The Villagers are still drawing large audiences, and with their varied programmes are adding to their already well-earned popularity.

THE TIVOLI.—La Milo is drawing packed houses with her refined, artistic poses, which are interspersed by lightning cartoons by Cruikshank; the Gascoigns, comedy jugglers, are the funniest seen here for some time. Other turns are Selvidge and Holland, sketch artists; J. H. Ellis; Harold Heath, dancer; the Skating Videos; and Fatmah Diard, the American singer. All are greatly enjoyed. Vernon's Bioscope, as usual, is excellent.

HIPPODROME. — Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Fred Newman is still providing good pictures and variety for his appreciative patrons.

BARRY DOCK.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Tours, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. A. Hamilton Warden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Frank Bure.—The attraction here this week is Messrs. Polini and Melford's company, in The Silver King. Mr. Arthur H. Rooke cleverly portrays Wilfred Denver, while Miss Mildred Surrey proves an able actress as Nellie Denver. The Spider has a capable exponent in Mr. St. Geo. Lowther; Mr. Edward J. George is well fitted for the part of Daniel Jaikes. The parts of Corkett and Coombe are admirably filled by Messrs. Ralph Leon and Arthur Wright.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. W. Minto.—Topping the bill here are the Veroniques, a couple of clever comedy and musical artists; Rhode and Roche are good singers, dancers, and contortionists; while Geo. Niliard as a comedian is amusing. The pictures are popular.

BATH.—PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Charles Schuberth.—Wee Georgie Wood is deservedly the big letter artist this week. Another youthful turn is William Jackson's Eight Lancashire Lads, whose singing and dancing arouse much enthusiasm; a new comedy juggler is Raglus, who is justly acclaimed a big success; Tom Gott is a quaint comedian, and Dolly Ross a pleasing comedienne and dancer; an amusing pair are Cosgrove and Burns; and the pictures include a stirring and passionate film entitled Temptation of the Goldfields.

SYDNEY GARDENS.—The latest and perhaps one of the best all-round costume concert parties that have appeared in Bath this summer are "The Nonentities," amongst whom are Mr. Dan Everald, who is an absurdly comic, but laughter-provoking, lady impersonator; Mr. Oscar Mills, the well-known humorist; Mr. Comber, baritone; Mr. Frank Melville, light comedian and dancer; and two charming lady vocalists, Miss May Pitcairn (contralto), and Miss Marianna Carozzi (soprano), together with Mr. Johnson, pianist.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Licensee, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Albert Leigh; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—The variety programme here this week is again excellent. The Venetians do a clever and novel turn; Miss Lallie Brooke scores with her song-scena, "The old-fashioned girl"; Crawford and Johnson are smart coloured instrumentalists and dancers; Mat Lynton and company present the dramatic episode The Tempter; De Lilo and Metz do some good juggling and ball-bouncing; Claude Gardner makes a favourable impression with his comic songs; the songs and dances of Maurice Lee's Militaire Brigade are also much appreciated; and the Bioscope concludes.

BELFAST.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company opened here on Monday in A Royal Divorce. In the rôle of the Empress Josephine Miss Edith Cole achieved a decided success; as Napoleon Mr. Keith Fraser shared the honours of the representation with his clever acting; the rôle of the scheming Talleyrand was done full justice to by Mr. J. H. Roberts; and Mr. Charles Hartopp was convincing as Marquis de Beaumont. Miss Dorothy Garth was charming as Stéphanie de Beauharnais, and Miss Winnie Tempest appeared to advantage as Marie Louise. As General Augereau Mr. Ernest Plumpton lent able support, and much merriment was created by Mr. George Hudson in his treatment of the rôle of Grimaud. Miss Dorothy Hudson earned high encomiums for her impersonation of the little King of Rome, and Miss Helen Meadows was good as Mother Lomas. Mr. Alfred Grenville admirably sustained the part of Marshal Murat, and other rôles were efficiently presented by Miss Marie Johns, Miss Loyal Frere, Miss F. Cudlip, Miss Julia Wren, and Messrs. W. Robins, E. Longford, Lawton Orme, C. Jackson, P. Morris, &c. Last night (Friday), a complimentary benefit was accorded to Miss Edith Cole.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—The attraction here is Beneath the Stars, produced by Miss Eunice Udall's company. Mr. J. Nelson Turner acquitted himself with distinction as Stephen Harcourt, and the rôle of Major Blonson was skilfully portrayed by Mr. Terry Davies. Miss Eunice Udall deserves to be congratulated on her clever impersonation of Becky Wiggins, and Mr. Coleman Davies was very humorous as Jemmy Hopblossom. The rôle of the lawyer Silas Clipper was convincingly played by Mr. Arthur Gribben, and Miss Madge Trevelyan is to be complimented on her finished portrayal of Angel Marsden. Miss Kitty Clifton is worthy of a mead of praise for her impersonation of Pauline Petrowski, and other rôles were in the capable hands of Messrs. B. Halley, C. Richards, and H. Shaw.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The leading feature here is supplied by George Ali and company, who produce with great success their comedy sketch, Papa's Day Off, in which Mr. Ali gives his remarkable impersonation of the dog Sport; Ferguson and Mack delight all with their smart comedy act; and the Bijou Juveniles are accorded a big reception for their entertainment entitled Pansy's Birthday. An old Belfast favourite, Mr. J. A. Wilson, appears with success, which is enhanced by the performance of his clever dog Private Towser; Tennis and Laune, duettists, sing and dance well; and the Melbournes, The Soldier and the Maid, speedily make themselves favourites. Mr. Dan Whiteley, eccentric comedian, knows how to amuse an audience; and also appearing are the Brothers Lavelle, comedy acrobats, and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—The favourite comedian Mr. Will Evans tops the bill here, and makes a hit; the New Macs return with their comical act, in which their patter is so distinctly amusing; and the dancing act of Mackintosh and Royal is the acme of excellence. Miss Mary Ambrose is a good vocalist, and her violin selections have been loudly applauded; and Mr. Fred Curran's parodies, sung with such drollery, create roars of laughter. Miss Rosie Fitzgerald is aptly described as a charming little soubrette; and others appearing are Miss Bella White, comedienne, whose Irish songs have been appreciated; and the Bioscope, with film, Recent Pageant of Irish Industries.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Some capital pictures are being exhibited here this week, including Sunshine to Shadow, Cupid's Loaf, Man Who Thought He Was Poisoned, Sisters, &c. The vaudeville element is sustained by the Lawsons in their clever mimicry act, and Bob King, comedian.

BILSTON.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Tunstall.—A capital variety company here includes Maud Beaumont, chorus vocalist; Steinort, handbalancer and jumper; Dolly Brough, comedienne and wooden-shoe dancer. The President's Special and The Spy are included in this week's pictures.

Mr. Edward Fletcher gives a manly interpretation of the hero; Miss Irene Arundel is an admirable heroine; Mr. Roland Douglas is effective as Clifford Yorke; Mr. Forbes Carrington is an excellent Squire; Mr. William Hayward, Mr. Harry Emerson, Mr. Harold Greaves, and Miss Kitty Johnston also accord important aid, and the humour of the piece is capitally sustained by Mr. Jack White and Miss Kitty Rose. The scenic effects are realistic.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—Mr. Charles Austin and his capable combination are appearing in the sketch Parker P.C., with gratifying and well-merited success. Sandford and Lyons, the clever patterers and simultaneous dancers, are on a welcome return visit; and Mr. Sammy Shields, Scotch comedian, is again a leading attraction here. Miss Irene Rose, a talented comedienne; Monty Walker, Lancashire comedian; Miss Lily Eyton, a pleasing comedienne; Harry Knox, comedian; the Westwoods, in a smart bicycle act; and Brown's Royal Bioscope complete an excellent programme.

Mr. H. Hesselgrave, R. Seath Innes, Geoff Sutherland, Arthur Byron, and Miss Lillian Redbourn are also prominent in the course of the piece, and the scenic effects are on a liberal scale.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

"THE FATAL WEDDING."

The attraction here is Mr. Percy Williams' company in The Fatal Wedding. The play has the essential qualities to suit the taste of Marlburians, there being an abundance of exciting incidents interspersed with excellent comedy. Mr. Hugh Montgomery is a capital lead, and gives an able reading of Howard Wilson. In the rôle of Mabel Wilson, the much-tried wife, Miss Ethel Kay handles a difficult part with discretion and tact; Mr. Royce Milton affords a clever study of the rascally man-about-town, Robert Curtis, playing with force and directness; as Cora Wilson Miss Leah Marlborough's rendering of the part is replete with artistic touches and appropriate byplay; little Susanne, a clever child actress, presents a neat sketch of "the little mother"; Mr. Sam Springson as Toto, Mr. Cyril Melton as Peter Schwartz, and Mr. Frank Ashley as O'Reilly all give droll character studies; and Miss Marie Harcourt submits a humorous portrayal of the Irish cook, Bridget. The singing and dancing introduced in Act 3 by children is much appreciated, the Sisters Wohlman, Gladys Kelly, Dorothy Pain, and Master Tom Grice calling for special mention.

THE CORONET.

On Wednesday, Aug. 10, T. W. Robertson's Comedy
"OURS."

Mr. Robert Arthur and Mr. Eade Montefiore's season of Robertson revivals at the Notting Hill Gate theatre continues, and the spirit of Victorian comedy was admirably sustained on Wednesday, with the representation of Ours. This play is more like Caste than most of the others in its serious interest and its military flavour, though of course the characterisation is different, and there is more of the actual storm and stress of war. To appreciate the play thoroughly we must imagine ourselves living in those days and subject to their limitations. Mr. Godfrey Tearle is very manly, sincere, and natural as Angus MacAlister, the poor, but proud, young soldier. Mr. James Carew acts in a hearty, natural, and breezy fashion as the millionaire brewer, Hugh Chalcot, whose lament is that "money makes one bankrupt of friends, beggared of love"—until the right girl comes along. Miss Adeline Bourne acts with her customary effectiveness and impressiveness as Blanche Haye, though the part seems somewhat stilted to modern ideas; Miss Rose Begarnie once again shows her skill and deftness in light comedy as Mary Netley, and contributes a very bright and pleasant performance; Mr. O. B. Clarence as the Russian diplomatist Prince Perovsky is admirable as ever, though he does not have very much scope for his genius; the domestic bickerings of Sir Alexander and Lady Shendryn are amusingly portrayed by Mr. Fred Permain and Miss Maude Robertson; Mr. William Rokeby scores in the small part of Sergeant Jones, the proud possessor of the twins; and Mr. Leslie Palmer completes the cast as Captain Samprey.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Drama, by G. R. Sims and Robert Buchanan, entitled,
"THE LIGHTS OF HOME."

That highly exciting drama, by Mr. G. R. Sims and Mr. R. Buchanan, The Lights of Home, has been presented at the Kennington Theatre during the present week, and throughout the five acts and nine scenes has enthralled the attention of the large audiences which have assembled nightly. The Kennington répertoire company have acquitted themselves during this production with credit, and the staging has been well done, the burning of the Northern Star being a particularly fine scene, while Maryland was a brightly painted set. Mr. Walter Gay was very good as Philip Carrington, falsely accused of the murder of Arthur Tredgold, making an ideal sailor lover of Sybil Garfield. In the latter rôle Miss Jessie Winter looked as fresh and ingenuous a heroine as ever. Mr. Frank Crimp made an excellent Arthur Tredgold, and was seen at his best in the struggle with Dave Purvis, the fisherman, indignantly demanding reparation for the injury wrought his daughter. In the part of Dave Purvis Mr. George Cockburn was magnificent, enacting it with great dramatic force. Mr. Charles Danvers made a big hit in the low comedy rôle of Jim Chowne, the inquiry agent, and he had admirable support from Miss Nellie Burdette as Mrs. Widgeon, landlady of the Lobster Smack. Between them the pair caused a lot of fun, Miss Burdette always showing genuine humour. Miss Elsie Videau was bright and lively as Jack Stebbing, the amorous sailor boy. Miss Winifred White won further laurels by her clever impersonation of Tress Purvis, and the part of Mrs. Purvis, her mother, was capitally portrayed by Miss Marie Kilpack. Mr. J. W. Yeldham was deserving of praise as Captain Petherick, and the rôle of Mrs. Petherick was filled with great naturalness by Miss Peggy Hogan. Mr. G. P. Polson was well placed as Edgar Garfield, the finally relenting enemy of Philip Carrington, and Messrs. H. Thomas, Leblanc, and Sheridan creditably enacted the parts of fishermen. Mr. Horatio Baker doubled the characters of Sambo in the Maryland scene and of the Clergyman in the last act with considerable success.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Play entitled
"MONTE CRISTO."

A specially dramatised version of Alexander Dumas' famous novel is being presented here this week by a company under the direction of Mr. Otto Minster. The romantic adventures of the Count de Monte Cristo form the basis of a very interesting and entertaining play. The piece is admirably dressed and mounted, and evidently no pains have been spared to make the production in every way successful. The title-rôle is played by Mr. Otto Minster, who infuses plenty of dash and spirit into his impersonation, and secures a great reception. Mr. Geo. P. Lester contributes an excellent piece of acting as the dying Abbé Faria; and Mr. George Venning gives a praiseworthy performance of Fernand Mondego. Mr. Oswald Lingard is responsible for a well-thought-out characterisation of Baron Danglars; and Mr. J. M. Smart does well as M. Darien. Mr. Walter Grahame plays M. Noirtier in good style, and his quiet and easy acting is well in keeping with the rôle. Mr. Tom Tindall handles the part of the blackguard, M. Villefort, with much skill and restraint; and Mr. Elliston Bevens' delineation of Albert de Morcerf is sincere and impressive. That well-known comedian, Mr. William P. Sheen, is cast for the part of the drunken Caderousse, and enlivens the piece with his droll humour, causing considerable merriment. Mr. Arthur George is a satisfactory Gendarme. Miss V. St. Laurence appears as Mercedes, and makes a beautiful and strikingly pathetic figure, her conception of the character being thoroughly satisfactory. Miss Lucy Murray submits a clever study of La Carconte, and Miss Gloria Laurence charms the audience with a pretty song, which gains a well-deserved encore.

THE BRIXTON.

"CAN A WOMAN BE GOOD?"

The initial production of the autumn dramatic season is Can a Woman be Good? presented by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. A large and appreciative house warmly received the play on Monday evening, and as it contains many exciting situations, there is little doubt of its success on tour. Mr. J. Millane is capital in the rôle of Manuel Errington, Mr. Harry C. Robinson very satisfactory as the villain, Herod Steinberg, Mr. Ernest St. John makes the most of Ostler Jim, and Mr. Wallis Clarke does well as Ralph Desmond. Mr. Syd. Benson is extremely good as Curley Dabbs. As the victims of Steinberg's villainy, Mr. J. G. Maine (who also admirably fulfils the duties of stage manager) and Mr. J. Archer are to be commended. Praise, too, is to be given to Mr. Fred L. Arthur as Jasper Mordaunt, and to Mr. H. Wells as James Widdicomb. Miss Winnie Barton is exceptionally good as Slithers, Miss Ethel Bickman makes a bright Molly Merrick, Miss Atice Thorne is admirable as Mrs. Errington, and Miss Norah Melton a clever representative of Magdalen Fawcett. Leila la Brunne is well depicted by Miss H. Graham Edwin, and Naomi Merrick and Esther Howard find ideal representatives in Miss Florence Hunt and Miss Mabel Rose. The play is nicely staged, and the production reflects credit on Mr. Tom H. Taylor.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Farce entitled
"WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD."

Mr. James Welch's company is here with When Knights were Bold, and the house, which is filled with an appreciative audience every evening, rings with laughter. The scenery is admirably worked under the stage-management of Mr. Herbert Ranson. Sir Guy de Vere is represented by Mr. H. Langdon Bruce, who keeps the audience keenly amused. The actor goes through his trying part in a way that impresses onlookers with the idea that he is all the time thoroughly enjoying himself. Mr. Charles F. Lloyd's Isaac Isaacson is a creditable study of a thoroughly up-to-date Israelite, and Miss Violet Noel, as the Jew's daughter, gives an artistic representation. Mr. Percy R. Goodyer is decidedly "merry and bright" as the Hon. Charles Widdicombe, imparting considerable "go" to several scenes; Mr. Colin Johnson's Rev. Peter Pottleberry, D.D., furnishes a careful study of quiet dignity and dry humour. Mr. Humphrey Warden struggles valiantly with the part of Sir Brian Ballymote. The Wittle of Mr. Lawrence Stevenson and the Barker of Mr. John Cecil are both capital character sketches. Miss Isla Glynne is a charming Lady Rowena Eggington, and Miss Lena Flowerdew, Miss Juliet Matheson, Miss Lee Lewis, and Miss Sadie Hope all appear to advantage. Miss Elspeth Oliphant acts with quite taking simplicity as Alice Barker, and Mr. Herbert Ranson does effective service as a Herald. The performance provides a delightful evening's entertainment, and Mr. W. R. King, the acting-manager for the theatre, is kept busy finding room for the numerous applicants for admission. The chief piece of the evening is preceded by a comedietta, by Frank Howell Evans, entitled Milly's Mother, in which the characters are ably sustained by Mr. Percy R. Goodyer, Mr. John Cecil, Miss Lena Flowerdew, and Miss Sadie Hope.

THE BROADWAY, NEW CROSS.

"FLORODORA."

Musical plays are always popular here, and Florodora is drawing excellent houses. The members of Mr. Charles Constant's company do full justice to their parts, and the result is a very pleasing performance, all the well-known numbers receiving their full meed of applause. The scenery is fresh and pretty, the dresses are handsome and appropriate, and an attractive and tuneful chorus is a strong point of the production. Mr. Johnnie Schofield makes a success as Anthony Tweedlepunch; Mr. Stanley White scores heavily as Cyrus G. Gilfain; Mr. Courtier R. Dutton is a manly and clever Frank Abercoed; Mr. Johnnie Junior is a capital Captain Arthur Donegal, and Mr. Jack Parker is very good as Leandro. Miss Daisy Lake is a clever and charming Dolores, and Miss Florence Hersee a delightful Angela Gilfain. Miss Kate Leicester is a handsome Lady Holyrood, and plays the part admirably; Miss Louie Danby is a smart and vivacious Valleda, and Miss Lilian Mildred is good as Clarence Fitzclarence. Miss Florence Hersee and Mr. Johnnie Junior make a hit in La Danse des Apaches.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

"HER SECRET LOVER."

This week Mrs. F. G. Kimberley has brought her No. 1 company here to play her latest drama Her Secret Lover, a play which has gained much favour. Mr. Stephen Langton as Gilbert Seymour makes a splendid villain; Jim Jones is well played by Mr. J. Newton-Cowling; Mr. Walter H. Wilson is seen to great advantage as the manly Capt. Darrell Rose; Mr. Alfred Stretton, in the strenuous part of John Strange, is very convincing; Billy Burley is as good as he is big, and finds an able exponent in Mr. Victor Vernon. Miss Lynn Darlington, in addition to her acting as the "eyes" of poor blind Ivy Seymour, manages to extract a deal of fun from her part of Jane Maria Wilkes; Ivy Seymour, as played by Miss Laura Walker, is an admirable portrayal. The wicked machinations of Alicia Royale are well brought out by Miss Flora Leslie. All the other characters are well enacted. Well mounted and dressed, the play was accorded an enthusiastic reception.

ROYAL ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

Beauty and the Barge is here this week, presented by Mr. Arthur Skelton's company. The principal parts are those of Capt. James Barley, in which Mr. Maitland Marler appears, and Ethel Smedley, in which Miss Hilda Vaughan delights everybody by her charming acting and unaffected manner. Lieut. Seton Boyne, R.N., is well played by Mr. A. Russell-Davies, especially notable in the last act; the peppery Major Smedley is well placed in the hands of Mr. Gerald Carter, as also is the Herbert Manners of Mr. A. E. Jackson; Mr. Ivor Barnard is very funny as Augustus, "the third hand," his make-up and facial expression causing roars of laughter; Miss Marie Clayton is a sweet Lucy Dallas; Miss Mabyn Fay made the most of the part of Mrs. Smedley; and Mr. Fred Lake took every opportunity offered him as John Dibbs to make the part "go." All the remaining characters were in capable hands. The play is well mounted and dressed, and the scenery is excellent.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

"THE BEGGAR GIRL'S WEDDING."

Like all the other creations of Mr. Melville, The Beggar Girl's Wedding has been a powerful attraction at the Kingston playhouse this week, the house being thronged at each performance. A strong company is engaged in the representation of the play. Miss Muriel Dean wins universal approval for her impersonation of the beggar-girl, and Mr. Norman B. Cannon makes a most successful appearance as Jack Cunningham. Mr. William T. Riley plays the villain of the play with conspicuous ability, and Miss Ernestine Walker ably seconds his efforts in the part of Maud Villiers. Amongst other impersonations deserving of notice are the Elsie Cunningham of Miss Sybil Hare and Miss Linda Riley as the slavey. Valuable assistance in other parts is given by Messrs. Herbert Goddard, Charles Barclay, E. D. Carlyle, Wilford Bayley, Frank McClellan, and Fred Hodson. The piece is most effectually staged.

THE Follies finish their "flying" tour at Bexhill on Saturday, and open at the Apollo on the 27th. They will present a programme of novelties, chief of which will be a "Pageant of Follies," in which the craze for that form of entertainment is satirised. Three authors have assisted Mr. Pelissier with the book and lyrics, but the little company of nine will not need augmenting, even for the most spectacular scenes. The theatre is being redecorated.

MRS. ERNEST CARPENTER.

A matinée to be given at the Lyceum for the benefit of Mrs. Ernest Carpenter will be under the patronage of Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree and the following committee:—Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Alfred Butt, Mr. Hall Caine, Mr. Fred W. Carpenter, Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Robert Courtneidge, Mr. George Dance, Mr. Tom B. Davis, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Mr. Geo. Edwardes, Mr. Norman Forbes, Mr. Neil Forsyth, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. Chas. Hawtrey, Mr. Walter Howard, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Justin H. McCarthy, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Walter Melville, Mr. Fredk. Melville, Sir Edward Moss, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. Herbert Trench, Mr. James Welch, Mr. C. Wentworth Croke, Mr. C. H. Workman, and Sir Charles Wyndham.

The house has been kindly lent for the occasion by Messrs. Melville, and the matinée is fixed for Tuesday, Sept. 20 (or 27). Mrs. Ernest Carpenter's late husband, owing to unfortunate speculations, left her and her little daughter almost totally unprovided for.

The benefit is under the direct patronage of Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree and practically every London West End manager, by whose help it is expected that one of the very strongest programmes ever got together will be provided.

In connection with this matinée an appeal is made to all provincial managers to subscribe towards a testimonial to Mrs. Carpenter on their own account, and The Era will be glad to take charge of any money sent for the purpose, which should be addressed to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift (treasurer of the fund).

It is hoped that Ernest Carpenter's great gifts and popularity will ensure the success of this appeal, as his totally unexpected death resulted in those near and dear to him being left in such sad circumstances.

MANAGERS' MEETINGS.

The committee of the Managers' Club met at 5, Wardour-street, W., on the 5th inst., when there were present:—Mr. Leveaux (in the chair), Mr. Ralland, Mr. Croke, Mr. Weathersby, Mr. Norris, Mr. Lambert, Mr. Bertram, Mr. Maitland, Mr. Wallace, Mr. W. Muskerry-Tilson (hon. solicitor), and Mr. M. Martin (secretary). The following were elected members of the club:—Mr. R. Brandreth, Viscount Dangan, Mr. Edmund Gerson, Mr. Harry B. Brett, Mr. Frank A. Zeitlin, Mr. Richard Northcott, Mr. Martin Henry, Mr. Alfred Turner, Mr. F. Vernon Hartley, Mr. Arthur Leigh, Mr. Christopher Marner, Mr. Edward Lauri, Mr. Tom Wright, Mr. M. Zassenheim, and Mr. George Parker. It was decided to keep the club open till 2 a.m., but should there not be four members on the club premises at 1 a.m. the steward be empowered to close the club. On Sundays the club is to be opened from 12 noon till 11 p.m.

The Touring Managers' Association Committee also met at the club on the same day. Present: Mr. Leveaux (in the chair), Mr. Ralland, Mr. Carlton Wallace, Mr. Langlois, Mr. Bertram, Mr. Norris, Mr. Brydon Phillips, Mr. Lambert, Mr. Weathersby, Mr. Maitland, and Mr. M. Martin (secretary). A letter from the Actors' Association, enclosing a proposed contract, was read, and the secretary was instructed to say that the proposed contract did not fall in with the views of the members of the Association.

A member reported an actor for breaking his agreement, and the secretary was instructed to send the correspondence to the solicitor and ask him to take proceedings against the actor concerned. A letter was received from the Sketch Association in reference to the question of one licence, and a sub-committee, consisting of Mr. Leveaux, Mr. Bertram, and Mr. Ralland, was appointed to confer with a similar committee of the Sketch Association to consider the matter.

A FOLK festival, reproducing the rural pastimes of mediæval England, was celebrated on Wednesday in the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, in connection with the Shakespeare summer season. There were morris dances, folk songs, traditional English country dances, old jigs, and children's singing games, the performers being schoolchildren from most of the villages in South Warwickshire, all picturesquely attired, who sang and danced to the accompaniment of the fife and tabor.

A CONTINGENT came from places as distant as Hull. There was a capital display of Morris dancing confined to old Warwickshire tunes, the performers being the Ilmington young men who have twice given displays in London. The audience included quite a large number of American visitors, who were deeply interested in the novel sight, the display being unprecedented. The Hon. Mrs. Hodgson distributed the awards.

THE "Festal Theatre," which, with Signor D'Annunzio, is preparing to astonish and edify Paris, is so called because at every performance given there is intended to be a feast for the mind and eye. The edifice is to be entirely of iron, and will be planned like a Roman amphitheatre. In seven days it can be taken to pieces, packed up, and conveyed anywhere, and put up again in the same time. The building will be first set up in Paris on any space large enough, such as the Champ de Mars, on the Esplanade, and the first night is already announced for April 20 next. The first play performed will be a poetic fairy piece by the poet-dramatist himself.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

"THE SPECKLED BAND" AT THE GLOBE.

Ever since the days of The Ticket-of-Leave Man, the most popular detective drama of mid-Victorian days, the stimulating effect of a human sleuth-hound on the stage has not been lost sight of by dramatists; but it was left to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle to give us the most original criminal investigator—the invincible Sherlock Holmes, a scientist gifted with unerring instinct, serenely conscious of power, with unnerving coolness, and without a shadow of fear. We met him on the stage for the first time at the Lyceum, when Mr. W. H. Gillette from the States exactly realised his powerful personality in the play named after him. He cropped up again at the Adelphi early in the summer as the discoverer of the mysterious crime of the Anglo-Indian, Dr. Grimesby Ryloit, who for the sake of filthy lucre does to death an innocent young lady by the ghastly agency of a snake—which is distinguished as The Speckled Band, the title of the powerful piece which was transferred from the Adelphi to the Globe on Monday evening.

A finer study of melodramatic villainy than Mr. Lyn Harding's Dr. Grimesby Rylott we have not seen. The outbursts of ungovernable fury are absolutely terrifying, and especially are they so in the scene with Sherlock Holmes. At the inquest of the first act Mr. Harding suggests by many subtle touches the hysterical and "nervy" Doctor—subject to fits of dementia—a mental and moral degenerate. On Monday evening he repeated at the Globe his Adelphi triumphs, the large audience being profoundly impressed in every act.

Mr. H. A. Saintsbury, who for so long played Sherlock Holmes in the provinces, has certainly made that character his own, and the drama reaches high-pressure point as soon as he appears on the scene. His "butler" of the third act is sufficiently well disguised in voice, gait, and gesture to deceive even the audience, and the final appearance of the snake and the retributive justice meted out to the wicked Doctor through its agency—thrills that would content even the most exacting of sensation-lovers—give both him and Mr. Lyn Harding opportunities for the most impressive acting.

Miss Christine Silver is sweetly pathetic in the inquest scene, and gently and quietly determined in the later portions of the drama, wherein the heroine discovers to her consternation the true character of her stepfather. Mr. A. S. Homewood's devoted old servitor Rodgers is another tribute to his power of individualising a part. Mr. Spencer Trevor's acting as Mr. Armitage is distinctly precious, the venom of the village grocer against the unspeakable Rylott being humorously emphasised; and Mr. J. J. Bartlett has quite the official manner and judicial air of a coroner as Mr. Longbrace. Mr. Claude King becomes quite a persona grata as Dr. Watson, a part that does not tax his powers; Mr. J. Ridley capably doubles the parts of the foreman of the jury and Mr. Milverton, the blackmailer; Mr. Wilton Ross is an inscrutable Ali; Mr. Arthur Burne does complete justice to the part of Mr. Scott Wilson; Miss Gwendolen Floyd submits a neat bit of character as Mrs. Soames; Miss Alice Beet's Mrs. Stainton is marked by artistic restraint; Master Cecil F. Lowrie is decidedly effective as Billy; Mr. A. G. Craig's Mr. Holt Loaming is quite a natural representative of the bookmaking fraternity; Mr. A. Corney Grain's thumb-nail sketch of Mr. James B. Montague argues considerable ability; and Mr. Geoffrey Hill and Mr. George Laundy complete the fine cast. Mr. Brigata Bucalossi has composed excellent music to the piece, which is finely produced. Miss Silver's dresses are the tasteful work of Miss Caleb Porter; the wigs are by the incomparable Clarkson; and the scenery by F. L. Schmitz. Mr. W. W. Keene's stage management is perfect; and the popular Mr. Oscar Barrett, jun., is in front.

LIVERPOOL THEATRICAL GALA.

Of the many efforts put forward to raise funds in aid of deserving charities, none are deserving of greater praise than the promoters of the Liverpool Theatrical Gala and Sports. Of late years variety entertainments have become so popular with theatregoers that this year it was decided to change the date from February to August, and the directors of the Liverpool Club once again very generously allowed the use of their ground for the gala and sports on the 2nd inst., Mr. J. McKenna (chairman of the directors) going to a lot of trouble in seeing that there was no hitch in the arrangements so far as the ground accommodation was concerned. This year the gala has had as its patrons the Lord Mayor of Liverpool (Alderman W. H. Williams, J.P.), the Mayor of Bootle (Councillor H. W. Carruthers, J.P.), and the Mayor of Birkenhead (Councillor A. H. Arkle). Mr. W. Watson Rutherford, M.P., is the president, while Mr. Lewis Peake, this year's chairman, has been a hard worker in connection with the gala ever since its inception, and with but few exceptions he has acted as chairman year after year. Of the other officials a special word of praise is due to Messrs. W. W. Kelly (vice-chairman), Thomas Wood (hon. treasurer), G. Dudley West (hon. secretary), and Mr. George Manners (pioneer of the special matinée at the Empire Music Hall and the sacred concert in the Hippodrome). Matinée and Entertainments Committee: Chairman, Mr. H. C. Arnold; vice-chairman, Mr. W. W. Kelly, T.C.; hon. secretary, Mr. Rex Dooley. Floral Sales Committee: Chairman, Mr. W. A. Crouch; vice-chairman, Mr. Geo. Stretch; hon. secretary, Mr. J. A. Ferns. Novelty Committee: Chairman, Mr. W. W. Kelly, T.C.; vice-chairman, Mr. P. Golightly; hon. secretary, Mr. R. Grant. Sports Committee: Chairman, Captain A. Rutherford, J.P.; vice-chairman, Mr. H. Coleman; hon. secretaries, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun., Mr. T. Roland Barratt, and Mrs. T. Blair. Press and Advertising Committee: Chairman, Mr. H. L. Golbourne. Band and Procession Committee: Chairman, Captain A. Rutherford, J.P.; vice-chairman, Mr. T. Swift; hon. secretary, Mr. W. Morrison. Ground Committee: Mr. J. McKenna and Mr. Tom Watson. Considering the weather, the attendance was very satisfactory, over 5,000 people paying for admission.

Amongst those present were the Lord Mayor of Liverpool (Alderman W. H. Williams, J.P.), the Mayor of Bootle (Canon H. W. Carruthers, J.P.), Mrs. and Miss Carruthers, and Mr. J. F. McKenna (Chairman of the Liverpool Football Club and the English League).

The sports programme was made up of no fewer than twenty-one events, and altogether prizes to the total value of £300 were offered, including five silver cups and a vase. It is expected that the profits will amount to considerably over £1,000.

THE old Prince of Wales' Theatre, Liverpool, the boards of which have been trodden by every actor of note in the mid-Victorian era, is to be turned to the purposes of an auctioneer's business. The old theatre has undergone many changes in adapting it to its new uses, but the old proscenium decorative border remains intact, and the green-room and dressing-rooms below, including the apartment which was occupied by Sir Henry Irving, have also survived.

THE new Palace Theatre, Rugby, which is in course of erection, will be substantially built of brick with stone dressings, having a frontage of 61ft. The auditorium will consist of boxes, orchestra stalls, pit stalls, pit, dress circle, family circle, and gallery. The stage will be 36ft. by 50ft. and will be fitted with a fireproof curtain. Electric light will be installed, and the house will be heated with water on the low-pressure system. The new theatre, of which the proprietor is Mr. Frank Langley, will open on Boxing Day with the pantomime Aladdin, produced by Mr. Fred Storey.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, JUNE 23.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Clyde Meynell and Rupert Clarke; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Levy.—A crowded house assembled here on Saturday evening, when Mr. Oscar Asche presented Shakespeare's delightful comedy The Merry Wives of Windsor. It is many years since the comedy has been seen in Melbourne, and, consequently, the audience was a critical one; nevertheless, the verdict after the performance was entirely in favour of Mr. Asche and his capable company. As Sir John Falstaff Mr. Oscar Asche was seen at his best; he presented the fat knight just as we have pictured him through Shakespeare's description. Miss Brayton as Mistress Ford was admirable, and was ably supported by Miss Constance Robertson as Mistress Page. Their gaiety was infectious, and of the most exuberant and laughter compelling kind. As Master Ford Mr. Herbert Grimwood was seen at his best; Doctor Caius was well portrayed by Mr. Caleb Porter; Mr. Tripp Edgar made the most of the part of Sir Hugh Evans; Mr. Kay Souper was excellent as Slender; Miss Elfrida Clement dealt very sweetly and coquettishly with the rôle of Anne Page; while Miss Bessie Major has never been seen to better advantage than as Mistress Quickly. The comedy throughout is mounted on a lavish scale. At the close of the performance Miss Lily Brayton was the recipient of many handsome floral tributes.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—Another crowded house greeted William Anderson's new dramatic production The Sailor's Wedding on Saturday evening. The drama seems a most popular one, and apparently will enjoy a long run. The cast is excellent, and the scenery far above the average. The bioscope pictures of the late King's Funeral are also a strong attraction.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Frederic Aydon.—A particularly strong programme is being presented here just now, and includes Miss Olive Lenton and her clever company of eight singers and dancers in the musical scena Harvest Time. The Falcons present an amusing comedy acrobatic act; the Raymond Trio give a clever musical turn; Fred Keeton convulses the house with his comic songs; and interesting turns are contributed by Albertas and Millar, the Three Dardinis, Tom Dawson, Bert Terrell, Will White, the Two Colliers, Ted Kalman, Vande and Verne, Eileen Lyons, Brown and Robinson, and many more.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. James Brennan; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Brennan.—A complete change of programme served to draw a crowded house here on Saturday evening. Excellent items were furnished by Morris and Wilson (comedy acrobats), Gray and Graham (musical turn), Tim Howard (vocalist), Jessie Lee (balladist), Carlton and Sutton (sketch artists), Wally Ricardo, James Craydon, Linda Davis, Harry Rocka, Vera Kearns, and a host of others.

MANY hundreds were unable to gain admission to Tait's Pictures at the Athenæum Hall on Saturday, when the new programme was very well received.

WORTH'S Olympia was crowded on Saturday evening, when a complete change of programme was submitted by Spencer's Theatrescope Company.

WEST'S Picture Palace was filled to overflowing on Saturday evening, when an entire change of programme was made. West's Military Band supplied excellent music.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Aug. 8, the Musical Comedy
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in The Earl and the Girl is securing liberal patronage from lovers of musical comedy. The piece has been here often before, but with new numbers, pretty dresses, and, above all, a strong cast, it makes a bold bid for popularity. Mr. Edward Lewis as Jim Cheese, the pseudo Earl, forsakes the stereotyped methods of his predecessors in the part and presents a broadly comical impersonation of the dog-fancier which causes unlimited mirth, and during his occupancy of the stage a dull moment is impossible. Mr. Herbert St. John is a bright and bustling Dick Wargrave, and sings most acceptably. Mr. Lionel Scott is a genial representative of the Hon. Crewe Boodle; Downham, the American solicitor, has all the necessary Yankee characteristics as impersonated by Mr. D. Fisher, jun.; Mr. Harry Courtin as the fire-eating Bunker Bliss plays in just the right vein; Mr. Jos. R. Tate is responsible for an unctuous performance as the Hebraic solicitor Mr. Talk; and the comfortably proportioned Mr. Hazel is appropriately played by Mr. A. Burgoyne. Miss Lily Gullick acts and sings very charmingly as Elphin Haye; and Daisy Fallowfield has a graceful representative in Miss Blanche Astley. Miss Edith Blande acts in the true spirit of burlesque as the strong lady, Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss Virginia Bliss is safely entrusted to Miss Flora Gordon; and Miss Lina Hicks in the low-comedy part of 'Liza Shoddam, Jim Cheese's sweetheart, contributes a performance of considerable merit.

The "Chantecler" speciality introduced in the second act is decidedly novel and entertaining, the success of which is shared by Mr. Herbert St. John (Cock Bird), Miss Blanche Astley (Hen Pheasant), and Miss Lily Gullick (Guinea Fowl). The solo dance by Mr. Dutton Nicholls is also an enjoyable contribution. The very efficient chorus and augmented orchestra are under the baton of Mr. Bert J. Paterson, and the tour is under the direction of Mr. Chas. McLagan.

PRINCESS BARIATINSKY, the famous Russian actress who figured in the Afternoon Theatre performances at His Majesty's in the autumn of 1908, is looking forward to a return to London in November to recite the Arlésienne of Daudet in French to the accompaniment of Bizet's music.

THE Princess, whose stage name, it will be remembered is Lydia Yavorskaia, has been indicating to an interviewer of the Pall Mall Gazette, Russia's tastes in drama. "In Russia," she said, "Shakespeare and Ibsen are reverenced as prophets, and both are played frequently and well, for, before all things, we must have truth, and more truth. French plays are not tolerated; we will have none of them. If a play rings false we Russians will not listen to it. But though we love the masterpieces of dramatic art, we love good comedy also." After Shakespeare the Princess considered that Ibsen had affected Russian dramatic art most, and the German influence ranked next. The Russians are not in favour of long runs for any play; theirs is more the répertoire style of art.

MADAME has exalted ideals of the mission of the stage. "The theatre," she went on to say, "should be a great educator, a means of placing high ideals before the public and of teaching them all that is best and truest in art. The trend of the author's work, too, will follow the kind of plays presented. If the demand is for such plays as are realistic, and contain high ideals, authors will be found to supply the demand. Where plays are presented which fall short of true art principles the authors will be found to correspond. Shakespeare, it is true, belongs to the world, but you English have first claim on him; but it is seldom that we see Shakespeare acted in London, and yet the English public will allow many a rubbishy French play, which is bad because it is bad art."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP

Sir Charles Wyndham is enjoying the invigorating air of Aix-les-Bains, making his headquarters the Hotel de l'Europe. The popular resort has many visitors representative of the rank and fashion of the Continental capitals.

Sir Squire Bancroft has left for Marienbad. Lady Bancroft, who is now in much better health, will remain at Underlea, Sandgate.

Mr. H. B. Irving is also away holiday-making, and is spending a short vacation among the wooded environment of Faversham in Kent.

Miss Evelyn Millard has selected the none too new title of The Crisis for the adaptation by Rudolf Besier of Pierre Berton's play, La Recontre, which will be produced at the New on Wednesday, Aug. 31. One of the best-known pieces bearing the title mentioned was J. Albery's adaptation of Emile Augier's Les Fourchambault, produced at the Haymarket in 1878. In addition to Miss Millard the cast will include Miss Sarah Brooke, Mr. Lennox Pawle, Mr. Athol Stewart, Mr. Douglas Imbert, and Mr. Norman McKinnel.

Mr. Weedon Grossmith was the object of an enthusiastic demonstration on the occasion of the fiftieth performance of Billy's Bargain at the Garrick Theatre on Thursday. Mr. Grossmith takes leave of his London admirers this evening, being bound for America, where he will present Mr. Preedy and the Countess, a play in which the popular comedian has one of his most effective roles. While wishing Mr. Grossmith all prosperity and success in the States, his supporters will eagerly await his return in a year's time, when the run of Betty's Bargain, thus prematurely cut short, will be resumed.

Mr. Frank Curzon and Mr. Gerald du Maurier have decided upon Saturday, September 3, as the date of the first performance of George Paston's new play, Nobody's Daughter, at Wyndham's Theatre.

Mr. Laurence Irving is desirous of pointing out that The Unwritten Law, the drama he has founded on Dostoievsky's novel "Crime and Punishment," and which he proposes to produce in Manchester next week, was first acted three years ago by Mr. E. H. Sothern in America, under a title of Mr. Sothern's choice. Several American papers characterised the play as dealing with the Unwritten Law problem, which then and there suggested to Mr. Irving the title which he has now adopted. Mr. Hall Caine has taken it also for the piece he has in hand, while the title was used by Mr. John Lawson for a sketch he produced at the Holborn Empire in the May of 1907.

Mr. Hall Caine has conceived the idea of transforming The Eternal City, which Sir Herbert Tree produced at His Majesty's in 1902, into an entirely new play, in which the question of divorce will be treated from the point of view of the recent Commission. The plot and characters of the original will be retained, though, of course, the dialogue will be entirely changed. The new version will be called The Eternal Question, and will form the autumn attraction at the Garrick, where it will be staged on Aug. 27.

The production will be managed by Mr. Ralph Hall Caine, the eldest son of the dramatist, who has recently been touring the halls with an excerpt from The Eternal City. Miss Tittell-Brune, the popular Australian actress, who made a favourable impression during the last fortnight of The Woman in the Case, in Miss Irene Vanbrugh's part, will play Roma. Mr. Guy Standing, recently acting in Alias Jimmy Valentine, will be the Bonelli; Mr. Vernon Steel will appear as David Rossi, the man of the people; and Mr. Halliwell Hobbes will take the part of the Pope.

Mr. Hall Caine's new play, The Bishop's Son, will be produced at Douglas, Isle of Man, for the first time on Monday night. In reply to a request from friends that he should play the part of the Bishop, Mr. Hall Caine has telegraphed:—"Would dearly like to play the beloved Bishop, but don't take it from Mr. Grant, who will give a far better performance. Nevertheless, will gladly be present on Monday night, all well, and do anything else audience desire on first production of our new Manx play."

The offspring of musical and dramatic celebrities were united in marriage on Monday, when Mr. Frank Cellier, only son of François Cellier, the famous Savoy conductor, and Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, the only daughter of the late Sir Augustus Harris were wedded by special licence at Marylebone Registry office. It will be remembered that Miss Harris and Mr. Cellier have been playing leads together in Shakespearean répertoire on tour for the past four years.

Miss Glossop-Harris made her first appearance at Eastbourne in 1903 as Benedick's page in Much Ado About Nothing, and since then has fulfilled engagements with Mrs. Michael Gunn, Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Norman V. Norman, and Mrs. Brown-Potter. Her Shakespearean parts have included Juliet, Beatrice, Desdemona, Portia, and Ophelia, in addition to Camille and Carmen. The newly-wedded pair are now busy rehearsing at Terry's Theatre for their autumn tour, which starts on Aug. 22.

An influential committee, including practically every West End manager, and headed by Sir Herbert Tree, has in hand the arrangements for the benefit matinée for Mrs. Ernest Carpenter, which was postponed in consequence of King Edward's death, and will take place at the Lyceum on Tuesday, Sept. 6. The theatre will be lent for the occasion by Messrs. Melville, and a programme of outstanding attractiveness is promised.

News of footlight favourites who have retired from the scene of their labours is always welcome. Miss Maud Jeffries, who was Wilson Barrett's leading lady and the original Mercia in The Sign of the Cross, left the stage several years ago on becoming the wife of a wealthy Australian wool king. This week's mail brings news of her emergence from retirement to play at a matinée in a Sydney theatre for the benefit of the Bush Nursing Scheme, initiated by the Countess of Dudley, wife of the Governor-General of the Commonwealth. The former popular actress appeared as the animated statue in Sir W. S. Gilbert's Pygmalion and Galatea, a part that her statuesque beauty should well fit her for. The theatre was densely crowded, and the net profit of the performance exceeded £700.

Mr. A. E. Matthews has achieved a triumph on his first visit to America, and his appearance at the Garrick Theatre, New York, as Theodore Sanders in Winchell Smith's version of Frank Anstey's farcical romance Love Among the Lions won a chorus of praise from the American critics, who regard him as a finished comedian and a decided acquisition to the American stage.

The many friends of Mr. Herbert Chenery, of the Duke of York's Theatre, will be pleased to have an opportunity of congratulating him. On Saturday last his wife presented him with a bonny girl.

Sir Herbert Tree will provide, in his production of Henry VIII. on Sept. 1, a spectacular sensation of which even His Majesty's will be proud. The banquet at Wolsey's palace will be bewildering with its costly splendour, golden nets, heaped with sweetmeats and gold coins, gliding along over the tables laden with luxuries. The Coronation in Westminster Abbey will be on no less magnificent a scale.

Sir Herbert's embodiment of Wolsey will represent him as one of the greatest Englishmen who ever lived. He will show him stout of girth in his cardinal's robe and a very Prince of the Church. Mr. Bourchier will not depict Henry at any particular age of his life, though he will indicate earlier youth at the beginning of the play. Later his arrogance and pride will be made prominent. Miss Violet Vanbrugh is sure to make the sweetest of Catherines; Mr. Henry Ainley will make a noble Duke of Buckingham; and for the Duke of Norfolk and the Duke of Surrey highly qualified representatives have been selected in Mr. A. E. George and Mr. Gerald Lawrence.

Mr. Jerome K. Jerome's clever four-act comedy, Fanny and the Servant Problem, will in future be known under its American title of The New Lady Bantock. Miss Beatrice Moreau and Mr. Horace Lingard, with this comedy and their répertoire, are meeting with much success in the provinces, and with the exception of two weeks are booked up to Jan. 23 of next year.

"Priscilla Runs Away" is still playing to record business at the Haymarket, where crowded houses are the rule. So exceptional is the demand that Mr. Trench finds it impossible to close for the usual summer vacation, and therefore, in order to give the company the opportunity of securing a little week-end relaxation ,and a relief from the strain of playing eight times weekly, he has decided to discontinue the Saturday evening performances for the present, beginning to-day. All other performances will, of course, take place as usual, including the Wednesday and Saturday matinées, the theatre being closed only this evening, and Saturdays, Aug. 20, 27, and Sept. 3.

One of the forthcoming autumn productions is to be a new one-act play called The Secret, by Mr. William le Queux, the popular novelist. The scene of Mr. le Queux's play is laid in the Prefecture of Police in Paris. Many Secrets have already appeared on the stage, the latest recorded being that divulged at the St. George's Hall in 1888.

Mr. Willie Clarkson is a man of resource, and nothing in the show line is beyond him. His Grace the Duke of Westminster wired for a bull and a dozen costumes for matadors and picadors, so that a mock bull-fight might be arranged for the delectation of His Majesty the King of Spain, who has been a guest of the Duke at Eaton Hall. Within two hours of receiving the request Mr. Clarkson had sent off the bull and costumes complete. The entertainment was highly successful, the amusing skit causing the King and audience to laugh heartily. Mr. Clarkson was complimented by his Grace the Duke of Westminster, and his Spanish Majesty expressed his entire appreciation of the entertainment.

Mr. Robert Loraine placed himself in the front rank of aviators on Wednesday, when he made a record over-sea flight, travelling in his Farman biplane from Blackpool to Rhos, between Colwyn Bay and Llandudno. Forty-eight miles of his sixty-mile journey were over water, and he thus broke the world's record made by the late Hon. C. S. Rolls on his double cross-Channel journey.

Starting from the Blackpool aerodrome soon after six in the morning, Mr. Loraine, who wore a lifebelt as a precautionary measure, flew across the sea to Wales, landing at Rhos-on-Sea golf links, near Llandudno, after a voyage of about sixty-five miles. Ascending again at 5.50 p.m., with the intention of going to Holyhead, he passed Llandudno, and was lost to view in a thick fog off Orme's Head. Great anxiety was felt as to his fate, but early the following morning it was learned that he had safely descended at Cemlyn, North Anglesey, after a difficult journey owing to the fog.

The actor-aviator has found a rival among the feminine members of the profession, Miss Olga Humphrey, a Californian actress, having decided to take up aeroplaning next month. Miss Humphrey is to be leading lady for Mr. Stanley Cooke, who reopens the Strand Theatre on Sept. 10 with The Man from Mexico, an American version of Gondinet and Bisson's farce Le Voyage d'Agrément. Recently he received a letter from the lady, in which she stated she proposed going from Munich to Oberammergau to witness the Passion Play, and that the first twenty-five miles would be accomplished in an airship and the remainder in a motor. Mr. Cooke wired begging Miss Humphrey not to attempt the flight; but she had already started, accompanied by five gentlemen. The voyage proved a success, and Mr. Cooke had a telegram announcing the safe arrival of the party.

A remarkably successful performance was given by Mr. Walter Pearce's Pastoral company on the evening of Friday, July 29, at Killerton Park, the beautiful Devonshire seat of Sir Thomas and Lady Dyke Acland. An ideal spot had been chosen, and the smooth, level turf made a fine stage, to which exquisite romance and glamour were lent by the surrounding woodland scenery. The grounds were a veritable fairyland. The company included Miss Ella Erskine, who is a connection of Sir Thomas Dyke Acland, Miss Mabel Beardsley, sister of the celebrated artist, Miss Irene Clarke, Mr. W. R. Staveley, Mr. Richard Fielding, and Mr. C. H. Croker-King.

The programme was a very varied one, the principal item being an abridged version of Rostand's Fantasticks, in which Miss Ella Erskine and Mr. Walter Pearce appeared as the lovers, Sylvette and Percinet, which parts they played with a delightful daintiness, both looking as if they had stepped out of one of Watteau's pictures. Mr. C. H. Croker-King as Straforel and Mr. W. R. Staveley as Pasquin also gave excellent performances.

A very charming novelty was Miss Erskine's dramatisation of Mr. Kenneth Grahame's story The Roman Road. It was the first performance of a little play which should become very popular. In the parts of the artist and the boy Mr. C. H. Croker-King and Miss Irene Clarke scored a distinct success.

Another very popular item was Miss Erskine's "little comedy" The Typist, which she has arranged for pastoral purposes, and in which the authoress and Mr. Walter Pearce won many laughs and much applause. The "production" of the plays and the excellence of the performances reflected great credit upon Mr. Walter Pearce.

We regret to record the death, at Southport on the 2nd inst., at the early age of 23, of Mr. Ernest Hume, brother of Mr. Walter Hume, and recently a member of the Moody-Manners Opera company. The funeral took place on the 5th inst. at Southport.

Mr. Martin Harvey is passing some pleasant days in the Isle of Wight. Their pleasantness has been somewhat disturbed by the statement that he is likely to appear at the Palladium next December in a condensed version of The Only Way. Mr. Harvey requests us emphatically to deny his intention of doing so, and says in the course of a wire: "Announcement absolutely incorrect and impossible. Please contradict immediately."

Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss are in Scotland acquiring renewed energy for their separate autumn campaigns in London. Mr. Hicks will be seen at the Coliseum in his long-promised impersonation of Richard III., and his accomplished wife will appear in a condensed version of Bluebell in Fairyland at the Hippodrome.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier, back from his holiday in Cornwall, is growing a beard and moustache, in order that he may play all the more effectively the part of the King in Sir Herbert Tree's forthcoming production of Shakespeare's King Henry VIII. at His Majesty's. "Why not grow a beard?" queried the popular actor, after the sensation created among the company by his altered appearance had subsided. "We have heard of actors 'getting into the skin of a part,' why not into the beard?"

The betrothal is announced of Miss Katherine Corri Harris, daughter of a wealthy New York lawyer, and Mr. John Barrymore, the idolised American actor. Miss Harris's father, it is said, is opposed to the match because of his daughter's youth, but her mother favours it. A few months ago, it may be remembered, it was widely reported that Mr. Barrymore had been insured for a large sum against marriage.

The Bombay Parsee Theatrical Company is erecting a large temporary theatre in Madras to seat about 2,000 people. Included in the company's répertoire, it is interesting to learn, are plays of such purely English atmosphere as Charlie's Aunt, A Country Girl, and East Lynne.

Mr. Stanley Drewitt, whose performance of David Roberts, in Strife, at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, met with such notable success, has been re-engaged for that successful repertory theatre. Mr. Drewitt, it may be added, recently completed a two years' engagement in America, playing Macbeth, Cassius, Prospero, and the Vicar (in The Servant in the House) among other parts.

During the Beecham season of opera, which commences on Oct. 1, we are promised several new operas, as well as many that have not been heard for years past in this country.

With the active support of the local Playgoers' Society, Mr. Robert Arthur proposes to give a short experimental season on genuine repertory lines during the coming autumn at the Court Theatre, Liverpool. Among the plays which will be given are Ibsen's Doll's House and Rosmersholm, Edmond Rostand's Fantasticks, and Maeterlinck's The Death of Tantagiles.

On Monday evening Mr. H. E. Loseby, the esteemed musical director of Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, began his twentieth year of service in that capacity. During that long period Mr. Loseby's orchestra has been a leading feature of this pretty playhouse, and we extend our congratulations to him and trust he may be long spared to fill his present position.

The Lyceum Theatre, Ipswich, has been leased for seven years to Messrs. Murray King and Clarke. The house reopens on Monday with a week of grand opera by the Castellano company.

Mr. J. A. Campbell's From Convent to Throne production recommenced its successful tour last week at Newport amidst the hearty greetings of the local playgoers. Business throughout the week was enormous, as, indeed, it should be, for a more elaborate and well-appointed production it would be hard to find on tour.

Mr. Alfred Northway will shortly produce a romantic one-act play with a thrilling spectacular prologue, entitled Disarmed, in which ten artists will appear. The production will be on an elaborate scale.

Mr. Graham Morrison has been appointed business-manager of the Strand Theatre. Mr. Morrison's last engagement for Mr. Frohman was to manage for Miss Marie Tempest in Penelope. During his extensive career he has managed many of the best companies on the road, and controlled several provincial theatres, and, in addition, has served as acting-manager at two West End houses.

Mr. and Mrs. Montague Fowler, who are now in residence at the Castle, Ryde, I.W., are well known for their hospitality to members of the theatrical profession. Last week-end they numbered among their guests Miss Mary Forbes, who is now busy rehearsing in The Speckled Band, Mr. Norman Trevor, and Mr. Wilfred Fletcher.

Miss Horniman has secured the services of Mr. Juan Buonaparte to embody Napoleon in Bernard Shaw's piece The Man of Destiny, at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, for the week beginning Sept 6. Mr. Buonaparte is a direct descendant of Napoleon, and his remarkable likeness to his great ancestor is an invaluable asset in his impersonation of the rôle.

Mr. Theo. McCausland Stewart is on the look-out for a fishing companion to fish Loch Lomond during week commencing August 29. Expenses, boat and man, about ten shillings a day. Lake contains salmon, sea trout, and lake trout. Communications should be sent to Mr. Stewart at the Green Room Club, Leicester-square.

Mr. Monkton Hoffe takes the greatest interest in the company now touring in his play The Little Damozel, and recently when a literary club was started among the members he forwarded to the secretary a handsome donation which put the concern on a firm business basis.

Her late Majesty's servants, the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, have again secured the services of Mr. Ernest Ch. Gittins, who rejoins this famous combination for their forthcoming 39th season. Mr. Gittins has been absent from the Carl Rosa Company for about eighteen months, during which time he has been running his own grand opera sketches in London and the provinces.

Mr. W. H. C. Nation, we learn, is once more to enter the arena of theatrical management, and will start a season in September at the Royalty, where he made his last essay in the autumn of 1908. His opening attraction will be the musical play The Kingdom of Kennaquhair, which was produced during the period named.

"Are You a Mason?" equipped with pretty new scenery and a strong cast, will run right on through the autumn, and is well booked for the spring of 1911. The comedy, which is of a class that will never die in the public favour, was another of Mr. Charles Frohman's productions, and was originally sent on tour under the joint management of that gentleman and Mr. George Edwardes.

The Hutchison management have secured an instantaneous success with Smith. The returns at Brighton and Eastbourne have eclipsed those of such great plays as Penelope, and Mrs. Dot and have fully justified Miss Emma and Percy Hutchison's opinion that the play would be a huge success in the provinces, with the result that two companies are now on tour, under the control of this astute management.

"A Royal Divorce," according to a communication received from Mr. W. W. Kelly, is doing better now on tour than ever in its career. At Belfast this week it is breaking records nightly. On Monday it will be at the Opera House, Southport, with the Queen's, Manchester, to follow, this making its fifty-eighth visit to Cottonopolis.

Mr. Kelly has booked Mr. H. P. Towers's company in the Wyndham's Theatre success, The Best People, for Kelly's Theatre, Liverpool, next week. The company includes Messrs. Henry Renouf, Claude Haviland, and Fredk. Meads.

Next week sees the last of the twice-nightly drama season at the Birkenhead Theatre Royal. With The Girl Who Lost Her Character the regular autumn drama season sets in. "Twice nightly, cheap prices, and smoking" has proved a big success at the Royal, and will probably be in vogue again next summer.

Mr. Charles Aldred, having concluded a ten weeks' Moss-Stoll tour with Mr. Rudolph De Cordova's Organ Grinder company, will resume his old part of Tigellinus in The Sign of the Cross at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, on Monday next.

Mr. Wingold Lawrence, who has been playing the leading parts in Mr. Walter Melville's répertoire in South Africa since April last, concludes his engagement at the end of August, and will arrive in England about the middle of September. He is engaged by Mr. Melville to create a part in a new production early in October.

Mr. H. G. Wells is now actively engaged in the South of Germany upon the construction of his promised first play. The new piece is to be a dramatisation of "Kipps," the most widely read of all his books, and the popular author will have the collaboration of Mr. Rudolph Besier, the author of the successful Don and the admirable Virgin Goddess.

Mr. Townsend Whitling, who is responsible for the production and stage direction of The Naked Truth touring company, also plays James Darrell (Mr. Arthur Playfair's part). The company will be at the Marlborough Theatre, this coming week.

Mr. Reginald Payne, who made a hit as the light-hearted Lieutenant in both Mr. Walter Howard's companies of the Lyceum success The Prince and the Beggar Maid, will play the King in Long Live the King at the Nottingham Hippodrome next week. He has booked Mme. Adah Payne (late of Moody-Manners' principal opera company) for the same week at the King's Theatre, Nottingham, where she will submit her well-known renderings of Tosti's "Good-bye" and "Your eyes have told me so," a song she has made exceedingly popular.

Tatan and Leonard Gordon (organ), Nellie Simpson (violin), Sarah M. Adams, Olga S. Borsdorf, Dorothy M. Chambers, Ethel M. Harvey, Eveline Matthews, Ruby L. M. Shepherd, and Vera G. Steel (singing).

"His Real Wife," a domestic play, by Charles A. Clarke, will have its first London production at the Lyric, Hammersmith, on Monday. The piece, which was originally produced at the Court Theatre, Warrington, on Dec. 27 last, will be presented by Mr. T. Edward Ward's No. 1 company, including the clever actress Miss Ward and Mr. Albert Sember.

Miss Edith Webber, who has recently been running her own répertoire company in the "smalls," playing the leads in Ingomar, Lady of Lyons, Jane Shore, Caste, East Lynne, and The Little Witness, a play written by her husband (Mr. Julian Bainbridge), has been engaged to play Sophie Blanchard in The Grip of Iron at the Brixton Theatre next week.

The last performance of Alias Jimmy Valentine was given at the Comedy Theatre on Friday. Mr. Charles Frohman is sending this play on a tour to the leading cities of Great Britain early next spring.

Mr. George Dance's company of The Whip will embark on a long tour of the principal theatres at the Grand Blackpool, next week. Mr. Dance has been lavish in his expenditure, and the scenery, properties, and effects will be an exact replica of the Drury Lane production. The cast is a powerful one. In order to ensure the representation of the great race and railway collision scenes with due realism, the whole production has been duplicated, so that where necessary the entire machinery will arrive in each town some days in advance for the requisite rehearsals, to make the Monday night's performance perfect in every detail.

Once again The New Barmaid is to visit London, having been booked by Mr. Robert Arthur for his attraction at the Fulham Theatre next week. Mr. Alexander Loftus will again appear as Bertie White, and Miss Violet Osmund, who has been having a long rest, will be the lady journalist.

Pastoral plays were given in the Kursaal Gardens, Harrogate, on Thursday, when Mr. Walter Pearce's company appeared in As You Like It. Mr. Walter Pearce made a manly Orlando, imparting a romantic air to Shakespeare's most interesting young lover. Mr. C. H. Croker-King made a hit as Touchstone, and Miss Ella Erskine's pretty and graceful Rosalind won all hearts by her delightful coquetry. Mr. Rathmell Wilson was good as the philosopher Jacques; and the other parts were well played. The Roman Road, by Miss Ella Erskine, and The Typist, by the same lady, were also in the bill. The entertainment concluded with The Fantasticks, translated from the French of Rostand by George Fleming. Miss Erskine was excellent as Sylvette; Mr. Walter Pearce did extremely well as Percinet; Mr. Croker-King as Straforel was very amusing; and Messrs. Wilson and Winston were good in their respective parts.

The management of the Theatre Royal, Wolverhampton, passes on Monday next into the hands of Mr. F. G. Kimberley. The house will remain closed for a week for redecorations, and will reopen on the 22nd inst. There is every prospect of Mr. Kimberley meeting with success in his new rôle, for not only are he and his talented wife extremely popular in Wolverhampton, where for a lengthy period they had a permanent home at The Scotlands, but his long experience of drama should enable him to know just what will suit his patrons. He is fast filling his date book, and has already secured several first-class attractions. Although Mr. Kimberley is again taking up his residence in Wolverhampton he will still keep a watchful eye on his various touring companies.

The German Emperor has been giving expression to his views on present-day plays and to a criticism of the working classes in their attitude towards the drama. He noted with great satisfaction that the grossly realistic modern dramas were going out of fashion, and that dramatists were turning their attention more and more to historical subjects.

"Sudermann has changed his medium," remarked the Kaiser to a representative of the Frankfort Gazette, in whose columns his interview with Fräulein Annie Wall, who lunched with the Emperor on the Imperial yacht at Bergen, is published. "His Strandkinder shows the beginning of a new epoch of his muse. Last winter I saw with pleasure the sound judgment in theatrical matters exhibited by our working classes. At the Royal Theatre in Berlin we have arranged special workmen's evenings, and the audiences liked nothing so much as the historical plays. Had we given them the sordidly realistic Nachtasyl, which deals with the unemployed problem, they would not have appreciated it. They want to see something cheerful, something which will lift them to higher things and make them forget their daily sorrows.

"Next winter we shall give them Hebbel's Niebelungen, nobly staged. I consider the Niebelungen lore the finest of all, and the Hebbel version is the best. It is a pity Wagner did not use Hebbel's text as the foundation of his trilogy; it would have been a very different work then. The best theatrical production and the finest acting I have seen," added his Majesty, "in recent times was the Moscow Theatre Company's performance of Tsar Feodor in Berlin. I have seen nothing nobler; it was grand—wonderful. I think that the Swedish Vasa Kings would form a fine subject for drama, but it would need a new Shakespeare to write them."

The Kaiser speaks with some authority on the subject of the drama, for he owns no fewer than six theatres. These comprise houses at Wiesbaden, Cassel, and Hanover, in addition to the Royal Opera, the Theatre Royal, and the Royal Operetta Theatre at Berlin. The Royal theatres are an heirloom of the King of Prussia, who receives a State grant for their maintenance, but has to make up the deficit out of his own pocket. For the Royal theatres in Berlin the Ministry of the Interior assigns yearly £125,000, which sum is made up to £147,500 out of the Privy Purse. The annual deficit on this total, however, is seldom less than £15,000, and this the Emperor has to make good as well. His other theatres, especially that at Wiesbaden, also cost the Emperor large sums.

At a little town in the south of France a performance of Shakespeare's Tempest was on Sunday interrupted by a strike of stage hands. The thunder and lightning did not crash and flash as arranged, and, when the manager went behind the stage, he found the men who should have been engaged in making the waves roll standing idle with their arms crossed. Remonstrances and cajoling were in vain. It was a question of arrears of wages. The matter was at length adjusted to the satisfaction of the strikers, and The Tempest was resumed.

Several improvements have been effected in the Opera House, Workington, during the recent closure. The stage has been relaid, and the whole of the dressing-rooms remounted, whilst a set of artistic forest borders enhance the appearance of the proscenium front. A hot-water apparatus for heating purposes has been installed and seven large radiators have been erected, which will effectually dispose of the complaints of cold, draughts, and chills during the winter. Seven rows of handsome red velvet tip-up chairs have been placed in the pit stalls and one row added to the grand circle. New carpets of the thick Wilton pile pattern have been laid in the pit stalls, and cocoa-nut fibre mats within the main entrances help to make the house comfortable.

Mr. Norman Trevor, who gave proof of his dramatic ability in Mr. Arthur Bourchier's production of Glass Houses at the Globe and in Sir Herbert Tree's Shakespearean Festival at His Majesty's, is an athlete as well as an actor. For ten years he was all-round amateur athletic champion of India, and holds the records there for 100 yards (10sec.), 120 yards hurdles (15⅖sec.), the quarter mile (50sec.), and high jump (5ft. 10in.) At Stamford Bridge in 1900 he represented India in the Amateur Athletic Association championships, and during the same year won the London Athletic Club's 100 yards, 120 yards hurdles, and quarter-mile championships. As a member of the English team he competed in Paris at the Olympic games.

As the result of a wager he accomplished a remarkable feat in India. He walked a mile, ran a mile, and rode a mile on horseback, all within nineteen minutes, the actual time, in fact, being 18min. 46sec. When the Sands o' Dee was produced at the Hippodrome Mr. Trevor played the sailor hero, in which the training he had in the Calcutta Light Horse and at polo stood him in good stead, for he had to ride into the foaming waves of the arena and rescue the heroine.

A remarkable tribute to the attractive powers of Our Miss Gibbs is made by the admission of a young girl, who lives near Putney, that she has visited the gallery of the Gaiety Theatre to see the same play on 111 occasions in a little over eighteen months. "I have been so often to see the play," the young lady confessed, "that the policeman who regulates the queue has grown to know me, and in the long waits if I should want a cup of tea he keeps my place until I return. One day I saw a girl in the queue whom I had observed very frequently, and she assured me she had seen Miss Gibbs 150 times. I now know the play by heart, and the first act I have written out from memory."

Inspired by the encouraging words of Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Ernest S. Cove, the enthusiastic advocate of the establishment of Welsh drama, has thought out a plan of campaign which he is preparing to place before those interested in the scheme. He is asking all who have made or wish to make attempts at writing plays, who wish to organise dramatic societies in Wales, who have taken part or wish to take part in Welsh plays written in either the English or Welsh language, or who are in any way interested, to send their names and addresses to him. This will enable him to call a meeting, before which he would lay his plans. Mr. Cove's address is 24, Herbert-street, Treorky.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

R. G. Knowles—Lion Tamer.

Dick Knowles has had many thrilling adventures, and there is one that will always be fresh in his memory. It occurred in South Africa. The light being almost perfect, he went out cycling at four o'clock in the morning, picking his way over the veldt and taking note of prominent landmarks in order that he might find his way back. He was riding along a narrow grove of trees when a full-grown lion, with his lady and a sample of the children, stepped on to the road in front of him. "Frankly, I felt frightened," said R. G., with commendable candour. "I wanted to stop and turn round, but somehow I kept on, although I noticed that my knees were shaking and that my front wheel was describing 'S's.' As I got nearer I began to wobble worse. The lion just stood one minute, blinked, and then turned and fled, followed by his connubial dependents. Almost too dazed to think, I made off as fast as I could. Probably the animal was frightened of my wobbling cycle, for I heard when I got back that the previous week it had dragged a horse down, almost killing it and its rider."

A Maturing Play.

An old Parisian playgoer, when he heard of Mesdames Brandès and Simone falling out over the chief woman's part in Le Vieil Homme, dived back into his reminiscences. He remembered a similar quarrel between Mesdames Réjane and Jeanne Granier over the same rôle something like eighteen or nineteen years ago. Boys have had time to grow up and out of their twenties and young men to grow middle-aged since first Mesdames Jeanne Granier and Réjane each tried to wrest from the other the heroine's part in the piece, which neither got. Everyone seems very much to doubt whether the play, which was projected by the author M. Georges de Porto Riche before the production of Cyrano de Bergerac, really will be performed next winter at the Renaissance. At the last moment the author may very likely consider that ten years or more of maturing will improve it. At any rate, we ought to feel thankful that we waited only seven years for Chantecler. One hopes there is nothing topical about M. de Porto Riche's Old Adam. The keen Parisian detected that even seven years had been enough to age some of the satire of Chantecler—in the third act, for example.

Criticism and Minor Melodrama.

A Mr. S. J. Luck writes to the Morning Leader: "The other evening I went to a suburban theatre to see a sensational drama. I was so disgusted with the usual plot—lovers, villain, servant girl, policeman, clergyman, revolvers, and poison—that I left after the second act. Is it not surprising that the critics do not say a word in condemnation of these cheap plays, which degrade the artistic and æsthetic tastes of their audiences? A play produced for the first time at a fashionable West End theatre is carefully and minutely analysed in all the newspapers the next day. Such analyses refine and polish the tastes of playgoers. Why should popular dramas not be treated in the same way? I appeal to the critics to sow the seed of criticism where it is most necessary, even though it may not be always appreciated." Can it be truly said that the melodrama in question was "in Luck's way"?

Playwright and Practical Joker.

M. Tristan Bernard, author of L'Anglais tel qu'on le parle, writes our Paris correspondent, is fond of practical joking. His last exploit in that domain took place in a restaurant which he frequently honours with his presence. Having taken his seat at one of the little tables, the waiter brought him the bill of fare. M. Bernard studied the document long, and finally ordered a "potage Crécy." The waiter placed the smoking basin on the table, walked away, whereupon M. Bernard called him back and said: "I can't eat that soup!" "Will you try a Julienne?" asked the man. "Yes, bring me a Julienne," replied the playwright. The Julienne having been brought, the guest again shook his head and remarked: "I can't eat that." The waiter scratched his head and suggested a "Bisque." But it shared the same fate, M. Bernard declaring that he could not eat it, whereupon the terrified waiter fetched the proprietor. "What is the matter with our soups today, and why can't you eat them?" asked that gentleman. "Because you have forgotten to give me a spoon," replied M. Bernard, gravely.

Actors and the Provinces.

"Why is it that so many members of the theatrical profession have such a dread of leaving London?" asks the Glasgow Daily Record. "Unless a London actor is quite pre-eminent he appears to entertain the foolish idea that he is hiding himself by taking an engagement in the Provinces. Considering how many of our great actors have made their reputations outside of London, and have never been ungrateful or unappreciative of the fact, it is certainly a curious thing that there should be this reluctance on the part of clever young members of the profession to realise that the worshippers of dramatic art do not all live in London. I heard to-day of a well-known young actor who can command £15 a week from any London manager, but whose appearances on the boards here are spasmodic, yet who has refused offers of £10 a week in the provinces, preferring to 'rest' in the Metropolis to work elsewhere. And that his case is the rule and not the exception the advertisements of 'resting' actors in theatrical and other papers are ample evidence."

Perpetual Copyright.

Mr. Hall Caine, writing to the Strand Magazine with reference to the proposed Charles Dickens Testimonial, says:—"My own view has always been that copyright should be perpetual; that it is a natural right, not created by the State, but only ratified by it. I, therefore, feel that the legal heirs of Dickens ought still to be in the enjoyment of revenue from his works. I sympathise with such objections to perpetual copyright as Mr. Gladstone during his lifetime urged, but the basis of those objections has been removed by the great cheapening of books which now places nearly all forms of literature within the reach of the humblest of the people. That being so, the only persons who benefit by the lapse of copyright are the printers and publishers, and the continual competition between them reduces their advantage to a minimum without materially benefiting the masses of the people." The popular novelist says nothing about the many adaptations from Dickens which have held the stage for many years, for which fees are paid to "adaptors."

A Young Man from South America.

Sir Charles Wyndham recounts with interest his début on the dramatic stage. It was in Washington, and he had to say on his entrance, "I am drunk with love and enthusiasm." He entered, and said in jerky, nervous tones, "I am drunk"—pause—"I am drunk"—pause—then, being seized with violent stage fright, he rushed from the stage. The papers said next day, "A Mr. Wyndham represented a young man from South America. He had better go there!"

Those Children!

An actor wishing to study the part of Hamlet in great seclusion at a seaside town, went round looking for quiet rooms. "Are your rooms nice and quiet?" he asked of one landlady. "Oh! yes, only a music-teacher lives next door, but, bless you, you can't hear the piano because of the noise his twelve children make!"

MR. ARTHUR WILLIAMS TALKS.

"In these days of inflated salaries I do a grim smile when I think of my first engagement," says Mr. Arthur Williams. "It was at the Theatre Royal, Gravesend, December, 1861, in The Corsican Brothers, where for the princely salary of 16s. weekly I doubled the parts of Martelli and the Woodcutter. This Christmas sees me complete my forty-ninth year on the stage.

Experientia Docet.

"Leaving Gravesend followed a varied career in booths, fit-ups, ghost shows—twelve to eighteen parts a week being nothing extraordinary. During the next seven years it was a case of provincial stock business—they call it repertory theatre nowadays—at Glasgow, Manchester, Nottingham, Norwich, Birmingham, Bradford, &c., supporting such stars as Phelps, Barry Sullivan, Chas. Mathews, Toole, Sothern, Benjamin Webster, Mme. Celeste, &c. My first London appearance was at the St. James's Theatre in 1868.

A Favourite Part.

"I have rather a record for playing in long runs—Dorothy over 1,000 times, Chinese Honeymoon 1,000 performances, Shop Girl eighteen months, Circus Girl twelve months, Belle of Mayfair thirteen months. Also while at the Avenue I played the Tramp with Charles Hawtrey in the Message from Mars for a year and a half. I must admit the playing of this character gave me more pleasure than any other. People ask me what is my particular hobby. Well, seeing that I have played over 1,000 parts, I'd better say acting, but I have indulged in a little writing, being responsible for the following plays, Secret of a Life, Leave it to Me, Funnibone's Fix, Christmas Chimes, &c.

Unique Experiences.

"I have also had one or two unique experiences. Here is one. On Whit Monday, 1870, I played at the Crystal Palace in Turn Him Out, at 1.30; Highbury Barn at 4.30; Fanfaronade in Belphegor with Charles Dillon at the Surrey, including the farce of The Married Bachelor, at seven; and the Richmond Theatre, Surrey, at 10.30. I have also played a farce in Bradford and the burlesque of Aladdin in Halifax in one night. The other experience occurred when playing during the Agricultural Show week at Preston. The town was so packed with people who could not get away that we decided to give a midnight performance, consisting of two short farces and a variety show. We started at 12.30, finishing at 3.30, and were rewarded by a crowded house.

Look the Part.

"Do I believe in the old stock system? Why, certainly. To-day a London manager will tell an actor: 'My dear sir, I'm sorry, but I'm afraid you don't look the part. In the stock days you had to both look and act the part, or you were very soon dispensed with. Why, even in London at the Pavilion Theatre, in 1876, I played ninety-four parts in just over twelve months. That keeps you from getting rusty, I think.

The Great Mac.

"I remember in 1869 at the Theatre Royal, Norwich, the late G. H. Macdermott, who was an excellent actor, had made himself an enormous favourite both as a character actor and old man, had played an eccentric old king in the pantomime, and his song, entitled 'The Hallelujah Band,' was sung and whistled all over the city, and was the big success of the pantomime. On the occasion of his benefit he played Sir Peter Teazle in School for Scandal, and when he spoke his opening lines, 'When an old bachelor marries a young wife,' the gallery started whistling and singing 'The Hallelujah Band' and would not desist until he had put on his flap shoes and given them his song and dance. That having satisfied them, they allowed the play to go on."

Notoriety and the Stage.

Our readers will cordially agree with "The Father of Four Girls" who writes:—"It is stated that Miss Le Neve has been offered an American music hall engagement at a salary of £200 a week. It is an appalling sign of the times that, while the majority of the public would turn a deaf ear to an appeal for a few pence to reward or encourage a virtuous action, hundreds of pounds are offered to such persons to show themselves on the stage, although they may not possess the least qualification for the dramatic profession. Apart from the insult to really talented professional players, what sort of example is this for the honest and hard-working girl? This is, I suppose, a show-loving age, and managers do not see that they are only dishonouring themselves and their profession in encouraging such morbid curiosity."

Loraine—Actor and Aviator.

It is stimulating to a man in any position to find his opportunities suddenly and wonderfully widened. To one like Mr. Loraine, who has been chiefly engaged in work which is mainly mimetic, it must be extraordinarily fascinating. His situation (says the Pall Mall Gazette) is rather similar to that of a brilliant journalist who, having conspicuously proved his powers of grasping and dealing with public questions as a writer, is summoned from his desk to be the private secretary of a Cabinet Minister, and thence proceeds to be a member of the House of Commons, and in due course becomes a Minister himself. Such things have happened. A man is called from being a mere commentator to the position of a protagonist, and in a moment finds the whole horizon of his life immeasurably extended and the opportunities for displaying his powers superbly enlarged. Like the hero of Wordsworth's poem, he at last "Plays, in many games of life, that one, Where what he most doth value must be won." And, surely, to quote again from the same poem, "This is the happy warrior; this is he Whom every man in arms would wish to be."

A liberal crop of exciting situations is produced by The Sowers, which was staged for the first time at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday. The harvest, however, is a little belated, and the thrilling situations do not appear till the play has well advanced, the prologue and first act being, to a large extent, conversational. The piece halts between the melodramatic and the purely romantic, and the characters, though unconventional, are not distinctly defined. Flashes of satirical humour are abundant in the dialogue, which is effective throughout, and if the action of the earlier part of the play were quickened and a more definite conclusion arrived at nothing should stand in the way of a brilliant future for the play.

The title, of course, is allegorical, and refers to the sacrifices made by Russian patriots for the ultimate amelioration of their countrymen. The name under which they are banded together is that of the Charity League, one of the chief members of which is Prince Paul Howard Alexis, who, disguised as a doctor from Moscow, had been performing works of mercy among the dwellers on his estate at Osterno. The Government having received information about the League, has sent some of its supporters to Siberia, and the prologue of the play finds Prince Paul flying from his estate, led by the faithful steward, Karl Steinmetz. The chief incident of the prologue is the finding on the rugged hillside of the dead body of a man whom Steinmetz recognises as an old acquaintance.

The play proper opens at a charity ball in Paris, at which the Prince and Steinmetz are visitors. Here also is Mrs. Sydney Bamborough, an Englishwoman, but widow of a Russian gentleman. In the space of a few minutes the widow receives two proposals of marriage—one from a crafty French diplomat named Baron Claude de Chauxville, which she rejects, and one from Prince Paul, which she accepts. The plot really begins to thicken at the end of the act, when Vassili, a member of the Russian Secret Service, recognises in Mrs. Bamborough the woman who had sold him the papers by which the Charity League had been betrayed. That information is made use of by the slighted Chauxville, who, in the second act, follows Prince Paul and his newly-made wife to Russia bent upon revenge. He incites the peasants at Osterno to attack the castle of the Prince, who, disguised in a false beard, goes about among his people dispensing food and medicine. In order to make the way clear for attack, Claude compels the Princess to promise to open a side-door for the entry of the peasants into the castle, under the threat of revealing to the Prince not only her share in the betrayal of the Charity League, but also the fact that her former husband still lives. The interview, however, is interrupted by Steinmetz, who rebuts the Baron's statement about her first husband by declaring that he himself had seen him lying dead in the forest. Steinmetz follows up this startling information by horsewhipping the Baron and kicking him out of the house, and then proceeds to inform the Prince of his wife's duplicity. The Prince confronts her with the accusation, but the only explanation she has to offer is that she yielded to the desire for money in a weak moment, and the Prince bids her leave his home and return to England. The noise of the attacking party is heard outside, and in an access of spite against her husband the Princess unfastens the side-door agreed upon, and lets in the angry mob. There is a fierce fight on the staircase, Steinmetz defending the passage with his revolver, until the Prince, as a last resort, quells the disturbance by revealing himself as the beloved Moscow doctor. The Baron has been shot dead in the mêlée, and the Princess, who repents of her rash act, apparently meets with the same fate.

Mr. J. E. Watson, who thus adds to his enterprises a promising production, has secured a strong array of dramatic talent. The moving spirit of the piece is Karl Steinmetz, and Mr. Clifton Alderson realised the stolid but sterling-hearted German admirably, his rich voice giving force to every line and his facial play being highly expressive. Mr. Alderson, we remember, won a success in a similar though less romantic part in a recent production of the Stage Society, and his selection for the present piece proved a distinctly happy one. The complex character of Mrs. Bamborough does not allow Miss Kathleen Russell full scope for her emotional abilities, but she made a fascinating exponent of the Englishwoman amid a Russian environment, and wore some beautiful dresses becomingly. Though at times inclined to be affected, she spoke her lines with her customary melodious intonation that well suited the part. Mr. Chas. Esdale is highly to be commended upon his impersonation of the unscrupulous French Baron, whom he realised completely, while his delivery was admirably clear and distinct. The extensive experience of Mr. Hastings Batson enabled him to make the colourless part of the police spy agreeably conspicuous, and he brought down the curtain on the first act effectively. Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson took the Prince rather too seriously, but he made a sincere lover, and his scene with the peasantry was amusing. A typical English girl who acts as companion to the Princess was played with piquant charm by Miss Maxine Hinton, a comely young actress with a pleasant method of delivery; and Miss Frances Davis brightened the piece considerably by her brief appearance as the light-headed wife of a Russian exile. The latter character was one of the best played in the piece, the hollow voice and depressed demeanour of the returned prisoner from Siberia being cleverly indicated by Mr. H. K. Ayliff, who skilfully doubled the rôle of a paid agitator. Catrina Lanovitch, whose presence in the play is none too well justified, but who figures in a thrilling scene at a meeting of the revolutionaries was invested with a large degree of intensity by Miss Jessie Lothian. Mr. F. Caffrey as a lazy, discontented peasant, and Miss Emily Brown as his wife contributed effective impersonations.

Nothing had been neglected in the mounting, the representation of the rugged Russian steppes with the wind howling through the trees being realistic. The hall of an old castle, with its quaint furniture, was also complete, the raising of part of the wainscotting allowing the fight on the staircase to be witnessed by the audience. There was much enthusiasm at the close of the performance, when the principal ladies were presented with bouquets. In response to cries for "Author," a bespectacled gentleman bowed his acknowledgments on behalf of himself and his collaborator; and Mr. Watson and Mr. Alderson also took a well deserved call as producers.

HERBERT BLACKMORE.

A CHARACTER SKETCH BY "ONE WHO KNOWS HIM."

The musical and dramatic agent is a necessary adjunct to the theatrical profession. The successful actor-manager who is his own "star" does not require him for himself, but he has plays to cast, and if he has not the exact artist in his mind—or the author has not, which amounts to the same thing—he falls back upon the agent. The qualifications required are fully set down, a huge ledger (the record of years) is turned up, and hey presto! the want is supplied.

To the artist seeking an engagement the agent appears in another light. Sitting amidst a crowd of others in an ante-room, he is about as hard a person to get hold of as a Prime Minister. How eagerly his ingress and egress are watched, how envious are the eyes cast upon the door "Manager's Entrance," and what are the feelings of those who have seen the gilded creatures walk right in to the royal sanctum will be easily understood by those whose fate has been to sit for hours waiting for the interview which, like the smile, very often does not "come off."

The agent is the least to blame of anyone in the matter. Managers want certain people—they don't want others. To all uniform courtesy is essential, the one not required to-day may be wanted to-morrow. If not this year, why next; and so the promise of being kept well in mind has to be made, and perhaps this necessary salve to human vanity and human feelings has to be looked upon as one of the main articles in the stock-in-trade of the successful agent.

The oldest agency in London is that labelled "Blackmore's," 11, Garrick-street, W.C. It dates back to 1868, and is controlled by Herbert Blackmore, assisted by his partner Mr. Lionel Wallace and an expert staff of assistants, including the ubiquitous all-round young gentleman, Mr. Nichols, who is equally at home "trying a voice" or apologising for the inability of either of the governors to grant interviews to clients. The offices contain hundreds of photographs of present-day footlight favourites, and in the inner office is a group that will bring back pleasant memories to lovers of bygone stage heroes.

Since 1868 things theatrical, like everything else, have changed in manners, methods and requirements. Herbert Blackmore's father would be as much at sea nowadays as his son would be, could the latter but travel backwards. But each have filled with equal honour the position they have been placed in and in the periods in which they have lived.

The writer's first introduction to Herbert Blackmore can hardly be described. He was acting-manager at the time at the Princess's Theatre. He called upon him and knocked at the door of his office. A stentorian voice shouted "Come in." He did so, and faced the proprietor of the voice, and found he possessed a very fierce-looking moustache. Had the figure been as imposing as the voice and moustache, it would have touched the ceiling. The visitor stated his business, and received very curt replies. "Yes," "No," "Don't know," "Can't say," and was flabbergasted. He came away with no very great opinion of the gentleman. He knows him better now, and has found out there are many good qualities hidden behind a commodore's voice and a guardsman's moustache.

One of the first qualities of an agent is to discover budding talent; those who have "got there" can always be shopped; the thing is to find out what is "coming on." There are many discoveries to which Herbert Blackmore can lay credit. Another quality, and a scarce one, is to supply actually what is wanted, and not to land a manager with anyone he has on his books for the mere sake of commission. This is one of the qualities that Herbert Blackmore possesses, and has gained him the respect and confidence of most of the present "to the front" managers. His "business" friends are legion.

But to see Blackmore at his best is "on the river." A greater enthusiast for the Thames does not exist. Why, only this very week the writer was just paddling out of a lock with his skiff when an unmistakable voice hailed him. He turned; there was Herbert, bare-kneed and in regulation river clobber, pulling a one-pair outrigger. He had twenty miles in front of him before he reached his destination, and heaven only knows how far he had come then. As captain of the Twickenham Rowing Club, he has guided them many times to victory, and to see him coaching a crew from the bank, one can well understand how useful "the voice" comes in upon those occasions. He also in double-sculling is the holder of innumerable trophies. Henley knows him well, but although he has entered for the great goal of the amateur sculler, "The Diamonds," he has never yet had the luck to pull it off.

He is as much at home in a boat as a duck is on the water, and can practically make his boat do exactly what he requires. His fund of animal spirits is unending. Half a mile from a lock, or when his boat is to be housed, his approach is heralded by that resonant "voice." No one can get through a lock or be attended to quicker on the Thames from Teddington to Oxford. Should anyone try to steal a march on him by getting into or out of a lock before him, woe be to him. By a few strokes, peculiarly his own, the intruder is quietly put on one side, and while Herbert is safely gliding away upon his journey, is left struggling to get the nose of his boat to face the opening of the lock.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

The weird chronicles of a "Suicide Club" which existed in America a few years ago caused a great sensation when the facts were published and the general public read how seven persons met their deaths. It would be difficult to choose a more tragic subject for a drama, and consequently when the play, The King of Diamonds, the story of which was taken from the chronicles of the club, was first produced in America it scored an immediate success.

Instead of a "Suicide Club," the author, Mr. M. James, has woven the drama round the doings of a "Murder Club," the symbol of which is the Ace of Diamonds. The member drawing the King of Diamonds from a number of cards is appointed to commit murder. The drama opens whilst a draw is in progress, and Sir Philip Garth receives the fatal card. He chooses as his victim a woman whom he has betrayed, and who has tracked him from Australia. He lures her to a lonely common and shoots her, afterwards removing all traces of her identity and taking possession of a diamond ring. The crime, however, is witnessed by a mysterious woman, Olive Vandell, known as Olive Howard. Suspicion falls upon a young man named Richard Fenton, who was discovered holding the revolver by a brother of Sir Philip Garth. He endeavours to blackmail the young man, and after being ejected from the house he informs the police, and Fenton is arrested before the eyes of his sweetheart.

At his trial false evidence is given against him by the brothers Garth, and he is sentenced to death. The last act is of a most sensational character. There is another meeting of the "Murder Club," and the fatal card is drawn by the Hon. Herbert Selby, a wastrel who has fallen into Sir Philip Garth's clutches. The latter promises to release him from a heavy debt if he will select as his victim the woman Olive Vandell. He consents, and suddenly the meeting is interrupted by the father of the girl whom Garth murdered. At the point of the revolver he secures a written account of how the crime was committed. Garth endeavours to wreak a fiendish revenge upon Olive Vandell, who, he thinks, has betrayed him, and there is a terrible struggle between the two in which the interior of a drawing-room is wrecked. Garth is mortally injured by his intended victim, and then the truth comes out, and all ends happily.

The drama was played for the first time in England at the Carlton Theatre, Birmingham, on Monday night last by Mr. Harry Aynsleigh's company. Mr. Aynsleigh has been a successful producer in America, South Africa, Australia, and India, and in his experienced hands the drama is exceptionally well organised. Mr. Aynsleigh plays the leading rôle as Sir Philip Garth, and his fine stage presence and power of expression go far towards ensuring the success of the drama. He has the support of a strong company, Miss Camille Treherne in the character of Olive Vandell being very conspicuous. There is none of the blatant sensational element about her acting, and she creates an excellent impression. Mr. George Keen makes an ideal hero, and has a good partner in Miss Peggy Ross, whose enunciation, however, is slightly lacking in forcefulness. Mr. Walter Warren deserves much praise for his clever impersonation of an intoxicated character, and, together with Miss Katie Lawrence and Mr. Bert Sharp he shares the honours in the comedy department.

With such a powerful theme, it will be readily recognised that the staging of the drama presents many obstacles. Mr. Aynsleigh's useful experience, however, has enabled him to overcome these in a most satisfactory manner, and events of a most exciting nature follow one another in a manner that fairly carries away the audience. Much praise is due to the able stage-manager, Mr. Aubrey Norton.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the Council Meeting held at 32, Regent-street, on Tuesday, August 9. Present: Mr. Langford Reed (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Chris Walker, Henry Pettitt, C. F. Collings, H. Le Grand, Clarence Derwent, Miss Vita Spencer, Miss Beatrice Chester, and Mr. D. Young (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The hon. solicitor reported on four cases, and received instructions.

With reference to a letter re a bogus agency, the secretary was instructed to ask the writer to be good enough to send particulars of his complaint to the London County Council, and subsequently Mr. Derwent suggested that the information should be sent to Mr. Cecil Raleigh, who has expressed a wish for particulars of any cases of bogus agencies.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. Portland Akerman re Parliamentary Bill and one licence. The following gentlemen were asked to serve as delegates:—Messrs. Cecil Raleigh, C. Derwent, C. F. Collings, Langford Reed, Hayden Coffin, and Richard A. Greene.

With reference to a manager's complaint against a member, a letter was read from the latter, and the secretary was instructed that the explanation contained therein be placed before the manager.

The Finance Committee's report was read by Mr. C. F. Collings and adopted.

A suggestion by Mr. Derwent that a letter be sent to London managers asking them if they objected to paying a fee for rehearsals, was carried. Mr. Derwent promised to present a draft of the said letter for consideration and approval.

Miss Caroline Fenton was elected. The secretary reported ten engagements through the agency. The secretary was instructed to write to Mr. A. E. Drinkwater and ask him if he had any objection to being co-opted on the council in the event of a vacancy occurring.

Mr. Horace Stanley is on a return visit to the Theatre Royal, Wexford, and on Monday opened with The Female Detective. Mr. T. B. Brabazon gave a fine rendering of Colonel Heathcote; Mr. Ernest Fare made a manly Tom Heathcote; Mr. Charles Burdon presented a vivid character study of the thief and forger, Basil Vane; Mr. Sydney Fiennes made the most of the part of John Good; Mr. Horace Stanley as Tubby Philpotts kept the house thoroughly amused, his efforts being ably seconded by Miss Kate Kilpack as Emma Toogood; Little Minnie Halston as Dick quickly gained the sympathies of the audience; and Miss Violet Agnew was a convincing Nellie Danvers, the part of Myra Mayne, the female detective, being entrusted to Miss Bernice Fielding, who played well.

RINKING GOSSIP.

Rinking in India.

The Mussoorie Rink and Theatre has been doing record business lately, and in addition to skating the Warwick Major Comedy Company has been delighting crowded audiences. Before leaving Mussoorie Mr. Major and the members of his company gave Mr. George Leslie, the popular lessee and manager, a complimentary benefit, which was a big success. On this occasion Mr. Leslie was presented with a handsome gold cigarette case from Mr. Warwick Major, and a diamond pin from Her Highness the Begum of Bhopal (the only ruling lady in Asia).

Gymkhana on Skates.

A gymkhana on skates took place on July 19, and the various events were well contested. The ever-popular Florodora has also proved a big attraction here, and H.H. the Maharani of Tikari is organising a variety show on a large scale in aid of a local military charity. Mr. Leslie is to be congratulated on the success he has achieved in India.

Roller Skating in Berlin.

A complete transformation of the Rollschuh Bahn in Kurfürstendamm, Berlin, is now taking place. The large building—the largest on the Continent, and, next to Olympia, London, the largest in the world—will be unrecognisable when it reopens its doors to the public late in September. The entrance hall, instead of a bare passage, will become a foyer richly carpeted, with walls and ceiling tastefully decorated. Inside the main hall no bare walls, no iron roof, and no gaunt iron columns will be visible. Instead of a huge barrack, one will find a luxuriously-appointed hall, carpeted all over, with elegant loges flanking the skating surface. Walls and roof are being covered with silk of delicate shades, and the iron columns transformed into handsome marble pillars by means of their being encased in a structure of imitation marble. Dainty lamps with shades will find a place on the tables in the loges, and the huge unsightly arc lamps will be hidden by artistic glass shades with brass chains.

Ballet on Rollers.

Spectators will receive as much attention as skaters, an entertainment of a unique character being presented afternoon and evening. In addition to engaging the best procurable feature skating acts, Mr. C. B. Cochran, the new managing-director, is preparing a ballet on rollers, which will be presented at the reopening.

Hamburg Velodrome.

The magnificent Velodrome in Hamburg will commence its second roller-skating season under the direction of Mr. C. B. Cochrane, with Mr. Cornelius Wohlers as resident-manager. Great improvements have been made in the appearance of the building, the floor has been re-surfaced, and a complete new supply of Winslow skates installed. Part of the building is now opened as an Electric Theatre, to which access can be had from both the building and the street. A fine large motor garage is also a convenience which the patrons of the Velodrome take full advantage of. The best procurable skating acts are being engaged by Mr. Cochran, who will also procure other novel entertainments for the amusement of those who do not skate.

Hanover Rinking Palace.

The Rollschuh Palast, Hanover, opens on Sept. 2. The managing-director of the controlling company (The Hanover American Roller Rink Co.) is Mr. C. B. Cochran, and Mr. Guilio Fano is again the resident-manager. A feature of the season will be the presentation of the best skating acts.

The Strand Rink, Grimsby.

The Strand Rink, Grimsby, is being largely patronised, crowds thronging the spacious floor every evening. An innovation has been made by converting it into a kind of "two-house-a-night" entertainment. At 6.30 there is a bioscope picture exhibition, and at eight o'clock the rink is used for skating, which continues until eleven. Up to the present this feature has proved most popular, and it is the intention of the management to continue it through the coming winter. The rink is excellently managed, and it will be made still more attractive shortly by the further decoration of the walls.

Spennymoor Skating Rink.

The Pavilion Skating Rink, Spennymoor, has commenced for the season, and good houses are the rule. The management has recently introduced an electric organ, which adds additional interest to the pastime. Mr. Stockdale is officiating as manager.

Roller-skating at Hastings.

At the American Palace Pier, Hastings, roller-skating, with exhibitions by professionals, is carried on all day, and music is provided at the principal sessions. The rink is the largest in the district, and is well equipped in every respect, whilst its position, at the head of the pier, affords cool sea breezes and also shelter from the sun's rays.

Northampton Rinks Reopen.

The Castle Skating Rink and the George Skating Rink, Northampton, opened for the season on Monday last.

Aviation Meeting at a Skating Rink.

The aviation meeting held on the skating rink of the Ayr Pavilion, for miniature flying machines, proved a huge success. There were prizes for circular flight, point-to-point flight, and long-distance flight.

FILM GOSSIP.

Historic Film and Fresh Air Fund.

Mr. F. R. Griffiths, of the New Bioscope Trading Company, in a letter to the Daily Express, has offered to sell, on behalf of the Fresh Air Fund, a cinematograph film record of King Edward's Funeral. The film, a very fine one, is 1,250ft. in length, and has been specially treated so as to last twenty or thirty years. Mr. Griffiths suggests that at the end of that time it could be taken out of its case and exhibited, and again treated so as to make it imperishable for a further period. The pictures may be seen at the offices of the Company in Cecil Court, Charing Cross-road.

Mr. Griffiths' Generous Contribution.

Mr. Griffiths, whose fondness for the youngsters is well known, also kindly devoted the entire proceeds, without deducting expenses, of last Wednesday's performances at the Cinematograph shows at the West London Theatre; Grand Theatre, Forest Gate; Holloway Hall, Holloway-road; and the Public Hall, Peckham, to the Fresh Air Fund, "People's Picture Palace Day," when several thousand youngsters will get a glimpse of the country through Mr. Griffiths' kindly thought, will doubtless live long in their memories.

Cowes Regatta at Marble Arch.

Territorial Manœuvres on the Screen.

Rink Picture Palace, Limerick.

The success of this bijou Palace has long since been established. This week crowds are attracted nightly by that beautiful film The Passion Play, as well as the Vision of Balthassar, and the comic patrons are not neglected, for such humorous films as the Sleep-Walker, Muzzled, Incognito, and The Old Gamp are exhibited. The manager shows admirable censorship in his exhibits, and with Miss Boland O'Hartigan as vocalist and Miss May O'Connor as accompanist the future of the Picture Palace has been assured.

Sunday Cinematograph Shows in Bristol.

At Bristol on Tuesday the licensing justices refused to licence two new places of amusement for cinematograph pictures and music for more than a six days' week. One applicant said it was unfair to him, because a seven days' licence had been granted to similar halls near. The justices replied that if a mistake had been made in allowing other halls to open on Sundays, they did not propose to perpetuate it, and the whole subject would be reconsidered at the annual licensing sessions.

A Case of Identity.

A Case of Identity is a strong detective play recently screened at the Bath Electric Theatre. Hogarth, the detective, is seen sitting at midnight in his private room, smoking pensively. A knock at the door, and the main feature of the plot is introduced—a man dying, stabbed beneath the heart. He has just time to inform the detective that his daughter is in danger from another man, and enlists his services. The film goes on to show how the villain of the piece impersonates the girl's father to gain his ends, and how the detective follows him, eventually effects his arrest, and restores the girl to the arms of her lover. Another admirable set of pictures is a highly dramatic film entitled Conscience. The scenic film, Lachime Rapids, proves very beautiful, while some pictures entitled A Light Heart is better than Riches, depict in a most attractive manner that money does not always bring happiness with it. Her Golden Locks is a very funny film indeed, as is another showing the persistence of woman in love affairs.

Fine Films at Stoll's Panopticon, Cardiff.

Stoll's Panopticon participated in a remarkable degree in the rush of good business done by the Cardiff places of amusement last week, and the management provided for this week an unusually attractive entertainment. Starred on the bills are the Russian drama, The Girl in the Barracks, which tells a pretty love story full of vigour and emotion, and The Tongue of Scandal, a depiction of rustic life in a village, where the eavesdropper and the suspicious are ever ready to hear and see the faults of their neighbours. There is a pleasing variety of other pictures, whilst the vocal turns are also of a high order. Patrons of the Panopticon will welcome the reappearance of Mr. Bert Williams, whose abilities as an elocutionist are so well known to Cardiff audiences.

Finsbury Park Picture Palace.

The standard with which the Finsbury Park Cinematograph Theatre opened has been maintained, and attendances at this popular picture house are always large. The pictures which are shown are not only excellent for their subjects but admirable for the clearness and smoothness of their presentation. The lights which in the early days used to dart all over the screen and weary the eyes of the onlooker have now disappeared. The educational value of these shows is considerable. This week the serious subject is the newspaper, and the pictures show all the processes, from the tree in the forest to the paper at the breakfast table. The felling of the timber, the barking of the trees, the carrying to the mill are all vividly presented. The humorous side of the entertainment is always liberally supplied, and the laughter of both children and adults shows how much it is enjoyed.

More Picture Palaces in Nottingham.

The development of the cinematograph theatres is taking place throughout the Nottingham district as well as in the city itself, and Nottingham is likely to have six or seven of these theatres running during the coming winter. In a number of the small adjacent towns speculators have similar projects in hand.

Bournemouth Centenary Carnival Pictures.

Crowded houses continue the rule at the Empire Electric Theatre, Bournemouth, and on several occasions it has been difficult to find sufficient seating accommodation. The interesting series of pictures of the Bournemouth Centenary Carnival, Battle of Flowers, street decoration, and scenes are again shown, and evoke considerable interest, whilst the daring performances of the aviators at the Aerodrome at Southbourne are given with realistic effect. Other films relate to sport, travel, and the drama. A novel performance is that given by means of the Animatophone, which produces the grand opera Faust, with all the characters. This magnificent series of singing pictures should attract crowded houses.

Dublin Cinematograph Theatre.

Theatre de Luxe, Strand.

The fine programme of films screened at the Theatre de Luxe, Strand, includes The Launch of H.M.S. Lion, A Vein of Gold, Fashoda, A Cannon Duel, The Bride of the Haunted Castle, Soap in His Eye, A Daring Performance, and Mugwump's Jealousy.

Western World Pictures.

Irish Animated Picture Company.

The Irish Animated Picture Company commenced their second week at the Rotunda, Dublin, on Monday with a capital programme, which comprises all the latest pictures, in addition to which there are several good variety turns. The orchestral band of the Scots Fusiliers contributes many keenly-appreciated selections.

Forest Gate Electric Theatre.

This, one of the most elegantly appointed and up-to-date of the London and provincial group of picture halls, continues to meet with gratifying success. The pictures presented are always of a most entertaining description. During the holiday week special programmes were given, including some excellent colour films and singing pictures by the Animatophone. In addition to many amusing films some instructive and entertaining pictures such as Seal Catching off Tasmania and the Ordination of a Bonze have been given to large and appreciative audiences. The theatre is now under the management of Mr. W. S. Redfern, who is most ably assisted by Mr. Chas. Levick.

Picture Theatre for Gosport.

The electric picture craze has further extended to Gosport. Recently, on behalf of a small local syndicate Mr. V. E. G. Churcher at the Fareham Sessions successfully applied for a licence for a picture theatre in the Avenue-road. We hear also that Eastleigh, the seat of the L. and S.W. Railway works, is in a few weeks to be favoured with an electric theatre, an enterprising Portsmouth syndicate having the matter in hand.

Theatre de Luxe, Norwich.

Electric Theatre for Durham.

An electric theatre is about to be erected in Durham City by Mr. T. F. McDonald, the pioneer of animated pictures on Tyneside, and his partner, Mr. R. Allan, of North Shields. An excellent site has been obtained in a central position. The plans are ready, and, subject to the approval of the local authorities, building will be commenced at once.

Mr. W. J. Wainratta, of wire-walking fame, arrived in London a few days ago from New York, where he has for some months been associated with the Vitagraph Company of America. As sole representative in Europe of the J. and J. Company, he has for disposal the exclusive rights of the Jefferies-Johnson fight pictures, taken in Reno, Nevada, U.S.A., on July 4 last. Mr. Wainratta is vice-president of the Music Hall Sick Fund, and attended the committee's monthly meeting held on Wednesday afternoon, when he received a hearty welcome home from his fellow members.

Ayr Picture Palace.

CINEMA HOUSE, OXFORD-STREET.

This building, which has just been erected by the London Cinematograph Company (1909), Ltd., at 225, Oxford-street, and which was inaugurated by Her Grace the Duchess of Portland on July 14, represents the last word in living-picture theatres, situated as it is opposite Peter Robinson's, within a stone's throw of Regent-street, in the heart of the West End.

The building has been erected by Messrs. J. Chessum and Sons, from designs by Mr. Melville S. Ward, F.R.I.B.A., has a frontage of Portland stone, while Hill's-place, which abuts on the side of the building, affords additional and convenient means of entry and egress. It is approached from Oxford-street by a vestibule. The interior of the theatre has been carried out in the Jacobean style, the auditorium (which has a depth of 87ft., with a width of 65ft., and a height of 25ft.) being panelled throughout in old oak (the work of Messrs. Elliott, of Newbury), relieved by a stone frieze below the ceiling, and scrollwork in plaster by Messrs. Clark and Co. The floor, which is laid on a bold rake, will seat over 500 persons, while the cantilever circle affords accommodation for some 100 more. Access to the circle is provided by a staircase, wainscoted in oak, leading up from the vestibule, and an additional staircase gives direct means of egress into Hill's-place.

The seats, which have been specially made by Mr. James Lyons, of Holborn, are upholstered in velvet of a Rose-du-Barri tint. The electrical installation is of the most complete description, and has been carried out by Messrs. Clements and Sons and Messrs. Vaughan's Engineering Installations Company, Ltd. The wrought steel electroliers and other metal fittings are by Messrs. Peyton and Peyton.

The upper part of the building contains a fine range of offices for the use of the company, and in addition a spacious restaurant, approached direct from Oxford-street, and now nearly completed.

The Building News of the 5th inst. has given an excellently illustrated article of the new Cinema Theatre, Oxford-street, W., by whose courtesy we are able to reproduce the accompanying views.

CINEMA THEATRE, OXFORD-STREET. FRONT ELEVATION.

CINEMA THEATRE, OXFORD-STREET. THE AUDITORIUM.

"THE GOODRICH AVERAGE"

The following is the type of testimonial we like to publish. Occasionally kind friends send us reports of abnormal tyres which have done their 10,000 miles or over. We keep these for our personal satisfaction only. Now and then a man lives to be a hundred; now and then a golfer holes out in one. These things are interesting, but not important. They are of no value to the actuary. In making our tyre we aim at a high average. In advertising it, we quote only facts bearing on that average.

Dear Sirs, June 29, 1910.
We have pleasure in giving you, after two years' trial, our matured opinion on the qualities of your tyres. We have used them on our own cars under all conditions of wear and surface, both in town and country, and they have maintained a remarkably high average of service from the beginning. We have had an indifferent example or two, but striking an average we have not yet found equal results from any other tyres that have come within our personal experience, and this opinion is reflected by practically every customer to whom we have recommended them. Yours faithfully,
SEALE & DE BECKER, Ltd.,
(Signed) L. A. DE BECKER, Managing Director.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR
ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.

Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.

Chapter III.

CHAPTER IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.

Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

Copyright confusion is like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his textbook on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.
"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

MANAGERS AND PLAYS.

An article signed "Diogenes" recently appeared in the Penny Illustrated Paper, and was "featured" on the bill boards of that publication. In the form of an "open letter," it attacked Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER for not producing plays by unknown authors. "No one enjoys the pretty wit and humanity of such a past-master of his art as R. C. CARTON more than we do," wrote the writer of the article; "the theatrical ingenuity of Mr. H. A. JONES holds us spellbound; the pleasing fancy of Mr. MASON has titillated our senses; but where, oh! where, Mr. ALEXANDER, is the helping hand you should extend to the great untried, unacted, and unwept-for? We hold a brief for him. What have you done of late years to assist him?" The attack, of course, was both absurd and uncalled for. A theatre is not a philanthropic institution, and the business of a theatrical manager is to obtain and produce plays acceptable to his patrons. All manuscripts forwarded to the St. James's are read and dealt with on their merits; and we may be sure that if Mr. ALEXANDER discovered a genius in an unknown dramatist and that genius was capable of writing a play suitable for the actor-manager and his company, he would certainly produce it.

The writer of the article refers to the delay before the production of Jim the Penman and The Walls of Jericho. But a piece, good in itself, may travel round for years before it comes to the manager and the company whom it exactly fits. The success then achieved is the result of a complete combination of authorship and acting.

There have always been complaints of the want of enterprise of managers and of their inappreciation of unknown authors. There is an idea in the minds of many people that, in the dim background of the world of letters, there exist a number of young dramatists who only require an opportunity to show their talent. Opportunity, says the proverb, is everything; but the saying is absolutely false as far as playwriting is concerned. The born playwright, or poet, or artist is a fanatic. He does his work, not because he makes himself do it, but because he is impelled by an irresistible instinct and impulse. It is quite possible that there are weaker vessels who are prevented from writing plays on account of their foresight of the difficulties of production and the delay which must elapse before the attainment of success; and we no doubt lose, by our system of actor-management and by our deficiency in the technical, as opposed to the essential elements of acting, some fine and subtle work, which in other countries faces the footlights, but in England has to find its outlet in literature. But, after all, a school of art is, and always must be, what the national public make it. A play supposes an audience, a picture an exhibition, a book a circle of readers, or it practically does not exist. And if there is no demand, or only a very small demand, in the playgoing public for the more delicate qualities of dramatic art, for the exquisitely refined, the fancifully wire-drawn, the eccentric, and the dreadfully deep, it is better that plays possessing such qualities should be presented privately and to the minority which enjoys them.

The creation of a really good play is a sort of miracle. The form of the dramatic art is such an obstacle that it is only overcome by a happy chance; and the form at the present day is much more deterrent and difficult than it was in the time of SHAKESPEARE. The dramatist must divide his story into a certain number of acts, with the same scene for each, or, at any rate, very few tableaux. In the Shakespearean period it was possible to "hop from France into Spain, over the Alps and back again" all in one act; and, even in later times, the old system of "flats" and the indifference of the audience to elaborate "sets" made the dramatist's task much easier. When an author is born with all the qualities which make a novelist—the power of conceiving a plot and characters, of inventing a fine fable and developing it adequately, and with a consummate cleverness in stage construction—the birth may almost be called a "monstrous" one; and it is quite just that his labours should be highly paid. The mere technique of the stage can be learned; by taking thought a would-be dramatist can add a cubit, or indeed several, to his stature; but the power of thinking in the theatrical tongue, of selecting instinctively the theatrically suitable and rejecting with equally instinctive decision the theatrically ineffective is so rarely combined with the highest kind of imagination and insight that a fine dramatist is something to marvel at as well as to admire. Even SHAKESPEARE seems to have got what we may call his rough construction, his first scenario, done for him by playwrights far inferior to him in genius; and the success of the system of collaboration, which was formerly more in vogue than it is at present, proves that, for one man to combine the gifts of inspiration and construction is quite uncommon. And that is the reason why good dramatists are so rare.

At one time, indeed, it could be said that the unacted had cause for complaint. Their only method of getting a hearing was by means of a matinée, which cost at least £150. But at present, with the numerous societies devoted to the production of the work of unknown writers, it seems impossible that any really excellent work can fail to secure a hearing. It cannot be denied, however, that the disappointment and delay which are inseparable from the dramatist's career, and which contrast so painfully with the comparatively short probation and easy victory of the novelist, are discouraging to all but the bravest. But why blame managers for the inherent and the inevitable?

WOOLWICH HIPPODROME.

A popular programme has been arranged this week by the genial manager, Mr. Herbert H. Laidman. Maud Wilton is well known in Woolwich, and her songs are appreciated, especially "Will the congregation please stand up?" Oliver Martyn creates much fun in his rendering of his comedy monologue "The Boxing Contest"; the Ellimans are a clever pair in a novelty musical act, the gentleman being an expert exponent of 'cello, violin, and concertina, whilst the lady cleverly plays the concertina and piano, also singing tunefully "Somewhere" and "A medley."

Gertie Gitana, who tops the bill, is always a favourite, her songs "Sweet Caroline" and "Queen of the Cannibal Isles," accompanied with an eccentric dance, earning for her repeated plaudits, her third number, "You were going through the corn, Mollie dear," being delightfully rendered. Carta and Mirtziana are seen in novel gymnastic and equilibristic creations, Carta balancing tables, chairs, &c., on his chin, walking up and downstairs meanwhile. He also suspends Mlle. Mirtziana on a cycle by his teeth, she balancing a table and vase of flowers thereon on her chin.

Lee and Kingston have a very humorous skit, The Resourceful Lover; the Sisters Caselli are clever, their duets being well rendered and their dances and high kicking especially pleasing; Selby and Myers are smart patterers, singers, and dancers. The Bioscope pictures are, as usual, very entertaining, the Adventures of Weary Willie being most funny. Harry P. Selwyn's company present a new dramatic episode, in three scenes, by Fraser Brunner, entitled A Soldier of Fortune, noticed in another column.

IN spite of an interim injunction granted by His Honour Judge Dodd, K.C., at Hull County Court on Monday to prevent the artists styled "Tom and Neil" appearing at the Hull Hippodrome this week, these artists came forward at both houses on Monday evening.

THEY did not appear, however, on Tuesday. An agreement was come to on the matter. The injunction was dissolved, and Tom and Neil agreed to pay the expenses of Mr. Harry Slingsby, manager of the Empire, Hull, who obtained the injunction.

FRANK HAWTHORNE, the Australian comedian, is leaving shortly for the "Sunny South." We wish this clever artist "bon voyage."

MR. BERT LLOYD is taking a sea voyage by the doctor's orders. He leaves on Saturday for Gibraltar and Madeira.

THOSE interested in cycling will have an opportunity of witnessing a unique display at the Palace Theatre next Monday, when the Kaufmann Troupe will make their début at that house. Another new turn will be provided by Delvin and Ellwood, American performers, who make their first appearance in this country in a new sketch.

CEDAR AND ELGAR had a somewhat disconcerting experience on Tuesday evening, when, on arriving at Edmonton Empire, they discovered they had left their band-books behind at the London Hippodrome. The difficulty, however, was soon overcome, thanks to the opportune assistance of the genial conductor, Mr. Asher, and his very capable orchestra, who most admirably saved the situation by playing the numbers from memory.

THE Manchester Hippodrome staff outing took place on Sunday last. The party of about fifty, under the generalship of Manager Nelson Barry, set off (after being photographed) in "ye olde tyme four-in-hand" for Mobberley, where Host Leigh, of the Roebuck Hotel, more than fulfilled expectations by entirely satisfying his hungry and right merry guests. Speeches were, by common consent, reduced to a minimum. "The King and the Royal Family," proposed by Nelson Barry, were toasted in the usual way, as were also "Mr. Oswald Stoll and Our Directors," proposed by Mr. Arthur G. Trussell (Assistant-Manager). "The Visitors" and "The Ladies" were proposed by Mr. H. Garnham (Advertising Manager) and Mr. H. E. Sawyer respectively, and Mr. Harry Hall (Manager, Ardwick Green Empire) replied.

AMONG the invited guests were Mr. Peter Lawton, Mr. Baron, Mr. Pinfold, Mr. Gardner, &c. After lunch the journey was continued to the Swan Hotel, Bollington. Here high tea was partaken of. Mr. Barry, in a humorous, concise speech, referred to his staff in most congratulatory terms, and delighted his hearers by his reference to many little episodes of their work his managerial eye had detected, but which they had thought possibly had passed unnoticed. A cordial vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. Trussell to the organisers of the picnic—Messrs. Webb and Wainwright—and suitably acknowledged by both gentlemen. Manchester was reached about 9.30, and the curtain was rung down on the sixth annual outing with many calls of "Encore."

"A SUPREME MOMENT."

Dramatic Sketch, by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, Produced at the Coliseum on Monday, Aug. 8.

Norman Lauriston ..... MR. DAWSON MILWARD
Sir Charles Campbell ..... MR. HARVEY BRABAN
Christine ..... MISS EMMA LOVETT
Madeleine Debray ..... MISS MARGARET HALSTAN

The advent of leading actresses to the variety stage has become a weekly occurrence, and the latest to make the plunge is Miss Margaret Halstan, a gifted player, whose work in the higher drama and in Shakespeare has been the theme of eulogy in these columns, ever since the afternoon she claimed recognition for a remarkable performance of the heroine of a Nihilist play at the Avenue. For her appearance at the Coliseum Miss Halstan is fortunate in securing a playlet from the pen of Mrs. W. K. Clifford, who is always equal to writing interesting dialogue, and has besides the instinct of the theatre. As Mrs. Clifford has chosen for the protagonist of her playlet a distinguished French actress, who has indulged in a grande passion for a young English diplomat, we are quite prepared for waywardness and inconsistency. When Norman Lauriston comes to say good-bye to Madeleine Debray, she rebels against the convention that to advance his career her lover must marry. He frankly confesses that he will have little love to offer to his grey-eyed cousin with a title. Long since—eight years—he gave his heart to Madeleine; but what would you? He must wed a patrician; besides, he had offered marriage to la belle, but had been refused. Madeleine begs for one last interview, and after considerable hesitation he consents. On his arrival in the evening Lauriston meets his friend, Sir Charles Campbell, who has just called on Madeleine. Campbell is at first unaware of the liaison; and is shocked when, at the moment of his departure, he discovers Lauriston's portrait, autographed and dated eight years ago. Madeleine has had time apparently to nurse her jealousy in the interval between the two interviews, and uses her most fascinating wiles to keep her lover; but though his reserve gives way to a temporay transport of affection, he remains firm. Madeleine then loses all control of herself, and taking a small pistol from a case declares she will shoot him. He asks for time to write a letter, and then, coolly facing her, tells her he is ready. But Madeleine's jealous fury is but fugitive; her deep love remains, and throwing away her weapon, the actress opens the door, and the lover passes out of her life, of which the incident is The Supreme Moment. Miss Halstan is beautiful enough to make one wonder at the defection of Madeleine's lover; and the caressing mood of the actress, her graciousness, and her unreasoning fury were all admirably depicted. Mr. Dawson Milward's rendering of Norman Lauriston was charged with all the patrician reserve that we may suppose belongs to the diplomatic service; but the note of passion in the final interview between the lovers was cleverly emphasised. Mr. Harvey Braban is decidedly good as Sir Charles Campbell; and Miss Emma Lovett does all that is necessary for the part of Christine. The piece is mounted with great care.

AN excellent photograph, 8¼in. by 6¼in., of the Terriers' jaunt last Sunday can be had from Messrs. Henry Lunt and Co., 29, Lambeth-road, for a charge of 1s. 6d.

MR. WALTER GRAHAM, the human marionette, has scored a big success at the Palace, Hammersmith, this week. Next Monday he opens at the Palace, Bradford, being his first return date on the Macnaghten tour.

MISS DOLLY HARMER is making a hit this week at the Tivoli, Dublin, with Maurice Scott and Fred. Barnes' song "No, for an answer"; also Will Hyden and Robson's song "The lady doctor."

SARAH BERNHARDT, who is to make her first variety appearance at the London Coliseum on the 19th of next month, has become a great-grandmother, a child having been born to the daughter of M. Maurice Bernhardt, her son.

THE Three Sisters Trapnell, fresh from their Australian tour, opened at the Derby Castle, Douglas, Isle of Man, on Monday last with an entirely new act. This novelty, consisting of terpsichorean and acrobatic art, is secured by the management of the Folies Begere, Paris, for September next, and will be seen afterwards at the London Pavilion.

MISS RONNA SHANARA has been a big attraction this week at the Aquarium, Scarborough, with the troupe of Thibet Mountain Deer Goats, which are claimed to be the only troupe in Europe. Full houses have been the rule at every performance, and the local Press and the visitors speak in the highest praise of a remarkable performance.

"NICK CARTER, DETECTIVE," which J. Forbes Knowles and Harry Masterman are now touring, has proved a big success. It is a heavy production and a large company, but Messrs. Knowles and Masterman are convinced they will get a good return for their enterprise.

THE Empire ballet, The Dancing Master, with its realistic pictures of the old world of the forties, has achieved a popularity worthy of this home of British dancing, and again proves the fact that there is always a great public for the higher form of a delightful art.

THE latest quotations for music hall shares are as follows:—Athambra, 1⅞; Empire (15s. paid), 1⅞; ditto (10s. paid), 1⅛; London Pavilion, 2⅛; ditto pref., 4½; Metropolitan, ⅜; Moss Empires, 3⅞; Oxford, 6⅛; Palace Theatre (9s. paid), 20s.; Tivoli, New, 6xd.

MR. GEO. DICKENSON'S Merry Mascots have been such a success at the Marine Gardens, Portobello, that after a short extension of the original engagement they have been secured for the remainder of the season.

No turn at the Oxford is being more enjoyed than that contributed by Mr. Herbert Shelley, whose delightful Irish songs and stories take us back to the times of Pat Feeney, when the Hibernian vocalist held the place in public favour now occupied by the Scottish comedian.

MR. MASKELYNE'S "Psycho" was first presented to the public in January, 1875. The introduction was considered of sufficient importance to be recorded in Haydn's "Dictionary of Dates." Many absurd attempts have been made to imitate the android by palpable trickery, which greatly injured the reputation of the automaton. Mr. Maskelyne was therefore compelled to prove that the secret had not been discovered. The only way he could do this was to advertise in the principal newspapers throughout the world that he would pay £2,000 for an automaton that could produce the same movements under the same conditions.

THE construction of the automaton occupied two and a half years. Every bit of the machine, except the outer case, was made by Mr. Maskelyne's own hands. After giving 4,000 performances some of the delicate mechanism required renewing. It was not until January, 1909, that Mr. Maskelyne could spare the time necessary to execute the repairs. These have occupied him entirely from that date. "Psycho" is undoubtedly the most profound mechanical problem ever submitted for solution.

"RIA'S LUCK."

'Ria Watson ..... MISS AGNESE DE LLANA
Jenny Wilson ..... MISS GERTRUDE DE BURGH
Florrie Dawson ..... MISS MAUD BLAYE
Aggie Brown ..... MISS CLARE ELSTOB
Bill Lawson ..... MR. ARTHUR ELDRED

Miss Clare Elstob has written a sketch of considerable merit, which contains both humorous and pathetic incidents appealing strongly to the audience. She has also been fortunate enough to secure a highly capable company to give representation to the piece. The story is simple, but none the less interesting. 'Ria Watson, a factory hand, is in love with a certain Bill Lawson, also of the factory, and their wedding having been arranged for the very near future, 'Ria's many acquaintances place their money together and buy her a present in anticipation of the happy union. Prior to the opening of the story Bill was dearly loved by Jenny Wilson, who, however, threw him over on account of a slight misunderstanding, and afterwards regretted the fact so much that she worried and made herself ill. She is invited as a guest at the giving of the present. She it is who has contributed most largely towards it, and who feels the most pain at the coming happiness of her former lover. Whilst 'Ria is out of the room Jenny speaks to Bill, and recalls to his mind many tender memories of the past, and although he knows it is right to be perfectly true to his future wife, he feels in his heart that it is the girl before him that he loves. 'Ria sees from the window all that is going on and exactly how matters stand, and renounces her claim on Bill so that he may be happy with the woman of his choice. Miss Agnese de Llana plays with power and skill as the finally-distressed 'Ria Watson, and Miss Gertrude de Burgh enacts the rôle of Jenny Wilson with intensity and feeling. Miss Clare Elstob gives great satisfaction in her impersonation of Aggie Brown; Miss Maud Blaye discharges her duties extremely well as Florrie Dawson; and Mr. Arthur Eldred is a suitable Bill Lawson.

THE LATE MR. W. H. HANNAN.

Theatrical and musical circles in Birmingham have sustained the loss of a well-known character in the person of Mr. William Henry Hannan, whose claim to be the oldest active musician in the country was never disputed. He died at his residence in the neighbourhood of Moseley-road, Birmingham, on Monday last at the ripe age of eighty-six.

Mr. Hannan for nearly fifty years played the bass trombone—one of the most difficult and certainly the most legitimate of musical instruments—in the orchestra at the Gaiety Music Hall, Birmingham.

A most interesting character, invariably attired in a frock coat and tall hat, Mr. Hannan was a familiar figure in the city streets during the day, and was well known to the patrons of the music hall with which he was so long associated. His life-story provides interesting reading. He first became associated with the stage, travelling with a stock company, after obtaining an introduction through the late Barry Sullivan, whose bag he carried nightly from the apartments to the theatre for the sum of sixpence per week. During his travels with the stock company he gave a song and hornpipe dance, and in his spare time learned to play the trombone and the violin.

Later he played in the orchestra at Hengler's Circus. Next he joined the orchestra at Uden's Concert Hall, Sheffield, and after a short time went over to the Theatre Royal in the same city. In 1860 he went to Holder's Concert Hall, Birmingham, which is now the Gaiety Theatre.

Holder's was the only music-hall in the town with the exception of a small place of entertainment in another district. Describing his experiences there a little while ago, he said: "The hall was very well conducted; in fact it was looked upon as an honour to be admitted. You could not get in unless you wore a silk hat, and no lady was allowed to enter unless accompanied by a gentleman.

"The chairman of the music hall was looked upon as a great personage. He kept order when it was necessary, and then sang in the quartette. He occupied a seat at a table by the front gallery, and later sat with his back to the orchestra, facing the audience."

Mr. Hannan did not solely confine his musical talents to the Gaiety Music Hall. During the last half-century he played at the leading concerts in the best orchestras in the Midlands and various parts of the United Kingdom, and he figured under the batons of all the leading conductors during that period.

THE annual outing of the staff and employees of the Cardiff Empire took place at Southerndown on the 7th. The party, which numbered about sixty-five, including several friends, made the journey in brakes, and at the luncheon and tea Mr. H. J. Taylor (the manager) presided, and he submitted the loyal toasts and the toast of "The Firm."

"RHYMING slang," says the Sportsman, "is so prevalent with many of the variety comedians that it is almost necessary for some one to publish a rhyming slang dictionary, more especially for the us of old ladies who let apartments, or 'professional digs,' to be correct. Fancy anyone foreign to the language understanding such a phrase as 'What birches have you to let?' This refers to birch brooms or rooms.

"THE next question may be, 'What's the Burton?' This is an abbreviation of Burton-on-Trent, and means rent. After settling terms, &c., many a young comedian (and a few old ones, too) will explain that he is rather late in arriving owing to the 'Christmas' telling him that the 'Andie' waited several minutes at the Junction, whereas it only waited two minutes, and that he was having a 'Jack and Rosie,' and off it went. This refers to 'Christmas card' (guard), 'Andie Caine' (train), 'Jack-the-Dandy' (brandy), 'Rosie Loader' (soda).

"HE will then probably tell the landlady that she need not light the 'Annie Maria' (fire), as it is getting much 'Daisy Dormer.' Asked about supper, he will suggest an 'Aristotle' of 'pig's ear' and anything they may have ready, and requests that they lay the 'Cain and Abel' quickly. 'Aristotle' means bottle. 'Pig's ear' means beer. He pulls his 'well I declare' (chair) up to the 'Cain and Abel,' and then the fun begins.

"HE has a 'bull' with the landlady, and says the 'Stockton' is so 'Wilkie' that he cannot get his 'Hampsteads' into it. Let us analyse it. 'Bull and Cow' (row), 'Stockton-on-Tees' (cheese), 'Wilkie Bard' (hard), and 'Hampstead Heath' (teeth). Then he complains that the 'Harry Nicholls' are too 'Malcolm.' This signifies that the pickles are rather 'Malcolm Scott' (hot). After this he goes up the 'apples' and puts on a clean 'Oxford,' changes his 'almonds,' brushes his 'Barnet,' and dons his 'turtles.' He then pays a visit to the 'rub-a-dub-dub.' This figures out at 'Oxford scholar' (collar, also used for dollar), 'apples and pears' (stairs), 'almond rock' (sock), 'Barnet Fair' (hair), 'turtle doves' (gloves), and 'rub-a-dub-dub' (pub.)."

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

"A SOLDIER OF FORTUNE."

A Dramatic Episode, in Three Scenes, by Fraser Brunner, Produced at the Woolwich Hippodrome on Monday, Aug. 8.

Count Ivan Karatoff ..... } MR. ALEC ALVES
Jack Deane ..... }
Capt. Sergius Romanoff ..... MR. ALFRED HARDING
George Gordon ..... MR. HERBERT H. YOUNG
Malakoff ..... MR. JACK MILLER
Harzoff ..... MR. A. BUCKNALL
Countess Helga Karatoff ..... MISS KITTIE LOFTING

Effective and realistic is this new and original episode of everyday Russian life as enacted by Harry P. Selwyn's company, and it is likely to enjoy a long run. The opening scene is a garden of a palace. Romanoff, who is in love with the Countess, who despises him, quarrels with her brother Ivan and forces him into a duel, despite the protests of the lad. Romanoff, who is a bully and noted duellist, offers to spare Ivan's life if his sister will consent to marry him. The Countess will not agree to this suggestion, and persuades her brother to disguise himself. Meantime an Englishman, Jack Deane, arrives in Russia, who bears a striking resemblance to Ivan. So great, indeed, is the likeness that the Countess mistakes Jack for her brother, and, discovering her error, implores him to impersonate Ivan. This Jack does, and hands the Countess papers, passport, &c., which will enable her brother to leave the country. Romanoff returns for his answer, and is confronted by the supposed Ivan, who accepts the challenge and fights the duel. Romanoff meets his match, for Jack Deane is as expert with the sword as himself, and the villain is wounded in the arm, Jack threatening that if Romanoff does not cease persecuting the Countess he will pierce his heart the next time. The baffled Romanoff swears he will be successful yet.

In the next scene Deane is walking in a street of St. Petersburg and meets Romanoff, who makes overtures of friendship which Deane refuses. On turning away Romanoff makes an attempt to shoot him, but is thwarted, Deane securing his revolver and departing. Malakoff then appears, to whom Romanoff unfolds a plan to inveigle the Countess to the meeting-place of the "Secret Six," a band of Nihilists, and there to force her to marry him under threat of exposing her as one of the band. Deane then meets Malakoff, from whom he receives various papers, Malakoff parting with them believing Deane to be Ivan. Deane holds him prisoner, and determines to impersonate him at the meeting of Nihilists.

In Scene III. Jack Deane has just arrived at the Nihilists' den and taken the place of the doorkeeper, Malakoff, when Romanoff demands admittance. On giving the signal the door is unbarred. He is shortly after followed by the Countess, blindfolded, in the custody of two of the ruffians. Romanoff removes the bandage and resumes his overtures, and failing a satisfactory reply threatens to throw her into a furnace. Remaining obdurate, she is then denounced by him to his comrades as a traitress and sentenced to death. This even the Countess prefers to such a marriage, and Romanoff is about to carry out his threat when Jack Deane throws off the disguise, shoots the two Nihilists, and forces Romanoff to fight another duel—to the death this time. Faced with a sword in Deane's hand and the Countess levelling a revolver at him, he has no alternative but to accept, and after an exciting bout falls pierced to the heart.

In the dual rôle of Count Ivan Karatoff and Jack Deane, Mr. Alec Alves was admirable. The villainous Romanoff was well played by Mr. Alfred Harding. Mr. Herbert H. Young was amusing in the part of George Gordon. Mr. Jack Miller was successful as the Nihilist tool of Romanoff's, Malakoff, and was ably supported by Mr. A. Bucknall as Harzoff. The Countess Helga was skilfully and effectively enacted by Miss Kittie Lofting. The scenery and dresses are excellent.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your issue of last week I note Messrs. Kitts and Windrum have produced a tabloid comedy using above title, What a Night! Might I point out that as far back as July, 1905, I wrote and produced with great success at the Hippodrome, Coventry, a tabloid comedy with that title, and I have played it with my sketch company many times since, and am about shortly to reproduce it on a large scale, as I hold several contracts for same. I claim the right to the title, and ask you, sir, to publish this in fairness to myself and to avoid confusion.—Yours faithfully,

CHAS. M. DALY.

Men Were Deceivers Ever Co.,
Camden Hippodrome, Aug. 10.

IN the wrestling contest which took place at the Alhambra on Monday afternoon between Dr. Roller, the American surgeon athlete, and Gama, the "Lion of the Punjaub," the doctor was beaten.

AT the Hall-by-the-Sea, Margate, this week, Miss Maude May Murray is proving a big attraction. She appears in a series of fascinating dances and the electrical effects are beautiful. She is greeted at every performance with the heartiest applause and certainly holds the audience spellbound.

PIERROTS and concert parties are still among the most popular types of seaside entertainers (says Clive Holland in the Pall Mall Magazine), and in some cases the performers are well-known vocalists and comedians who, when engagements are scarce in town, boldly adopt the life of open-air entertainers, and many of them make quite large incomes by so doing. The leader of a well-known troupe, which has patronised the same south coast resort for several years past, recently told me that a fine summer would often mean he and his five companions picking up £50 or £80 each after all expenses had been paid in a season of from 14 to 16 weeks.

HE added: "The expenses are by no means inconsiderable. In our case we have to pay a rent of £60 for our pitch; 30s. a week for the hire of a decent piano (which we find better than buying the instrument outright); lodgings and board in a comfortable house, say, 30s. to 35s. a week each; expenses of music, £20 for the season, with perhaps another £30 for rights in specially-written songs used in addition to those one or two of our members themselves compose; wages of boy and hire and keep of donkey to pull piano on trolley, 25s. a week; incidentals, a couple of pounds a week; purchase of 150 deck chairs at 3s. apiece, £22 10s., less sale at end of season at 1s. apiece, £7 10s., and breakages, say twenty chairs.

"OUR collections—we often give four performances a day in the height of the season, one in the morning, one in the afternoon, and two in the evening—average on fine warm days as much as £10 or £12 a day—say, £65 a week. But cold or wet weather will lower our takings enormously. We generally reckon out of a 14 weeks' season that we have about four weeks of tip-top weather for our out-of-door work, and of the remaining ten weeks three will be bad and the rest what we call medium. During the latter our takings will perhaps average £40 a week."

A JAPANESE mimo-drama, entitled Vengeance, will be played at the Coliseum next Monday by Udagawa and Kawamoura, two actors well known in their own country. As the title suggests, the playlet is characterised by the restlessness under certain circumstances peculiar to the Far East.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Sir Edward and Lady Moss, and Mrs. Alec Tweedie were among the passengers on the P. and O. Company's cruising steamer Mantua, which sailed on Saturday for the Northern capitals and Russia.

The vicinity of Oxford Circus will have two fine variety houses in the near future. The Palladium, which is to be the chief Gibbons' house, will, it is understood, be opened early in December, an event originally announced for August Bank Holiday, 1909.

In opposition to this finely-equipped theatre now rapidly rising on the site of Hengler's Cirque, Argyll-street, we are to have the Princess's, which the genius of Wilson Barrett raised to the status of a first-class theatre. The control of the old and famous home of the drama was secured some years since by Mr. B. F. Keith, who will construct on the site a fine vaudeville house, which may become associated with the Stoll interests.

According to the Referee, the Palladium will be a building of extraordinary magnificence. Its marble work will be a marvellous thing in itself. There will be luxurious refreshment rooms—one of them will seat eight hundred patrons. The house will have a wonderful stage—to fit any kind of production, however huge. Martin Harvey may present a condensed version of The Only Way, and a big bathing act from across the pond will be an opening attraction.

The Lewisham Hippodrome will open about the same week as the Palladium. The Lewisham place will be an extraordinary building, quite unique. There is a fine arched entrance with a glass roof, and adjoining the house is a separate domed building, which will contain tea-rooms, waiting-room, and a stage for cinematograph and other shows.

The Grand Order of Water Rats' annual up-river outing is fixed for to-morrow (Sunday), after having been postponed from Aug. 7. A special train will leave Waterloo Station about 9 a.m. for Reading, and the party will then proceed by steam launch to Wallingford, returning by the same route. Lunch and tea will be served on board. Further particulars can be obtained from Mr. W. H. McCarthy, Vaudeville Club.

The multitude of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Rollo Balmain will be pleased to learn that their son, Augustus Rollo, passed his first medical examination at the London University a few days ago. To keep his hand in with the profession, Mr. Balmain, jun., appeared last week in the John Lawson production of The King of Palestine as the Belgian Ambassador in the first scene, and received offers of engagements from three managements.

Mr. Bernard Armstrong, better known to his many friends as Barney, succeeds to the management of the City Varieties, Leeds, where he fills the position of Mr. Sam Jones, who finished his long engagement at that house on Saturday. In the eighties Barney, as one of the Brothers Armstrong, knockabouts, made his first London appearance at the Sebright, Hackney-road, a hall once run by Mr. George Belmont, then a pioneer of the twice-nightly entertainment, and now proprietor of the Marquis of Granby opposite the Palace Theatre. The brothers had a run of eighteen months at the Alhambra.

Later Barney appeared on his own as a comic singer, in which rôle he enjoyed considerable success. He became associated with T. J. Colquhoun in the proprietorship of the Queen's and Tivoli, Glasgow, two halls run in conjunction—gaining considerable experience and little else.

Mr. Tom Edwards, the popular ventriloquist, recently returned from his American triumphs, is at present starring on the Stoll tour with the identical baby that got him arrested on New York Broadway and obtained for him a record free advertisement. The modern Valentine Vox is indeed a suitable title for this clever performer.

Mr. Bransby Williams, who is to play Dan in Mr. Hall Caine's drama The Bishop's Son at the Garrick Theatre, has visited all the places of interest mentioned in the book "The Deemster," from which novel the play is drawn. He was received at the Bishop's Court, where Dan lived, and explored the Court and its surroundings. Further, the young actor was motored through the island by Mrs. Hall Caine during his two weeks' visit, and he was photographed on the steps of the famous Tynwald Hill, where Dan receives the awful sentence of banishment.

On his visit to Peel, where Dan mixed freely with the fishermen, Mr. Bransby Williams selected the oldest salt on the quay and conversed with him. He learned also the mending of nets; and, buying the old man's needle and shuttle—used by him as man and boy—he then secured 20ft. of net for the hut scene, so that all should be correct. On taking leave of the fisherman Mr. Williams shook hands with him, and on inquiring his name learned that it was Caine!

Miss Gertie Gitana, on concluding her engagement at the Granville, Walham Green, last Saturday, was presented with a magnificent bouquet by the manager, Mr. R. Duce, on behalf of the management and staff. Miss Gitana's success in London is just now phenomenal.

Mrs. W. K. Clifford has this week joined the ranks of the sketchmongers with A Supreme Moment at the Coliseum. Gifted novelist as she has been for years, Mrs. Clifford is no stranger to work for the theatre. It is, indeed, some years since Mr. and Mrs. Kendal staged her The Likeness of the Night at the St. James's—a powerful if sombre piece of work, in which Lady Tree played with Mrs. Kendal.

Mr. Charles Coborn desires it to be remembered by those concerned that there are still a large number of tickets for the Music Hall Sports yet to be accounted for by those to whom they were sent. He would esteem it a personal favour if the recipients would as soon as possible communicate to his private address, 40, Perran-road, Tulse Hill, S.W.

A committee meeting of the Music Hall Home will be held on Thursday next at the Three Stags, Kennington-road, at 12 noon. All committeemen are asked to kindly attend. The general meeting and presentation will take place on Thursday, Sept. 1, at 2 p.m., at the Three Stags. Mr. Benjamin Woodger (secretary) desires to thank Mr. Beart, of Graces-road, Camberwell, for parcel of books for the inmates of the Home.

Fred Karno has produced with considerable success at Tottenham Palace this week a new sketch, entitled The Wow-Wows, written by himself and Herbert Sydney. The production is well staged, and presented in three scenes, the first depicting "The Nook" up the river, the second the "preparing" room in the corridor of Brown's Club, and the third the interior of Brown's Clubhouse. The principal members of the cast are J. C. Piddock as the Hon. Archibald Binks, James Russell as Jimmy Bottles, Albert Darnley as Arthur Blazer, Jack Royal as Freddy Brunton, Miss Georgina Royal as Lady Margaret Binks, and Miss Vi Morrella as Lydia Scotch.

Chas. M. Daly's sketch company of I Must Have It fame has made a hit with the latest production Men Were Deceivers Ever. It is, in reality, a full three-act comedy in twenty minutes.

On Mr. Livermore's retirement from the local management of the Palace Theatre, Bristol, a place which by his own energy and tact he caused to be erected about eighteen years ago, a representative committee of influential citizens thought it a fitting opportunity to pay Mr. Livermore some compliment.

The large Colston Hall has been secured for Saturday, Aug. 27, when two complimentary concerts will be given (afternoon and evening) in his honour, under the patronage of the Lord Mayor and Sheriff of the city. During Mr. Livermore's residence in Bristol he has won golden opinions from all sorts and conditions of men and women, and his many acts of beneficence will not soon be forgotten.

Several variety stars, in addition to coming specially from a distance, have generously sent substantial cheques toward the proposed testimonial. Included in these we have pleasure in naming Miss Florrie Forde, Mr. G. H. Elliott, Mr. Scott Barrie, and others. Support is guaranteed from every theatre and variety hall in the city and district.

The professional friends of the popular beneficiare number thousands. Many no doubt would like to contribute towards the success of the testimonial. This they can easily do by forwarding their donations to Mr. Ernest Sheldon, director of the Palace Theatre Companies, Aberdeen and Dundee, whose private address is Ben Nevis, Kensington-hill, Brislington, Bristol.

On Sunday last the staffs employed at Daly's Hall, Consett, and Victoria Theatre, Stanley, of which Mr. John Cottrell is lessee, held their first annual outing. Motor char-à-bancs took the party to Amble, Northumberland (by way of Newcastle and Morpeth), where a capital dinner was served up at the White Lion Hotel to which full justice was done.

The afternoon was spent in rambling through some beautiful scenery and strolling on the beach, after which an excellent tea was partaken of at the same hostelry. Previous to returning hearty votes of thanks were accorded to Mr. and Mrs. Cottrell, who were most assiduous in attending to their guests, and had also provided the expenses for the whole affair.

The staff of the Walthamstow Palace had their annual outing on Sunday last. The party, numbering forty-two, and headed by Mr. Pièrre Cohen, the popular manager of the Palace, and Mr. E. Mann, the assistant-manager,, left Walthamstow about seven o'clock, and were driven in brakes to London Bridge Station. Here a special saloon had been reserved, and the merry company started on the second stage of their journey to Brighton. The dinner was served at the famous Old Ship, with Mr. Cohen in the chair and Mr. Mann as his energetic "vice." The usual congratulatory speeches were made.

After dinner the company dispersed as inclination led them to enjoy a few hours in the bracing breezes of the "Queen of Watering Places," and, as the longest day must come to an end, the merrymakers returned in due course to London (Victoria), and Walthamstow was safely reached some time in the "wee sma' hours ayont the twelve." Greatest praise is due to Mr. Joseph Grant, the stage-manager of the Palace, who carried out all the arrangements.

Members of the Birmingham Gaiety Music Hall staff and several friends spent a most enjoyable time last Sunday. Mr. Albert Bushell, the popular general-manager, is an expert on catering, and his arrangements for the picnic were excellent. The party assembled at Snow Hill Station at nine o'clock, and boarded a special saloon train for Worcester. Tracks were then made for the River Severn, and the trip on the waters in a special steamboat to Lower Lode was delightful.

An excellent dinner was served at the Lower Lode Hotel, after which there was an interesting angling contest and athletic sports. The return journey was commenced about six o'clock, and Birmingham was reached about eleven o'clock. Mr. Bushell was ably assisted by his lieutenant, Mr. Marshall.

Among the guests were Mr. Lester Collingwood (Alexandra), Mr. A. W. Matcham (Empire), Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward, Mr. H. Knock, and Mr. H. Gough. The orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. Leake, played selections of music on the boat, and considerable amusement was caused by Mr. Carl Lynn, the well-known animal imitator.

Mr. Julian Clifford, musical director of the Kursaal, Harrogate, was on Friday, Aug. 5, awarded £70 damages and costs for libel in his action against William Walker and Sons, of Otley, in respect of newspaper comments reflecting on the management of that establishment. A stay of execution was asked for, pending an appeal, towards which his lordship could give no assistance personally.

Mr. R. V. Webb, of "Webb's Notions," is taking a first-class vaudeville combination company on tour, commencing at Peterborough on Aug. 29. The top of the bill consists of "Webb's Septette of Solists," in Notions, a remarkable electrical spectacular musical transformation act. Some idea of the elaborate nature of this turn may be gauged from the fact that Mr. Webb has spent considerably over £4,000 on this alone.

He will be supported by Miss Verona Philis, dainty comedienne and dancer; The Dandies, comedians and dancers; Tatten Hall, comedian; the Haydens, comedy sketch; the Sisters Lawler, one of whom, it will be remembered, was the unfortunate victim in the recent shooting outrage at Hammersmith; Arno, the human gorilla; and the Davies-Gledhill Trio, in their sensation, Man v. Motor. First-class theatres have been booked and a lengthy tour arranged.

An excellent turn in the bill at the Pavilion, Glasgow, this week, is a duologue presented by the Baron and Baroness de Nevers. It bears the title of Boy, and is concerned with the supposed discovery by a young man of wealth and position that he has been inveigled into marriage by an intriguing woman. There is no third person in the little drama, but the episode is so gracefully carried through, and the denouement so rapid and convincing, that the play would have reached its mark without the aid of the Baroness's excellent singing.

Considerable enthusiasm has been aroused at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, this week by Mr. Wm. Mollison's performance in The Touch of the Child, a one-act play, which has attracted much attention wherever he has played it. In all the large provincial centres visited by him both play and actor have caused quite a sensation, and he has not been allowed to leave the stage without addressing a few words of acknowledgment to the audience. Mr. Mollison is engaged to appear in the play at the Holborn Empire next week, and the opportunity of seeing him in such a powerful piece should not be missed.

Mr. G. H. Elliott is returning to London next week, after a long provincial tour, with a bunch of big pantomime songs.

Miss Marie Lloyd, quite recovered from her temporary indisposition, reappeared at the Oxford on Monday evening, when she had a warm reception from her legion of admirers.

At the 670th meeting of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association on Wednesday, Mr. Fred Herbert (chairman of the committee) presided, and there were also present:—Messrs. Tom Packer, E. H. Lucas, T. C. Callaghan, William Welch, Arthur Gallimore, C. Douglas Stuart (secretary), and Lieut. Albini.

An agency was fixed up in Loughborough, and Mr. Darville, of the Stag's Head Hotel, Ramsgate, was also appointed. The agency at Leeds was transferred from Mr. Sam Jones to Mr. Bernard Armstrong. Another agency appointment was that of Mrs. Downing, of the Grapes Hotel, Oxford.

Mr. Malcolm Scott has secured a new number in the shape of a character comedy skit, entitled "The Bolster Dress," written and composed by Huntley Trevor and T. W. Thurban. It will be produced on Mr. Scott's return to town at the Palace Theatre on Sept. 19.

Mr. James Stewart, tramp pianist, had to cancel this week's engagement at the Empire, Edinburgh, owing to the death of his mother.

Miss Jennie Steele wishes it to be known that she is not dead, as reported, but is alive and well, and now mine hostess of the Spread Eagle, Lambeth-road, London.

Mr. J. C. Inman has just written some original patter for Brüll and Hemsley's production of Fun in a Music Shop, which is full of the clean humour always associated with this clever pair.

Mr. Neil Kenyon will sail for Australia on Sept. 19. As he lately impersonated an Oriental monarch whose motto was "absolutely," we may well call him "the Pasha of many tales." He is now taking a holiday.

Miss Mabel Mavis, the wonderful novelty musician, has been gaining fresh laurels at the Tynemouth Palace this week. As will be seen by our advertisement columns, the local Press is loud in praise of her unique entertainment.

"Roots, Rash Chemist," Mr. Fred Maitland's funny mixture, has been delighting our country cousins, and we may expect to see it again in town shortly, with several changes and improvements.

Miss Flora Cromer, of "Who'll buy my lavender?" fame, has been engaged by Mr. Harry Rickards for his Australian theatres through Tom Pacey's agency, and will sail for the Antipodes towards the end of the year.

"A Green Room Match" is the title of a new comedy, from the pen of Mr. Herbert Shelley, which is to be produced at the Chelsea Palace on Monday. It will be played by Helena Miranda and company.

The King of the Belgians has awarded a medal for saving life from drowning to Little Elba, a son of Miss Ada Webb, and a member of her troupe, now performing in Brussels. The medal will be publicly presented shortly.

Mr. Ivan Berlyn, whose performance of the Fox in Chantecler has been a special feature of the travesty's success, has been reluctantly released by Mr. Peterman to allow him to accept an important part in the forthcoming production of The Pigeon House.

Miss Nellie Wigley, who rejoices in a contract to play principal boy at the Princess's, Glasgow, sails to-day for South Africa, returning in time for rehearsals. Her engagements have been secured through the agency of Tom Pacey.

Miss Louisa Peach's sketch Mystery of a Hansom Cab proved such a success last week at Mr. Raymond's hall at Walthamstow that it has been booked by Mr. Fred Baugh for the Palace, Bow, next week. She will be supported by the same excellent company.

William C. Chappell and James Edelsten (a third brother of Ernest and Willie Edelsten) have joined forces in the agency business. Mr. Edelsten, who recently returned from America, is booking a number of acts on the Inter-State and Sullivan and Considine Circuits. Mr. Chappell has been booking for several provincial halls.

Mr. Douglas Stuart leaves to-night (Saturday) by the 10.40 p.m. boat express from Waterloo for Southampton en route for St. Malo, and at the seaside resorts on the beautiful Brittany coast he hopes to obtain rest and recuperation after his strenuous work of the last few weeks. He will be away for a fortnight.

Miss Alicia Ramsay and Mr. Rudolph de Cordova will produce at the Brixton Empress on Monday a new sketch, written by the former, called Her Guardian Angel. The cast is as follows:—Mrs. Lorrimer, Miss Mildred Cottell; Mollie (her daughter), Miss Bella Terry; Hortense (her French maid), Miss Blanka Steuart; Edward Langton (a burglar), Mr. Paul Lovett.

Another example of Mr. George H. Elliott's business qualities is forthcoming in his latest poster, which has been published with the sanction of Messrs. Fry and Sons, the famous chocolate manufacturers of Bristol. Dressed in a white duck suit, the popular chocolate-coloured coon appears on the poster carrying a handbag, on which are the words "Fry's Chocolate."

Mr. J. A. Wilson and Private Towser, a wonderful performing dog, have been winning golden opinions in the land of the Tykes in The Troubles of a Recruiting Sergeant, a fifteen minutes' comedy act, which never fails in good healthy fun, and creates immoderate laughter. Next week the happily-associated pair go to the Hippodrome, Croydon.

The return billiard match for the championship of the music hall profession and a gold medal will be played at the Loughborough Hotel, Loughborough-road, Brixton, on Wednesday next, when Mr. Charles Phydora, the holder, will endeavour to retain the title against Mr. Sam Mayo, by whom he has been challenged. The match commences at 2.15.

A few weeks ago the announcement appeared that the Surrey Theatre was to be entirely remodelled, and the work would be commenced immediately after the August Bank Holiday. With the exception of the outer wall, it was proposed to entirely reconstruct the theatre, thus providing more accommodation for the patrons of the "Old Surrey."

The manager of the house in an interview with the representative of a local journal now states that the plans have not been passed by the L.C.C., and would not be passed for some time, owing to the summer vacation. Rebuilding cannot be commenced without the authority of the Council, which has not yet been received.

Mr. Walter Graham, the human marionette, is likely to add to his fine entertainment shortly an impression of Stead in his great song "The perfect one."

The Six Ceylons, whose wonderful show, A Dream in an Opium Den, we fully described when first produced at the Euston, have secured unstinted approval all round the country, having never been idle a night since its production.

Miss Dora Healy, who has quite recovered from a slight operation, made her reappearance on Monday at the Granville, Walham Green, where her pleasing style and evident earnestness have secured for her many friends.

On Monday, Aug. 22, will be produced at the Palace, Bow, by E. D. Nicholls and company, another of Fred Moule's Dare-devil Dripping episodes, entitled The Yellow Bird; or, Dare-devil Among the Canaries. Also shortly will be produced a revised version of Winkels, entitled The Commissionaire.

Miss Mollie Seymour, that charming comedy artist and violinist, has had a very successful week at the Hammersmith Palace. This lady has signed contracts for three years for all the syndicate halls and the Macnaghten tour. We wish her every success, which she rightly deserves.

Harry Barford, the producer of the successful sketches The Irony of Fate, Cottage or Palace, and The Bishop and the Thief, will produce on Monday next at the Camden Hippodrome a new episode, by Albert Ward, entitled A Noble Revenge, with the author in the leading part. A strong cast has been engaged to support Mr. Ward.

The Crisps, of whose varied experiences we spoke a short time ago, have made quite a dash to the front. The provincial Press have eulogised their talents to the highest degree, and their services have been readily taken up by many important syndicates. They open at the Oxford on Sept. 5, where they recently scored a very big success in their novel turn, The Little Deputy.

The monthly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road, on Wednesday afternoon, when there were present:—Messrs. W. Bailey (in the chair), T. Carney, A. Drew, S. White, T. B. Brydge, W. J. Wainratta (vice-president), H. Jennings (trustee), Pat Carey (treasurer), and R. T. Baines (secretary).

Cissie Lawson will introduce on Monday next at the Camberwell Empire the latest illusion, "The Talking Poster," the very latest thing in scientific novelties. Briefly an ordinary six-sheet poster—brought from the stage to the audience—will answer any question put to it. Of course, it is well "postered" up in topics of the day. It is pleasing to note that Mrs. Lawson is a decided hustler.

Mr. William Henry Hannan, a trombonist, well known throughout Warwickshire, died at Birmingham on Tuesday. He played in the Birmingham Festival Choral Society's concerts for forty-two years, and was in demand for orchestral concerts all over England and Scotland. He played in the orchestra at the Gaiety, Birmingham, from 1860 to within a few months of his death. When he first went to the Gaiety it was known as Holder's Concert Hall, and no one was admitted unless he wore a silk hat.

A special "call" was made at the Balham Hippodrome on Saturday evening, when the staff from all parts of the house assembled on the stage after the second performance to take an affectionate farewell of Mr. E. W. Hancorne James, who has severed his connection with the Gibbons Circuit in order to take up the reins of management at the New Cross Empire. Advantage was taken of the occasion to give Mr. James a practical token of esteem by a presentation, which took the form of a handsome gold ring, gold sleeve links and studs, and a Gillette safety razor. The presentation was made by Mr. Jack Bolton, mine host of the George Hotel, which faces the hall, who felicitously referred to the esteem in which the recipient was held. They all felt they were losing a good man, and they joined in the sincere hope that in his new position Mr. James would be even more happy and successful than in Balham.

After musical honours had been rendered, led by Mr. Laurie Owen's orchestra, Mr. James, obviously much moved at so cordial an expression of goodwill, thanked the "boys and girls" for their handsome presents. He attributed the success which he had enjoyed at Balham to the loyal efforts of his staff—the best, he added, that any manager could be blessed with. The proceedings, which were very brief, in view of the near approach of Sunday, concluded with "Auld Lang Syne," sung by all present in the old familiar way.

On behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 51, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May (secretary) begs most gratefully to thank the following:—Mrs. Fred Kitchen (donation), 10s.; Master F. Kitchen (donation), 1s.; Miss A. Glanfield (donation), 2s. 6d.; Mme. Li-Chang-Hi (collection), 11s.; Mr. Mike Johnson, through the kindness of Mr. Endler (tailor), Sydney-street, Manchester, profit on trouser-stretchers, 5s.; Mrs. Charles Coborn (collected), 7s. 6d., towards which Mr. Murrans gave 2s. 6d. and Mr. Barclay and Mr. Cory Woodrow 1s. each; Mrs. Fred Kitchen, two boxes of very useful clothing; and Mrs. Ethel Arden-Abel, box of stage clothing.

Will anyone make an offer for the fifteen large-sized band books given by Messrs Dennis and Morris (per Sisters Macarte)? Could anyone help us with Mrs. Arthur Hatton's address? She holds the winning number (50) for the handsome portière curtain. The sum of £1 0s. 6d. was collected for the Music Hall Ladies' Guild as the result of the doings of an impromptu minstrel troupe at the German Club. The show was organised by Max Ritter and Mr. Paul Murray, and the following kindly took part:—Messrs. M. Ritter, Shaun Glenville, Earle Reynolds, Harry Jolson, Tommy Dawe, Myson Gilday, Jake Fox, Sydney Wood, Billy Montgomery, and Paul Murray (interlocutor).

While a number of people were engaged in having a bathe on Monday on the Aberdeen beach, an exciting incident took place, which, but for the gallantry of Mr. Fred Lindsay, the stock-whip expert, who is at present appearing at the Palace Theatre, might have resulted in the drowning of one of the gentlemen bathers—a representative of a Manchester firm named Mr. Martin, who is at present on holiday in the town.

Mr. Lindsay was swimming in about 14ft. of water when he heard cries of "Help!" coming from Mr. Martin, who was about twenty yards away from him. Mr. Martin had evidently got out too far, and was unable to swim back against the strong tide. Mr. Lindsay, who is a powerfully-built man, bravely went to the aid of the sinking bather, who threw his arms around the neck of his rescuer, and both went down. Very pluckily, Mr. Lindsay stuck to his task. The cries of the people on the shore attracted a large crowd to the scene of the incident. The Rescue by this time had set out to the aid of Mr. Lindsay, and the unfortunate bather was soon brought safely to shore, but in a very exhausted condition.

Will Norris, the youthful Lancashire tenor, who during the past season has scored heavily both in and out of London, has been secured by Hyman and Co., and sails to-day for South Africa. He is leaving with the joyful knowledge that he has a book full of contracts to play on his return. His namesake, Jimmy Norris, was a wonderful favourite in Johannesburg, and doubtless his protégé will be the same.

Mr. Frank Carlile, so long a member of the Britannia and Surrey companies, will produce on Monday a one-act play by himself, entitled A Prairie Warning, at the Grand Theatre, Forest Gate. This is the first London performance, although the playlet was produced under the title of Miss Smith of Pine Ridge on July 31 of last year at Her Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen.

At the Hippodrome, Poplar, on August 29, Mr. Albert Wyndham will produce the sequel to his popular Shakespearean sketch, Prince Arthur, viz., Magna Charta; or, The Last Moments of Prince Arthur. The scene is on the battlements of the Tower overlooking the Thames and Old London Bridge. The theme lends itself to most picturesque mounting, and Mr. Wyndham's undisputed ability as a producer will have full play.

"Gretna Green," originally written as a wrestling sketch, but produced as a "knuckle fight" episode, has scored a success at the Surrey this week, where excellent business has been the rule. Seldom has a Surrey audience been so enthusiastic as they were on Monday afternoon, when the village blacksmith knocked out the prize-fighter, and the lovers rode into the smithy, pillion fashion, after their runaway marriage at Gretna Green.

Mr. Tom Lowe some three years since commenced to travel as electrician with Mme. Henriette De Serris's company, presenting "Canova's Living Porcelain." When last heard of in January of this year he was with the company referred to at the Alhambra, Paris. The floods were on at the time, and his mother is very anxious as to his safety. If Mr. Lowe reads this, or if any friends know his address, will they please communicate with Mrs. J. Lowe, 41, Wellington-road, Ashton-on-Ribble, Preston? Mme. Henriette De Serris's company is at the Palace Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, W.C.

A cricket match will be played to-morrow (Sunday) between Moss' Empires and Variety Agents, at Toley's Ground, Acton. Players and any friends can leave Paddington by the 2.30 train. Lunch and tea provided. Tickets may be had of Ernest Atling, of Messrs. Hyman, Ltd., 29, Leicester-square, W.

A triumph has been won by Mlle. Pauline Rivers with her new ballet Our Children's Farmyard; or, Chantecler in Fairyland, recently produced at the Tower, Blackpool. The ballet, which is enacted entirely by children, provides a novel and charming entertainment, replete with fun, frolic, and melody. An almost magical transformation of a modern ball-room into a typical English farm and landscape, with its green fields, festoons of golden grain, and scattered sheaves of straw, is first effected. The farmer's pretty children greet the sun in a dainty dance, and then arrives Chantecler, the pride of the farmyard. Miss Gertie Langley sings his praises in a dainty little lyric, "Cock-a-doodle-do." Chantecler making violent love to the farmer's daughter causes the liveliest fun, and an exquisite comedy scene ensues when the fickle Chantecler woos the pretty Hen Pheasant, whose real lover, the Cock Pheasant, pays marked attention to the Guinea Fowl, and there is jealousy amongst the courtiers.

A Ballet of Blooms delightfully varies the proceedings, the fairies of the flowers—lilies, daffodils, pansies, forget-me-nots, cornflowers, and roses—engaging in intricate movements, which present a kaleidoscopic scene of ever-changing variety. The sun shines out in all its glory, and the opportunity is taken to introduce a song of greeting by Miss Gertie Langley, "Good morning, Mr. Sunshine." The Pauline Sextette dance a lively fling, in which is introduced the clever toe dancing of Fairy Moonshine and Fairy Star. Another novel spectacle is a quarter-moon, bearing a little girl, which necessitates the singing of "Underneath the Bright Blue Moon," the chorus of which is taken up by the company.

A supers finale is furnished by the advent of eventide, with the rising of the moon and the appearance of the stars. The garlands and sheaves illuminate with a glow-worm effect, and the wisps of straw carried by the dancing children, complete a scene of glorious light and colour. The concluding triumph is the flight of Fairy Star on the Golden Pheasant, which, with brightly shining eyes, and red, gaping mouth, floats away to the skies with its pretty burden. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the children for their really excellent work, distinguished by the freshness and buoyancy of youth, and their singing is delightful throughout. Mlle. Pauline Rivers, who has invented, arranged, and produced the ballet, must feel proud of them. Distinct taste has been shown in the blending of the rich colours, and there is a note of originality in many of the dresses. The electrical effects give much brilliance to the performance.

The annual meeting of Manchester Hippodrome and Ardwick Empire, Ltd., was held on Aug. 4, in the Midland Hotel, Mr. Oswald Stoll, chairman and managing director, presiding. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report and accounts, which disclosed a balance of £8,603 in profits, said he considered it a matter of congratulation that they were able to maintain their dividends, and at the same time write off a large and ample amount of depreciation and an increase in their carry-forward. Mr. R. W. Southern, a shareholder, said he noticed that they had appointed Mr. Walter Battle, of Leeds, a director. In 1907 they were told that at the next vacancy the board would consider the appointment of a local director. He attributed the success of their rival concern, the Palace, largely to the fact that they had local men on the board. The profits, he added, were £4,000 less than last year, and were the smallest since 1905, which was the first year they started to declare a profit. During the corresponding period the Palace had increased its profits by 28 per cent.

Mr. Stoll did not admit that the comparison made was a fair one. He had instanced the Palace Theatre. All that it had done was to rise to the stage that they had reached, namely, they were able to pay 10 per cent., and they were paying 10 per cent. for the first time in the history of the theatre. The Palace had a reserve fund equal to theirs, but they had built theirs up in a very short time as compared with the many years it had taken the Palace to build up theirs. As to the appointment of Mr. Battle, he thought that gentleman would be able to speak for himself. His experience was ripe, whether from the point of view of financial business, variety theatre business, or licensed victualler's business, and he was a very useful member of the board.

Mr. Battle mentioned that he had been a member of the Leeds City Council, and was connected with the London Coliseum and other music halls. His election was confirmed, whilst Dr. Broad, of Cardiff, who was re-elected a director, said that more money was held in Cardiff in this company than by the whole of the North of England. The dividend was also approved.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Some remarkably fine dance numbers have been recently acquired for publication by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, including, as they do, "La Nuit de l'Eté," by Miss Violet King, a waltz of which report speaks highly.

A couple of dances greatly in favour when played by Mr. Archibald Joyce's fine band at the nobility's balls are being issued by Mr. Day's firm. They are "Cremona," waltz by Edwin Scarfe, and a novelty dance entitled "The Ghost Walk," by James M. Gallatly.

The "Viola" dance, invented by Miss Edith Bishop, B.A.T.D., with music by B. Farnhill, will be issued immediately by Messrs. Francis and Day.

Little Tich's latest screamer is a Territorial number, entitled "One of the Deathless Army," and is by Gilbert Wells, Will Terry, Virgil Gill, and T. W. Thurban. Messrs. Francis and Day have it in the press.

Mr. Joseph Tabrar, who ever and anon bursts out with a song that shows sucking Primrose Hills that Etna is still alive, has just sold to Mr. Harry Champion a number entitled "Have a drop of gin, Joe." The author-composer of "For months and months and months," has disposed of the ditty to Messrs. Francis and Day.

Mr. C. R. Whittle's newest song entitled "Have another one," has been acquired by Messrs. Francis and Day. It is by those past-masters of their art, Harry Castling and Fred Godfrey.

Mr. Lester Barrett is enjoying a vacation at Bournemouth, and Mr. H. B. Pether is staying at Margate.

The song so finely sung by Charles Russell, the veteran soldier in Miss Sable Fern's Boys in Camp, and which is entitled "When the camp fires brightly burning," has been accepted for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day. It is from the pen of Mr. Frank Leo.

The composer of Miss Evie Greene's charming song, "The Corsican Maid," has just published with Messrs. Francis and Day a remarkably pretty waltz entitled "Twilight Bells."

Inquiries at Eastbourne were rife at every music dealers' a few days since consequent on Mr. Johnny Danvers having put on at the local place of entertainment a remarkably virile parody, entitled "Hip-I-addy-I-ay," written by Charles Wilmott. Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers, and applications from coast entertainers for copies of the same are very much in evidence already.

Messrs. Francis and Day are bringing out in sheet music form Wal Bromby's admired "Valse Sympathie," an item which is being talked about by the cognoscenti. The firm have in the press also the "Gaiety Waltz," invented by J. B. McEwen, U.K.A., and composed by H. A. Dowson. At Derby Castle it is said to be the rage, and visitors thereat are keen judges of a dance.

Mr. Tom Finglass's admired song, "My Baby," has been accepted for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day. It is by Paul Pelham and Herbert Rule.

That "broth of a bhoy," Mr. Walter Munroe, was so struck with Frank V. St. Clair's song "Just remember me to Mary," when recently the gifted writer sang it over to him privately, that he persuaded the author to cede to him the rights he had himself retained in the number, and one knows not which to congratulate the more—Mr. St. Clair, who has given up a great number, or the genial Irishman, who would easily have robbed Cleopatra of her needle, had he not been part possessor by birth of an even more celebrated stone.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

A programme of outstanding merit, and one that is in keeping with the very high standard that is always maintained, is presented this week to the patrons of this very popular house. Lew Lake and his comedy company, in My Pal Jerry, top the bill, and receive a welcome that leaves no doubt whatever of their popularity. The fun of the opening sketch is of a boisterous knockabout sort, but it is very much to the liking of the audience, who literally shout at the remarks of the pals in the dock; the dramatic ending and the death scene in the snow provide a powerful contrast, and not a few of the audience had tear-filled eyes when they left. The bulk of the work falls on the shoulders of Lew Lake as Nobbler Nolan and Bob Morris as Jerry Jackson, but they are well supported by Harry Lavers, Kitty Wilmore, Fay Gurling, and Eunie Webb, and a large and well-drilled company. The mounting of the sketch is on the elaborate scale for which Mr. Lew Lake's productions are noted.

Gladys Huxley is a clever vocal comedienne who by her bright manner and finished style at once wins all hearts. She gives the impression of being remarkably glad to see her audience, and of thoroughly enjoying singing to them, and from the applause it was very evident that the audience were in quite the same frame of mind. Hampton and Bauman, character duettists, are a versatile couple, and provide an entertainment in which there is never a dull moment. Tom Yorke, a character comedian, sings well. Fred Russell and his inseparable pal, "Coster Joe," keep the audience in fits of laughter. It seems impossible that ventriloquial skill can go farther, and yet every time one sees Fred Russell he seems to improve.

Other items of the bill make an equally effective appeal to the popular taste. Tony Black, the Scottish comedian and dancer; Michel Bros., in their wonderful head-to-head balancing feats; George Newburn, the mimic; and Lily Hayes, a comedienne and dancer, all help to form a programme that more than satisfies the large audience that can always be relied on here. The Bioscope, with new films, is ever a popular feature, and a special word is due to the musical director for the excellent work done by the orchestra. Mr. Geo. H. White, the popular manager, is to be heartily congratulated on the success of his efforts at Putney.

Mr. T. S. Lonsdale, the veteran music hall manager and song-writer, who wrote "Tommy, make room for your uncle," is compiling a new composite picture, entitled "The World," with a background representing the two hemispheres, and would be pleased if all artists—English, American, and Continental—would kindly send on photos at once to his address, 53, St. James's-road, Southsea.

Mr. Sam Jones, the late manager of the popular Varieties at Leeds, who finished his long career there on Saturday, was presented on that evening with a substantial purse of gold by the staff and patrons. Mr. Jones, who had endeared himself to all by his courteous and businesslike habits, will be greatly missed.

Mr. Bransby Williams has just returned from the Isle of Man, where he has been gathering local colour and studying the part of Dan in The Bishop's Son, to be produced at the Garrick Theatre. Mr. Williams takes the same intense interest in Hall Caine's character, Dan, as he has always done in those of Charles Dickens. He is now resting at his seaside residence at Selsey, before his Coliseum engagement and rehearsals of the Isle of Man drama.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE HIPPODROME.

An acquisition to the already fine programme at the Hippodrome is the ventriloquial show of the "Great Lester," a clever exponent of the difficult art of polyphony whose amusing act has quickly "made good." The technique of Mr. Lester, who hails from America, is perfect, and his conversation with the boy figure he voices naturally carried out. Remarkably clever and amusing also is the telephone business, and his imitation of the boy breaking into convulsive sobs is very like the real thing. Such familiar tricks as talking whilst smoking a cigar or cigarette are apparently easy of accomplishment, Mr. Lester even managing to voice his figure whilst drinking a glass of wine. The dummy finally induces his "assistant" to carry him amongst the audience, talking or singing the whole time. There is much quiet humour in the show, and most of the dialogue is amusing, and there is little doubt that Mr. Lester's clever and novel interlude will long remain popular in London.

Another American whose contribution to the programme is heartily enjoyed is the popular comedian and raconteur, Mr. R. G. Knowles. Mr. Knowles rattles off in his old sweet way many funny remarks concerning love, the old-fashioned methods of courtship and the new, and sundry other topics. His gentle raillery at the expense of the orchestra likewise proves amusing. "£ s. d." and another humorous number are also included in an always appreciated turn. Something novel in the way of mimicry are the impersonations of a ballet master and an orchestral director by M. Jules Moy, a noted Parisian mimic of much versatility and sense of humour, his portrayals being delightfully funny character sketches; and Ferry Corwey, the musical clown, employs many ingenious and novel devices to raise a laugh, and always with success, his instrumental selections being loudly applauded.

Two distinguished grand opera singers, Madame Fanny Moody and Mr. Charles Manners, are giving audiences here a rare musical treat. On the occasion of which we are writing Madame Moody sang with much artistic expression Tosti's "Good-bye" and "Killarney," the fine voice of Mr. Manners being admirably employed in the favourite old drinking song "In cellar cool" and "Here's a Health unto His Majesty." A reception of the heartiest was accorded both vocalists. Willy Pantzer and his company are appearing in an original acro-pantomimic interlude which they call The Limit, and the title is certainly warranted. To surpass their many indescribable and difficult feats in tumbling, hand and head balancing, &c., one would imagine impossible. The manner in which the head of the combination "juggles" with one of the youngsters is marvellous, and the entire show, in which there is plenty of comedy relief, is worked with a cleanness and finish which add considerably to its attractiveness.

The Doherty Sisters, singing and dancing comediennes, submit amusing impersonations of an American vocalist and other types, and their duet, "A Hundred Years Ago" is funny. An imitation of the Whirlwind Dance is also a clever and much-appreciated item of an attractive turn. The Mezettis, comedy gymnasts, submit their expert and smartly worked bar act, and meet with a flattering reception; Little Sophie, juvenile artist, sings "When the sun is shining bright" and a couple of other numbers acceptably, her dancing being particularly expert; and Cedar and Edgar are cross-talk comedians and vocalists with an original style and funny patter. Pathé's Animated Gazette of Current Events and the selection by the fine band must also be included in the numbers that count.

LONDON PAVILION.

The search for sensation is always a plank in the policy of hustling for the halls; but it is rarely that one lights upon so original an illusion as that presented by Mr. Frank Glenister for the first time on Monday at the popular hall in Piccadilly-circus. Durga, the lady who presents the new sensation, arrays her fine amplitude of figure in white skin tights, wearing also a shawl of tinselled pink gauze, which she waves in a sort of classical dance. But this introduction counts for little. It is when madame introduces a young and nameless pianist, and a couple of attendants move a heavy piano on to the stage, that interest in the act really begins to simmer. The young lady, apparently secured in the seat which is attached to the framework, plays a simple piece; madame makes a few passes, and the instrument slowly floats upwards towards the flies, and after turning a couple of complete circles as slowly floats down to the stage. "Voila tout!" The show will be much more effective when the obvious nervousness of the pianist is overcome.

Miss Wish Wynne has returned to this house, where she commenced her most successful career as an interpreter of character. We have not seen or heard anything so completely satisfying in an artistic sense as her "Misery Jane." Poor Jane is a slice from life. Grimly pathetic and appealing as the true annals of the poor always are, the sorrows of our slum children have never been more eloquently realised. "A Country Girl" is another delightful creation of Miss Wynne, who is again and again recalled to receive hearty compliments for her fine work.

Early in the evening Miss Alice Hollander sings the contralto part of the famous "Miserere" scene from Trovatore, the tenor portion of the duet being played by a good soloist in the orchestra. Verdi's melody is always acclaimed, and the popular approval of Miss Hollander's singing is enthusiastic. Mr. Arthur Melrose's whistling waiter reminds one of Mr. Snazelle's impersonation, and is decidedly original. The whistler also realises the incidents of quite a storyette of adventure by means of his gift, and he is quite successful. Miss Violet Loraine, whose fair beauty is particularly well set off in a pretty costume of pink silk and black lace, returns to the Pavilion with those successful songs "I want a sweetheart" and "In the park." Miss Loraine has a bewitching style, and should go far.

Miss Annie Abbott, "the little Georgia Magnet," defies the combined strength of ten men in her chair feat, and though only weighing seven stone can at her own sweet will prevent herself being lifted by two stalwarts invited on to the stage. The show of the fair Georgian, who looks but a little older than she did some fifteen years ago when she appeared at the Alhambra, excites much curiosity and amusement. Miss Ada Oxley is inclined to spoil her sketch Peggy by her extravagances as the Yorkshire girl; Miss May Henderson adopts the stale device of chaffing the band, which does not increase the value of her clever impersonations; Mr. T. E. Dunville's "Railway Guard" has a subtle knowledge of human nature; and Arthur Aldridge revives his old success "The Trumpeter," and is well suited with "Mary, you're a big girl now." A clever turn is the lightning painting of Vandinoff, who succeeds in "touching in" a bouquet of flowers on a surface while it is rapidly revolving. The Five Cliftons, acrobats, include a regular Hercules as the bearer, who is fitly partnered by a lady of prodigious strength, the two being the mainstay of an original and intrepid display. The Fitzroys are graceful society gymnasts; and the Howards, Mr. Harry Zetter, Mr. Carl Muller, and the Brothers Dean are other turns in a fine programme. Mr. Bond Sayers, the musical director, secures an excellent ensemble from his fine corps of instrumentalists.

THE GRAND, CLAPHAM.

Decorators have been busy at the popular Clapham Junction hall, which looks very bright in its new dress. The auditorium has been repainted, the prevailing colours being pure white and gold, with a delicate shade of blue worked into a pretty design. Other parts of the building have been similarly treated, and the place now makes a very attractive appearance. A big programme is being presented this week, and an audience in conformity with the talent provided was found in possession of the first house on Tuesday. Three stars head the bill, and each renews the popularity already enjoyed in the neighbourhood. Miss Queenie Leighton, who figured as principal boy in the pantomime at the theatre opposite, is in particularly high favour, and her reception is cordial in the extreme. Her comedy talent is well displayed in both her songs, especially in that of "Conversations," the humour of which is thoroughly brought out.

A leading light of the bill also is Mr. George Mozart, who hits off the peculiarities of the public once throughout, and is admirably enacted by Mr. Noble and his companions, the concluding episodes being especially well played. Another interesting little sketch that appealed successfully to the audience was Pippin's Mother, a playlet combining humour and pathos, capitally enacted by Miss Lloyd Archer and company. The head of the combination plays the honest paper boy, Pippin, in a vivacious, droll, and, when necessary, earnest manner quite in keeping with the part; and a clever and convincing portrayal of the sneak thief, Bob Marsh, is given by Mr. Frank Carlyle, Miss Travers ably impersonating Mrs. Marsh. Mr. Thompson Carruthers' company are responsible for the farcical sketch, Up the Pole, the many absurdities in which keep the audience vastly amused, particularly ludicrous being the incidents where the love-sick Baron von Blitzerburg allows himself to be so roughly treated by Tony Bounder. The quartette responsible for the presentation of the farce all work hard in the cause of laughter.

A reception of the heartiest is accorded the favourite comedian, Mr. Charles Whittle, who warbles in his usual quietly droll fashion "Can't you make room for a little one?" and also amuses greatly with a number new to us, "Fall in and follow me," a ditty with a taking melody and chorus which is sure to become popular. Another comedian who succeeds in keeping the audience amused is Mr. Syd Crossley. A droll rendering of "Right; good idea!" is succeeded by a really funny description in song of a meeting of public house politicians, which terminates in "ructions"—a ditty well written, capitally delivered, and loudly applauded. The Four Sparks are a quartette of smart damsels who contribute an agreeable interlude of vocalism and dancing; Miss Nellie Nestle employs an excellent voice in the popular song, "Your eyes have told me so" and another number; and Miss Gracie Lawn, looking well in a pretty principal boy's costume, sings "Isn't it a treat to be alive?" and "Don't stand there," concluding with a neatly-executed little dance.

The fine voice and cultured singing of Miss Annie Schuberth are admirably employed in the song-scena, "The Deputy," the lady's charming renderings of "Beautiful Garden of Roses" and "Star of Hope" being loudly applauded, and, on the night of our visit an encore was demanded and given. Miss Schuberth's delightful turn gave evident pleasure in all parts of the house. The Three Romas, clever acrobats and hand and head balancers, submit a smartly worked and really interesting show that was greatly appreciated by Monday night's audience; and the wrestling exhibition of the famed Japanese ju-jitsu expert, Tarro Miyake, created much enthusiasm, particularly his encounter with George May, an English wrestler, who withstood being thrown for close on seven minutes. Miyake quickly vanquished an Italian, and much diversion was caused by his demonstration of various locks, holds, &c., in ju-jitsu, with a gallery gentleman as a "subject." An interesting and well-varied series of animated pictures by the Edisonograph always forms an appreciated item in the entertainment here, and the programme, ably overseered by the courteous and capable manager, Mr. Maurice Veiny, also includes Mr. Frank Jester, comedian.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

The programme at this popular hall is fully up to the high standard maintained by the management, and the audiences are large and enthusiastic in consequence. At the top of the bill is George Bastow, happily recovered from his long spell of indisposition. On the evening of our visit he gave three songs—"They won't know I come from the country," "Wire in, my lads," and a new number entitled "Captain Gingah, O.T." All of these were practically perfect character studies, and the latter, which is sung in the guise of a retired officer, is a clever song with a taking refrain, which was speedily taken up by the house. His success was very gratifying, the audience giving him a cordial welcome back to the footlights. Frank Seeley appears in a couple of songs, neither of which gives him any opportunities at all. Goodfellow and Gregson are making a big success. They are a very entertaining couple who work wonderfully well together, and their act was so much to the taste of the house that they had to give an additional item. Bert Williams is presenting his ventriloquial show, which contains some original business. A policeman who is introduced causes a great deal of amusement, and the final item, which takes the form of a song by Mr. Williams with an interpolated last line by the dummy, is clever. The turn gained plenty of well-earned applause. Kisbey, the call boy, appears in an act consisting of songs and patter.

The Nine Excelsos in a series of vocal and dancing scenas are making a successful bid for favour. The series of songs, each of which has a different mounting, are melodious, and the dancing is altogether excellent. The show is notable for the introduction of a coloured artist, who gives some remarkable exhibitions of dancing. Everything is accomplished without the suspicion of an effort, and the audience, quick to appreciate the cleverness of his exhibition, accorded him an undeniable encore. The Avoloe in a turn which consisted of somersaults, and other acrobatic feats from perpendicular poles, were conspicuously successful, the performance of the artist in the guise of a woman calling for special mention. Adey Spencer, who opens the programme, proves herself to be a clever pianist, vocalist, and dancer, and earned hearty applause for her act.

A. C. Lilly and company bottom the bill in Drummed Out. The abundance of the military element has doubtless had a deal to do with the long life of this sketch, a considerable number of auxiliaries being utilised in the current production. Mr. A. C. Lilly himself repeats his familiar performance of Sergeant Usher, and was supported by a large company, of whom Misses Gladys Rose Jones and Kitty Kirwan were successful. The Bioscope is, as usual, interesting, and Mr. Greco's capital orchestra opens the evening's entertainment with a spirited performance of the Yeomen of the Guard selection. Mr. Charles Marks, the popular manager here, is away searching for summer weather, and Mr. Cyril Percival, his assistant, is discharging the managerial duties with great courtesy.

KILBURN EMPIRE.

Judging by the crowded condition of this beautiful variety hall on Monday evening, the holiday season would appear to have no prejudicial effect on the business done, and Mr. C. Foster Marner, the urbane and energetic manager, must be accordingly grateful. The programme is an exceedingly good one, and quite up to the expected standard of a Gibbons Hall. To open the entertainment the Sisters Burnett as a lady motorist and coster respectively sing of the glories of a motor-car and donkey-cart, and are followed by the Six Probies, a set of youthful singers and dancers, who are greatly appreciated.

In consequence of her great success, Miss Daisy James fulfils a second week's engagement, quite to the satisfaction of the large audiences, who are delighted with the efforts of this dainty and versatile comedienne. Her latest song, "The squeegee dress," amusingly depicts the troubles of the attenuated tube dress. Miss James's second song, "It's a fine night to take a walk," has a spirited chorus, which appeals to the audience, who take up the refrain with avidity. Success is attained by George Gilbey, the Lancashire comedian, in his songs, "Not to-day, or to-morrow, or the day after," and "How to be happy though married," in the latter of which he delivers most amusing patter, causing very hearty laughter. That excellent playlet Pride of Regiment, written by F. D. Bone, is again played with ability by Mr. Nerill Graham and company

FRANCIS, DAY & HUNTER, 142, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.

The lady in particular proves herself to be a very capable actress. Mr. Sam Bean is very witty in a humorous song on "Home, sweet home."

Miss Daisy Stratton sings of "Tipperary Mary" pleasantly, and dances in good style. An admirable dancing turn is that of Harris Coome, a coloured vocalist and dancer, who earns well-deserved applause, and Mozetto, announced as one of the world's greatest jugglers, certainly falls very little short of that description. In a very spirited song entitled "There are no girls like ours," Mr. Steve McCarthy as a sailor is much appreciated, and the Westbrooks, in a Dutch dancing sketch, display skill.

Miss Marie Kendall discourses forcibly how "You can always tell when a fellow loves a girl by the silly, sloppy look in his eye," and creates applause. In her next song, however, Miss Kendall fairly captures the audience, who very reluctantly allow her to leave the stage without another song. It is called "Did your first wife ever do that?" and provokes unbounded laughter, and is certainly a prize-winner.

The new sketch, King Nobbler, presented by Mr. Lew Lake and company brings the long programme to a very merry termination. Our old friends Jerry and Nobbler alight from an airship on an island inhabited by cannibals, and Nobbler manages to be proclaimed King for a time. Comical situations abound, and ultimately, when Jerry and his pals are in dire straits, they are rescued by men from a British warship, amid much excitement. It is all excellent fooling, and creates hearty laughter. Mr. Horace Sheldon is in command of a talented orchestra.

THE METROPOLITAN.

Mr. William Bailey's programme at the popular Edgware-road house this week is of a particularly alluring nature, pride of place being occupied by the queen of comediennes, Marie Lloyd. Charmingly costumed, Miss Lloyd first appears as a lady who has once occupied an insignificant position in "the chorus," but who now owns a town and a seaside mansion, in addition to motor-cars and diamonds, and is generally very affluent. Her friends, of course, are not kind in their surmises as to the change in her circumstances. But they do her an injustice. She has been "married to the man for years." Perhaps the best of Miss Lloyd's numbers on the night of our visit was a low comedy song, in which she impersonated a Cockney damsel, who, while on a pleasure trip, gets wrecked in Turkey, and narrowly escapes becoming one of the many wives of a greedy potentate. The Sultan makes an awful fuss of her, but she eventually gets safe home to "Bill." "Very nice, too," is the versatile comedienne's last number, all of which are given in her own inimitable style. Marie, needless to remark, was accorded a reception reserved for favourites. Guy Rider, "the regimental pet," appears as a smart little drummer-boy, his whistling solos especially appealing to his auditors. His expert bâton manipulation and drum-playing are other attractive features of a turn which greatly pleased the house.

The fine contralto voice of that cultured vocalist Miss Bessie Slaughter was admirably employed in "Your eyes have told me so" and "Killarney," and the enthusiasm of her reception proved once again the pleasure derived by music hall audiences from high-class vocalism; and Mr. Albert MacKelvin, Scotch monologuist, has a funny song in "I saw Sandy to his front street door," his humorous anecdotes also raising many a smile. The well-known Selbini Troupe of cyclists and acrobats still occupy a premier position in their line of business, the many difficult feats executed by the clever family all being accomplished with marvellous dexterity and apparent ease. Their concluding trick is that of a man and bicycle turning a complete somersault—a sensational one that called forth loud plaudits. Altogether a most attractive and unique show. The Brothers Horne are still presenting their funny and smartly-worked boxing skit, The Biter Bit, and judging by its reception and the continuous laughter it evoked, they are not likely to need new material for a long time. Cole and Rags, comedy jugglers, are amusing and clever, the ludicrous get-up and behaviour generally of the funny man of the duo creating much merriment.

An "extra" on Tuesday evening, Martin Adeson and partner, in the screamingly funny playlet, The Lady Doctor, was responsible, perhaps, for the heartiest laughter heard, the unctuous impersonation of the gasman who is mistaken for a wealthy patient by the lady doctor by Mr. Adeson being a very droll, finished, and easy one. Valuable assistance was given him by his partner, the couple working splendidly together, and the many humorous lines and absurd situations proved most mirth-provoking. Mr. Mark Leslie, coon artist and eccentric dancer, Miss Mabel Sinclair, ventriloquist, and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope are also on the attractive programme.

EAST HAM PALACE.

Large and appreciative audiences are attending here this week to witness one of the most interesting and entertaining programmes to be obtained. Thanks to the astute and enterprising manager, Mr. Albert E. Hill, the Palace is rapidly growing in popularity. Karno's comedians are appearing in the pantomimical farce Skating, the company including Sid Chaplin, a well-known versatile comedian and fun-maker. The sketch simply teems with funny incidents, and roars of laughter are produced by the antics of the would-be rinkers. The company is undoubtedly one of Karno's best.

The combination known as the Seven Bramusas, juvenile musicians, in a brass band extravaganza entitled "Music Afloat," are accorded a very hearty reception. Their renderings of well-known overtures and solos are remarkably clever for juvenile artists, and the march "The Diplomat" is skilfully conducted by one of the boy musicians. "A Moonlight Trip on the Mississippi" is a descriptive piece in which they excel. Horace Pollock and company, in the brilliant comedy episode Hester's Mystery, are very popular, and the sketch abounds with much excellent humour. Les Alex. C. Carangeot, in the Continental dancing scena "The Demon, the Fairy, and the Dragon," give a wonderfully clever interpretation of Parisian dancing, which is heartily applauded. The scenic effects are very cleverly manipulated.

"Mr. C." keeps the audience in a merry mood by his many "yarns," told in typical Yankee fashion. Miss Maud Courtney, American comedienne, is well received, her two songs, "Father brings home something every day" and "Pet names," quite holding the audience.

The Brothers Bright submit a clever exhibition of lifting and balancing, their many feats being characterised by the utmost ease and grace. Other pleasing turns are Miss Jessie Stuart, vocal comedienne, and Arthur Clifton, swell comedian, the latter's song, "Girls, be careful what you do," being a very popular number. The performance concludes with some interesting films on Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. The assistant-managership is in the very capable hands of Mr. H. Wincote, who looks well after the comfort of the audience.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

An excellent start of this week's bill at Mr. Cohen's hall is made by Miss Lucia Collins, a daughter of the late Miss Lottie Collins. Here we have a decided case of hereditary talent. Miss Lucia Collins, from time to time, curiously reminds the older generation of playgoers of the famous singer of "Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay." There are many of the little mannerisms, the unexpected jumps and nods, and the voice itself seems to be an echo of the past. On the occasion of our visit Miss Collins sang well a pretty song, "You are a flower," and followed this with one of her mother's successes, "A breach of promise case." The young and attractive artist is very warmly received. The Eight 'Varsity Girls, in gowns, hoods, and "mortar-boards," sing many good songs in admirable style, sometimes concerted and sometimes solo. That old and tried friend of the public, Tom Leamore, has a great reception, and sings firstly about a gentleman with an inordinately long name who was called "Dick" to save time, and follows this up with his serio-comic song-scena. "Gold, Gold, Gold," in which his impersonation of the aged miser is extremely clever. A turn eliciting unbounded applause is that supplied by the Royal Delomes, duettists and dancers. Their step-dancing is simply amazing, and their somewhat weird performance of "The Phantom Clogs," in which they occupy a darkened frame within which nothing is visible but two pairs of white clogs dancing "for all they are worth," is very clever.

Some of the loudest laughter and most persistent applause of the week rewards the mirth-provoking sayings and doings of Barney Armstrong and Kelly. To begin with, Barney's facial make-up in combination with the absolute stolidity of his humour goes a long way to raise the ready smile even before he opens his lips to speak or sing, but when he does speak and sing it is simply a case of "Laughter holding both its sides." The song, the patter, and the acting are all alike of the best. Of course, everybody there saw Kelly, and it seems as if nine-tenths of the audience would like to keep on seeing him for months and months and months at a stretch. The quaint little man—he is only a youth—has all the makings of a comedian in him, and it will be strange if he does not "achieve greatness" some of these days. He has an excellent preceptor and leader in Barney Armstrong, and he promises to make good use of his opportunities. Valazzi, "the supreme juggler," repeats a marvellous performance that has been seen on these boards before, but can hardly be seen too often. His feat of "sloping the slope" is truly marvellous, but not much more so than some of his other efforts. Miss Helen Martin's fine, well-trained voice is heard to great advantage in the rousing song, "Long Live the King," which is received with acclamation. The Calcots are very good in their wayside episode, Rags and Tatters, their singing and playing being alike excellent. Will E. Stopit is certainly an eccentric fellow, and his eccentricities are greatly enjoyed.

The solid item of the week's programme is the comedy dramatic episode, Her Luck in London, played by Miss Mary Neil and company. Miss Mary Neil depicts the heroine as a perfect "bundle of nerves"; Mr. Stuart Cleveland is duly fierce and domineering as Stephen Harborne, whose harshness drives his daughter away from home; Mr. Herbert Standing is manly and earnest as the Hon. Gerald, acting with great spirit and speaking with perfect intonation. As the villain, Richard Lenowen, Mr. Jack Haddon seems to revel in his own selfish brutality. Miss Marie Rainer is the very personification of a callous, vulgar, and utterly heartless woman as Mme. Gabrielle; while as Lilian Harborne, Nell's religious sister, Miss Mary Auckland is as cold and unbending as the part requires. The little piece is splendidly staged.

DEATH OF MISS AMBER AUSTA.

We regret to announce the death of Miss Amber Austa, the popular comedienne and dancer, at the early age of twenty-seven, of consumption. She passed away on Wednesday night, the 3rd inst., at 191, Lavender Hill, S.W., after twenty weeks' illness. The funeral took place on Monday, the 8th inst., leaving the Roman Catholic Chapel, Altenburg Gardens (after requiem Mass), the burial taking place at Morden Cemetery, Surrey. The funeral was quite a private and family one, among those present being Mr. Will E. Haines (husband), Mrs. J. Mullaney (mother), Nora Mullaney (sister), William Haines, sen. (father-in-law of the deceased), and Alfred and Nellie Haines.

THE LATE MISS AMBER AUSTA.

Miss Austa made her first real start on the stage by playing a waif part in a drama with Miss Agnes Hewitt at the early age of ten. Later she appeared in The Dandy Doctor, musical comedy, as a speciality dancer. At the age of fifteen she was with Mr. John Tiller in the Gay Paree company, and made her first appearance on the music hall stage at the Metropolitan, where the late Mr. Henri Gros gave her her first start two years later. The song that seems to have made her most popular was "Oysters and clams" (the ragtime oyster man). It is to be regretted that one so young and with such a promising career before her should pass away so early in life. Mr. Haines wishes to express his sincere thanks for the many beautiful wreaths sent and for letters of condolence from many friends.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

Eugene Stratton, with a song scena new to Stratford, is giving of his best this week, which is saying much. His coon is the genuine article in appearance; his songs are peculiar to coons only, and his dancing should make the average coon impersonator change from black to green with envy. Consequently Eugene's latest, "I may be a millionaire," rendered with faultless diction, that not a word is missed, and being very admirably staged, creates quite a furore; the smiling artist having afterwards many times to bow his acknowledgments. Stratton's other numbers are "The coon that never told a lie," and the ever-popular and ear-haunting "I may be crazy." The Grassis, who possess very elaborate musical properties, are a clever and versatile duo, as alike as two peas. This enhances their illusionary mirror act, which is most clever. Some very adept tumbling also forms part of their turn, which is concluded with a musical entertainment which fairly brings down the house. Bertha Winder is a very expert step-dancer with a very modest manner, though when her terpsichorean efforts are confined to the limited space of an ordinary plate, the heartiness of the applause is unmistakable, and she is quite entitled to the appellation of "The Dancing Marvel"; Jennie Alexander is a juvenile mimic who essays to reproduce the efforts of such performers as Vesta Victoria, Marie Lloyd, and Victoria Monks, and selecting popular numbers associated with each, her success is unavoidable.

Albert Whelan, nonchalant and débonnair as customary, contributes an enjoyable act. His items at the piano include "The coon and the bear" and a "trombone" number, whilst his impersonations of Chevalier, Lauder, and especially Chirgwin, stamp him as a mimic with a very keen sense of perception and humour. The whistling solos with which he makes his entry and exit must also not be overlooked; and he is the recipient of some of the heartiest applause heard during the evening. Tom Haig and Millie Novel create much mirth with their comedy acrobatic scena; Harry Simms sings a light comedy number very acceptably; and Hans and Lux's contribution to the programme affords much pleasure. Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery, in An Amateur Anarchist, did not appear on the night of our visit owing to the indisposition of Miss Rosebery, and a special Bioscope picture replaced them. The overture, Parker's "Mignonette," is well performed by the excellent orchestra, under the guidance of Mr. Albert Whipp, Mus.Bac. and the comfort of those in front is well studied by Mr. E. J. Macdermott, the courteous acting-manager.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

At the Hippodrome, Croydon, this week, Mr. George Lashwood wins the suffrages of all hearers with his racy rendering of Benjamin Hopgood Burt's naive Irish-Turkish song, "Mister Pat O'Hare," one of the Feldman publications, which certainly seems to have its pantomime future well assured.

Miss Florence Esdaile, at the Gaiety, Birmingham, has been the recipient of encores for her singing of Dempsey and Schmid's ballad "Beautiful garden of roses," which she will be giving at all her turns. This already famous song is a well-known Feldman publication.

Miss May Poulton writes Messrs. Feldman and Co. most enthusiastically anent the success she has achieved at the Palace, Southampton, and her other turns with their tuneful comedy number "I wonder who's kissing her now."

Mr. Muir Muirell has made a pronounced success at Llandudno with Feldman's "Beautiful garden of roses," "Somewhere," and other ballads published by the Arthur-street firm.

At the Gaiety, Birmingham, Miss Irene Rose has won plaudits loud and long for Macdonald and Yates' "Dear little sunbonnet lady," a Feldman publication, which has an extensive vogue just now, and is hourly growing in popularity.

Messrs. C. and F. Renad are introducing Feldman's big military comedy number, "Every girl loves a military man," by Harrington, Godfrey, and Powell, into their new production, The Merry Territorial, which it fits like the proverbial glove, and great results are anticipated in the near future.

Mr. Bert Feldman, telegraphing his firm from the Isle of Man, where he is at present combining business with pleasure, records the fact that "Beautiful garden of roses" is the rage of Mona, a result confidently anticipated by all good judges of the public taste in the matter of the "songs of the people."

Miss Annie Schuberth has been scoring very heavily at the Standard, Pimlico, with "Beautiful garden of roses," by Dempsey and Schmid, and "Though years go rolling by" ("My Star of Hope"), by James Wilson and Henrie Jaxon.

Rosie Gaston, the dainty character comedienne, is now singing her latest success, "Oranges," by Mills and Scott.

Miss May Mars continues to prove one of the big attractions at Douglas, I.O.M. This week she appears at the Palace, and her success with A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's charming ballad "I wonder if you miss me sometimes" is greater than ever. In addition to this big winner, and the bright and breezy "Ship ahoy!" Miss Mars has introduced another song by the same authors, having a local flavour. It is entitled "I met little Mary Ellen at th' Isle of Man." Needless to say this has brought down the house. The Star Music Co. are the lucky publishers of all three numbers.

George Lashwood has this week been appearing at the handsome new Hippodrome, Croydon, where packed houses have been the rule. It is a long time since the genial George visited Croydon, and old admirers flocked to see their favourite lion comique. They have not been disappointed, for George Lashwood has just now some excellent material. His big winner, "The moonlight promenade," with its melodious chorus and tricky couplets, was an intantaneous success. The authors are A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, and the publishers the Star Music Co.

Miss Maud Esmond, who is familiarly known as the "'Charlie Brown' girl," continues to feature this number to the evident satisfaction of all hearers. As the original singer of this popular ditty, Miss Esmond gets so many requests for it that she finds "Charlie Brown" a difficult chap to drop. The fair singer is meeting with her usual success at Collins's this week, where she also features "Ship ahoy!"—another Star Co. winner—by those prolific authors, A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott.

POPLAR HIPPODROME.

Resplendent with its fresh artistic decorations and new scenery, this hall can vie with the best for comfort, excellence of programme, and good management. Much of the success recorded here is, without doubt, due to the unfailing energy and courtesy of Manager Austin Anderson, who is ever to the fore in studying the comforts of his numerous patrons. Full houses this week are appreciating the varied bill. Zellini has a humorous juggling act. Heightened in effect by quaint fooling, and assisted by clever contrivances, the speciality causes much laughter. Victoria Monks is a host in herself. She has a tuneful number in "There's a girl in Berlin," a song with a swinging, haunting melody; whilst her second effusion, "What's yer gwine ter say on Judgment Day?" has a chorus which will surely become as popular as those of Victoria's other songs.

The Sisters Allen are a bright and cheery couple, their dancing and singing being quite good. Lotto, Lilo, and Otto are names to conjure with. These premier trick and comedy cyclists still prove as popular as ever. Their feats are accomplished with the ease and finish denoting the true artist. Merlin as a card manipulator is decidedly smart. In causing packs of cards to increase or decrease at will none were more mystified than the three gentlemen from the audience who "assisted" him. A humorous touch added appreciably to the entertainment. Disguised as an impossible "slavey," Elsie Robey gives several quaint impersonations of singing and dancing. Her burlesque of La Belle Otero is particularly clever, and her Dutch song and dance is heartily applauded.

Allan Holt and company present the dramatic sketch A Society Woman, which has now been before the public for some time, and still proves acceptable. Miss Mona Macdonald as Lady Phyllis Allerton works hard, and deals out the pathos liberally. Miss Kitty Grey as Jeannette is excellent, and the other members of the cast lend good support. As a child impersonator Wilson Hallett occupies a foremost position. His different humorous and pathetic impressions of children are greatly appreciated. Fred Hastings is successful in a funny monologue, A Study in Courtship and Marriage, funnily given. Harry Luck, comedian; and the Brothers Ralston, vocal comedians, are also in the bill, which includes a series of up-to-date pictures by the Bioscope. The orchestra, presided over by Mr. Smith, does excellent service.

"THE LADY AND THE BURGLAR."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In your notice of a new (?) sketch by George Grossmith, jun., produced at the Tivoli, Strand—viz., A Night of the Garter, you mention that the piece is similar to a sketch known as My Burglar. I should like to point out to you that I wrote a sketch, before either of the above, entitled The Lady and the Burglar, produced by me at the Hippodrome, Hulme, Manchester, on Sept. 27, 1905, and noticed by you in your issue of Oct. 7, 1905. The incidents are precisely similar to Mr. Grossmith's playlet, and as I am reproducing it shortly I should not care to be accused of plagiarism.—Yours faithfully, FRED MONCKTON.

Sir Robert Fossett and Sons' Circus on Tour.

THE original Sir Robert Fossett and Sons' Circus and Hippodrome, on tour, visited this week Hailsham, Bexhill, Rye, and other towns in the neighbourhood of Hastings, performing to good and appreciative audiences. This gratifying fact is not to be wondered at, seeing that the circus is excellently billed, admirably managed, and, with the horses and other animals all in fine condition, patrons of all classes are only too pleased to express their pleasure at the quality of the acts submitted. Of the equestrian acts, for which this well-known establishment holds a high reputation, Mlle. Emmie has a big reception for her admirable haute école act, in which, superbly mounted and habited on her beautiful horse Vanity, she thoroughly proves herself to be a most perfect and graceful horsewoman. Mr. Robert Fossett, jun., is responsible for a brilliant performance in his famous jockey act, an act to which he has yet added another sensational and daring feat, consisting of leaping from the arena to the back of his steed whilst going at full speed, encumbered with his feet in baskets, and also blindfolded, and his body enveloped in a sack—a remarkable feat of daring, which fairly brought down the house. Miss Hilda, who has wonderful control over her miniature pony, gives a most pleasing and popular exhibition of equine training. She is assisted by Mr. R. Fossett, sen. Miss E. Fossett introduces her wonderful educated calculating horse Diamond with marked success, who thoroughly mystifies by its rapidly-given and correct answers to the various questions put to it by its fair mistress. Master Thomas Fossett, known as Texas Tom, scores in his fine exhibition of equestrianism, which has earned him the proud title of the fastest and most expert rider known. Excellent numbers, which speak volumes for the patience of the trainers as well as the intelligence of their equine scholars, are shown in the wonderful accomplishments of the highly-trained horse Pasha and the mare Patience, which are introduced respectively by Mr. Robert Fossett, jun., and Master Thomas. The acme of horse training is seen, however, in the great fire horse Cæsar, who coolly stands alone at liberiy on the top of a platform, amidst a display of fireworks. The Three Graces charm in their novel hurdle act, in which they show themselves to be accomplished exponents of the art of equestrianism. The amusing pranks of Joey the Pony and of his two-legged companion Clown Winkle delighted both old and young. A great favourite is Topsy, the cake-walking elephant, who is introduced by Mr. Roberts; while another popular act is that of a performing Teddy bear. This establishment does not only rely upon splendid feats of horsemanship and animal training, but also on excellent and daring gymnastic and acrobatic turns. Very fine are Les Eschelles, in their highly-finished double ladder act. The Brothers Apine also prove themselves to be very clever "La Perche" artists. The Two Valtrines give a masterly performed novel trapeze act, which meets with the generous approval of the audience in the shape of hearty applause; whilst Mons. Otto gains well-deserved honours of a like order as a dexterous and talented equilibrist. The Four Zolas add yet another fine item to the programme with their splendidly-executed feats as acrobats and tumblers. A pleasing number is given by the Two Rennes, who in their skilfully-accomplished performance on the double wire show that they are equally at home in mid-air as they are on terra firma. There is an excellent number of amusing clowns, who include Otto, Spider, and Winkle, and the merriment is never allowed to slacken. Their energetic, resourceful, and capital work creates repeated laughter. During the performance some diverting entrées, including that of Funny Jacko and his troupe of comical skaters and Comic Otto, with his local acrobats, are keenly relished. The evening performances conclude with some fine bioscope films, which are clear and excellently shown. Mr. E. Cook, the musical-director, deserves a complimentary notice for his orchestra, which adds to the enjoyment of the performance. Amongst the band pieces is a well-rendered selection from Gounod's Faust. There is an interesting side show consisting of what is said to be the smallest cart-horse in the world, and two fine young lion cubs, recently purchased. Mr. Roberts acts as Sir Robert Fossett and Sons' stud groom. The customary mid-day parade through the streets, weather permitting, has been most favourably commented on from the large crowds which have congregated along the route, the elephant and camels, together with the condition of the horses and ponies, coming in for special notice.

Cupar, Fife, Fair, N.B.

THIS annual hiring fair was held here on Tuesday. Very bad weather prevailed, which had its effect on the attendance, business being very moderate all round. The following attractions were present:—Wilmot's racing motor-cars, Walter Wilmot's jumping horses, A. Riddal's Brooklyn cake-walk, Biddal's famous show, Manders' mammoth coliseum, Walter Wilmot's electric theatre, Chapman's performing birds and living pictures, A. Sedgwick's show, Brockley's novelty show, Lavin's boxing pavilion, Milo's mechanical exhibition, globe shooters and galleries by Dawson, Palmer, Freeman, Rostron, Gamble, and Strand, Emma, cokernut, loup-la and watch-la by Strand, Dawson, Knowles, Horn, Palmer, Gamble, Freeman, Martin, and Hughes, and a host of minor attractions completed the list.

Featherstone Feast.

FOLLOWING upon Knottingley there is a capital fair at Featherstone, in the heart of a coal-mining district. The shows, machines, &c., given above as being at Knottingley, went to Featherstone the week after Knottingley, the new-comers being Holdsworth, with flying pigs and waltzing balloons, and Messrs. Pullen, Crowther, Norman, Brogden, Barker, Arnold, and Johnson, with games, &c.

THE TRIUMPHANT VINDICATION OF THE TRAVELLING SHOWMAN.

Following upon the issue of the amended Movable Dwellings Bill, we have the Final Report of the Select Committee of the House of Lords to whom the Bill was referred.

The Marquis of Salisbury presided over the Committee, the other members of which were the Duke of Northumberland, Earl Russell, the Earl of Liverpool, Lord Zouche, Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, and Lord Farrer. The Final Report, as well as the terms of the Bill, we put before our readers last week fully justifies all we have written during the past thirty years, in season and out of season, with regard to British show life. It is a veritable triumph for the Showmen's Guild and the case for the showman vandweller as presented to the Committee by the president and Council of the Guild in exhaustive special papers, and especially in the evidence of the Guild Chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne. The first paragraph of report referring to vandwellers says:

"Apart from a small number of persons who use moveable dwellings as a pastime, vandwellers are divided into two classes—the showman class and the gipsy class. As regards the showman class no legislation appears to be required. Mr. Horne, the Chaplain of their Guild, told the Committee that there were some 4,000 showmen's vans travelling the country, and carrying a population of something like 12,000 souls. The trade is perfectly honest and respectable and its members are well-to-do, and in some cases even thriving. No grievances arise against them, and it was represented to us that not only is no legislation necessary, but that existing legal restrictions occasionally involve a grievance upon their side. In certain cases it is said local bodies avail themselves of these restrictions, not with a view to prevent breaches of the law, but in order within the area of their jurisdiction altogether to put an end to the fairs where the showmen gain their living. Any further powers to make regulations, it is contended, would intensify this grievance. Without pronouncing as to whether there may not be a reasonable answer to these allegations, the Committee are certainly of opinion that, so far as the showmen are concerned, no legislation on the lines of this Bill is called for."

The End of Class Legislation Dealing with Show Life.

After numerous attempts (well meant or ill-meant) to stigmatise show-life as a danger to health and morals, this is the end of the matter, as found by the Committee:

The trade is perfectly honest and respectable, and its members are well-to-do, and in some cases even thriving. No grievances arise against them, and it was represented to us that not only is no legislation necessary, but that existing legal restrictions occasionally involve a grievance upon their side.

The real friends of the showman have the supreme satisfaction of knowing that show-life is worthy of the good opinion all reasonable people have held of it—that the travelling showman or itinerant entertainer is a clean living, law-abiding citizen; no special powers are needed to induce him to better things; the ordinary moral and religious incentives, and the ordinary restraints of good living are ample for show-life. No special legislation is needed.

Sanitation and Health Conditions of Show Vans.

A clean bill of health for show-van life is the verdict of the Committee. The law, as at present, is adequate for show vans. In the special paper tendered by the Guild and accepted as evidence by the Select Committee, it was shown that in every town the showman visits he is immediately under the sanitary and health authorities, like all other house-dwellers.

Expert Witnesses Support the Case for Showmen.

Dealing with the existing law as it now governs all vandwellers, without distinction of class, the report says:

"It would, however, be a mistake to suppose that the existing law does not deal with the sanitary conditions of moveable dwellings. Mr. Monro, of the Local Government Board, dealt fully with this subject in his evidence. He said:—'The specific provisions are contained in section 9 of the Housing of the Working Classes Act, 1885. That section does three things: it applies the provisions of the Public Health Act (1875) with regard to nuisances, to nuisances in tents, vans, sheds, and similar structures used for human habitation which are in such a state as to be a nuisance or injurious to health, or so overcrowded as to be injurious to the health of the inmates, whether or not members of the same family. Next, it provides that Urban and Rural District Councils may make bye-laws, which are subject to confirmation by the Local Government Board, for promoting cleanliness in and the habitable condition of such structures, and for preventing nuisances and the spread of infectious disease in connection with them Then it also contains a provision authorising entrance by day to these dwellings by persons duly authorised by the sanitary authority or by a Justice of the Peace.' Further, he told the Committee that the Infectious Diseases Notification Act applies to these dwellings just as it applies to houses. It will be seen, therefore, that elaborate provisions of the law already exist."

The Report deals exhaustively with gipsy van-life and nomad-life. But that part of the subject does not concern us; our brief has been to vindicate showlife, and we welcome with both satisfaction and gratitude the triumphant vindication of showpeople as regards their avocation and their daily life.

Notes from Wales.

HAGGAR'S electric theatre occupies the showground, Pembroke Dock, on a short visit, displaying a capital all-round show of pictures, and a change of programme nightly. Miss Ivy Gallard and Mr. E. W. Selman, in song and humour, are highly appreciated. Good business is being experienced. Crecraft's Coliseum is still doing well at Llanelly.

MITCHAM FAIR, 1910.

A danger dreaded by all true friends and defenders of the historic fair at Mitcham has taken an acute form this year. We refer to the invasion of the Fair Green by gipsies, and other undesirable people, with racecourse games. Without wishing to apportion the responsibility and the blame for this undesirable development, we wish, on behalf of the legitimate showman and fairground amusement caterer, to disclaim all connection or sympathy with the invasion of the Fair Green by these undesirable people.

Without either knowledge or connivance of the showpeople, the Fair Green was rushed on Tuesday evening, two days before the usual time for occupying sites. We are given to understand that a reprehensible system of exacting blackmail from the showpeople was practised before the gipsies who had secured the ground would quit it. The unsettlement of the matter and its danger is owing to the policy during the last four years of the franchise owners refusing to regularise proceedings by accepting tolls and announcing their resolve year by year not to let sites on the Fair Green.

Our Great Hopes for the Future.

Now that the Mitcham Board of Conservators own the franchise of the fair, the chaotic state of affairs that mark Mitcham Fair, 1910, may reasonably be expected to cease. We sincerely hope that Mitcham people will ask the Conservators to settle the question upon broad and statesmanlike lines—that, while preserving the fair rights, the fair may in 1911 be found on a suitable site on another part of the common lands under the control of the Board. We realise fully this will not be an easy matter to arrange; but with public-spirited men on the Board (as at present constituted) it is not only possible, but from every point of view desirable. Removal of the fair will enable the Board to satisfy all those subscribers to the fund to purchase the fair rights with a view to impove the upper or Fair Green to obtain their object. Removal of the fair and its thorough local control will satisfy all the real friends of the people, who desire to preserve the fair yet wish it away from its present congested site. It is for the preservation of the people's fair, and with it the business rights of travelling showmen, that the Showmen's Guild have persistently and consistently struggled. The Guild does not defy the local authorities; it has never taken action of an aggressive or defiant character. It has advised its members that until the fair is legally abolished under the Abolition of Fairs Act they have a customary right to attend Mitcham on the fair days, and a claim to expect sites, subject to the payment of the usual tolls to the owners of the franchise.

The Public and the Press on the Question.

It is a common error, but, in the sympathetic state of public opinion, a pardonable one, to represent the amiable and cautious showman (taught by years of patient toil at a strenuous business) as a sort of reckless swashbuckler rushing to the battle of Mitcham Fair year after year. He is shown as pushing the police and the local authorities aside with cohorts of traction engines and boldly riding forth to victory. It is a dramatic picture, and to boom the fair and draw all London out to it it is a boon and a blessing to showmen. It is, however, not a true picture: the showman is wise enough to know his own limitations. He never flouts lawful authorities, and he is business man enough to find out the limitations of people who try to interfere with his business and mode of life.

The Essence of the Question in Dispute.

The showman is fighting a scheme to abolish Mitcham Fair. There is a lawful way of abolishing a fair. The abolitionists tried the lawful way, and failed. The next move on the part of the abolitionists was to try and hinder the showman by refusing to let sites on the Fair Green on the fair days. Their power to do this effectively was to proceed by injunction against every individual showman using the Green on the fair days. For two fairs in succession this was done—and done with the consent of the Board of Conservators. It was a manifest attempt to secure by injunction what the abolitionists had failed to get by order of the Home Office. Not a single showman has either flouted the lawful authorities or defied the order of the High Court when under injunction. The decision of the Board of Conservators not to proceed by way of further injunctions but to regularise all future action by insisting upon full possession of the fair rights creates a situation that at least is pregnant with hope for a wise settlement on public lines of the question. To this desirable end the Rev. T. Horne and Parish Councillor F. H. Pedgrift have laboured, and will still labour until the matter is brought to a peaceful issue. The Guild uses no defiant or illegal methods. We trust that both Press and public will grasp the technical details of the matter. Mr. Mallaby Deeley, M.P., chairman of the Board of Conservators (whose action with regard to the question has been strictly impartial and inspired by the highest conception of public duty), has again and again stated his wish for a peaceful settlement. He has, further, carried his colleagues on the Board with him in his own view of the futility of proceeding by injunction to abolish the fair. You may deter individuals by injunction, but it is futile, in his opinion, to apply that method to a large class of people like travelling showmen.

What Mitcham People Must Do.

The rights of showmen are quite secondary and subservient to the rights of the people of Mitcham. The real battle is between the people and the abolitionists: it is for the people who still desire to maintain their grand old-time fair to approach the Board of Conservators and to represent in a proper way their desire to retain their fair. The vast majority of thoughtful people in Mitcham recognise the advisability of removing the fair to a better site for its maintenance under local control. Now that the Board owns the franchise of the fair this is, we confidently think, possible. Whatever there were to maintain until this desirable removal could be effected, the showmen have certainly helped the people to maintain and enjoy by attending year by year, either on the old green or on private pitches in its vicinity, with their shows and amusements. Let the people of Mitcham realise that the crisis is now shaping to an end. It is for them to convince the Conservators that removal, not abolition, is what Mitcham desires. The Home Office has already expressed a preference for removal rather than abolition. Let all friends of the fair work together for this wise and just settlement—the removal of the Charter Fair, with all its ancient rights and privileges, to a better site on the common and under local control.

Blackmoor Flower Show and Sports.

THIS capital open-air Fair was held on the estate of Lord Selborne. The amusements of the fairs were provided by R. Walls and Sons with galloping horses and racing birds, shooting gallery, park swings, houp-la, and other games, and stalls. With them was Mr. J. Matthews, with coker sheets, and other amusements. From Blackmoor the same concerns went to Borden Camp, and opened a pleasure fair that was well patronised.

Hunslet Feast, Leeds.

OUR reports of this excellent Feast and also that of Knottingley, Yorkshire, were crowded out in our last issue. At Hunslet, for the Bank Holiday, were Bailey's circus, Howden and Son's Picture Palace, Farrar and Tyler's Coliseum, and Mme. Howard, clairvoyant. The machine novelties were in magnificent order, and comprised the following sets: Murphy's motor-cars, Aspland's motors, P. Collins's Teddy Bears and cake-walk, Powell's bicycles, Redfearn's flying machines, Morley's steam swings, Powell's helter-skelter, and a juvenile set by Doubtfire. The shooting concerns were by Messrs. Seed and Jacques. Houp-las, throwing games, dolly stalls, and variety frames by Messrs. Cooper, Vanner, Redfearn, Daly, Joy, Burgin, Spencer, Williams, Doubtfire, Steward, Ashcroft, Priddlebrook, Holt, and others.

AT Knottingley Feast were Tuby's show and motors, Farrar and Tyler's show and scenic railway, Fisher's swings, Shaw's shooters and games; stalls and varieties by Messrs. Appleton, Dunkerley, Fisher, Vickers, Jones, Roberts, Rowbottom, and other stall-holders.

White City, Manchester.

NEXT Saturday, the 20th, the annual outing of the staff of the White City at Manchester will be held. This year the excursion will be made to New Brighton, where many of the staff have relatives and friends living, and where a fine day's enjoyment is confidently expected. Every member of the staff has subscribed, and Mr. Brown and the other officials have been liberal contributors to the holiday fund.

TO-DAY (Saturday) the White City will be given over to a great demonstration by labour men of Lancashire, the occasion being the annual outpouring of the Boiler Makers and Iron and Steel Shipbuilders of Manchester and district. A great meeting will be held in the grand concert room, and will be addressed by six Labour Members of Parliament as well as a number of other leaders. A procession will pass through the streets to the White City, and five bands of music will take part. Dinner, tea, and a picnic will help to make the day happy. The authorities have given a special licence for the day.

THE band of H.M. Royal Marines, of the Chatham station, are the concert attraction at the White City, and as this is one of the four best bands in His Majesty's service they are drawing large crowds every afternoon and evening to hear the well selected and rendered programmes offered. Mr. Brown will make arrangements to have some of the best of the military bands that have appeared at the White City visit Paris next summer and give concerts at his new Magic City Park, which is to be opened at Easter on a plot of ten acres on the banks of the Seine and in the heart of the city. No doubt the band of the Royal Marines will be one of the organisations selected for these engagements.

The Kino, Jarrow.

THE Kino opened on August Bank Holiday with a new building, and is doing excellent business. Some attractive pictures are being shown, including the following:—The Impalement, Killing the Lady Killer, A Child of the Squadron, Playing Truant, and several others. The comedy acrobats the Verdas are well received. There will be a fresh set of pictures for the latter part of the week.

Kensington Picture Theatre.

American Vaudeville Artists in England.

AMERICANS IN LONDON.

One Grand Time.

Possibly not in the history of the American Vaudevillians in England did those present at the little scamper held in the basement of the German Club, back of the Queen's, enjoy themselves so hugely for three hours as they did on Saturday evening, commencing about half-past twelve. Had Mr. Alfred Butt or Mr. Oswald Stoll been there and seen some of the numbers presented I daresay either one of these magnates would have offered many hundreds of pounds for the entire show just as it was presented on Saturday night.

The evening was started with a California rag two-step, all dancing, there being some seventy all told, speeling around the floor in so many different shapes that Mme. Polaire would have been envious herself had she witnessed the new novelties introduced now and then in apache dancing.

The show finally got a good start, and the first act to open was a tournament of statue dancing. These numbers were really so funny that the show came very near being stopped right at the start. Shaun Glenville and Gilday (of Gilday and Fox) carried off the honours, amidst deafening roars of laughter and applause. If this American and Karno's principal comedian were to double up with this act, with Tommy Dawe to stage it, and Billy Montgomery, of Montgomery and Moore, at the piano, I would be forced to top the act on my largest bill, provided I owned and managed the best vaudeville house in the world.

A Quartette that Got the Money.

A quartette that got the money for a short time was next ushered out upon the crowd. These were Harry Jolson, Max Ritter, and Gilday and Fox. They made such an impression with the other seventy performers that they were showered with pennies for fully three minutes; in fact, they were so good that they were all harmonising in the key of R——? However, they were greatly appreciated, and did great good, for they turned all the pennies over to Mrs. Paul Murray for the benefit of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild.

Tommy Dawe, Stage-Manager.

While the quartette were out singing, Tommy Dawe was busy staging The Queen of Quebash, a very pretty sketch, which proved another tremendous uproar of laughter. The cast was as follows:—

Queen of Quebash .....Shaun Glenville
King of Gaulash .....Paul Murray
The Villain .....Harry Jolson
The Hero .....Max Ritter
The King's Major Domo .....Gilday
The Queen's Bodyguard
Messrs. Fox and McLallen
The Lover .....Eddie Emerson

and a company of peasants, soldiers with billiard cues, &c. Music by Montgomery. Plot by Tommy Dawe. Costumes for the Queen: German Club tablecloths and Miss Grace Foster's "Merry Widow" hat.

The sketch ran fully five minutes in the middle of the dance floor, until the finale was reached by a break of one of the safety-pins in the Queen's gown, and pennies began to fly again, and then a shilling mingled in. This was one big success, and the act took fully forty bows before retiring.

Minstrel Show Next.

Paul Murray was a busy actor, for no sooner had the big sketch finished than he had out upon the floor a large minstrel company of fully thirty. Mr. Murray was the "interlocker," Gilday and Fox on the ends, while the line contained such noted vocalists as Harry Jolson, Max Ritter, Sidney Wood, S. and G. Auer, Willie Pantzer, Jack McLallen, Tommy Dawe, Shaun Glenville, the Five Mowatts, Emerson and Baldwin, Leo Dryden, Earle Reynolds, and Billy Montgomery. After some three minutes of patter, Harry Jolson sprang one of his new songs, which was a dandy. In a clear and pretty voice he made one of the hits of the evening. Gilday and Fox then favoured with the western "rag," "Grisly Bear," another hit, after which Gilday amused for fully five minutes with some clever parody songs that kept the house in an uproar.

Eddie Emerson and the Five Mowatts started a juggling act. There being no clubs on hand, they used hats, and some nice work was shown. A few straw hats got smashed, but that didn't matter.

The famous comedy dancers, Shaun Glenville, Montgomery and Gilday, showed a nice speciality in this act. Montgomery tied a few rope knots with his legs, while Shaun Glenville would be dancing yet had Tommy Dawe allowed him. Here is one clever entertainer who is of the Marathon type.

New Orleans rag "two-steps" by Montgomery were given on the piano, while everyone danced for fully an hour before the clock struck three.

It was one grand night of good fellowship and a congregation of American and English artists whose names you see in big type on the best bills in vaudeville. It reminded all of some of the real good White Rat scampers that are often held in the States, where fun and laughter reign.

A Loyal Member.

Mrs. Paul Murray was amused to see the pennies flying at the different acts. When they were all picked up she called for them to be put in a hat, and informed the boys that "pennies wouldn't be any use to them," and that they would go for a good worthy cause, the Ladies' Music Hall Guild. There were nearly one hundred in the hat, and after this remark 141 more were thrown at the actors, which made £1 0s. 1d. in pennies that were in the crowd. If anyone got out of there with a copper they must have had it hid in their shoe.

Some Piano Player.

Billy Montgomery, of Montgomery and Moore, sure can follow anything you can sing and play the accompaniment. He is a whole orchestra in himself, and the beauty of Billy is you don't need any rehearsal with him. Start to sing and dance and he is with you. Quite an art.

The Diver Splashes Successfully.

Those Comedy Boys at Croydon.

Sissel Bros. and Mack, at Croydon this week, have been creating great fun and laughter for the patrons of the New Hippodrome.

Anna and Mike's Farewell.

On Saturday I witnessed at the Palace the farewell performance of those two great stars Pavlova and Mordkin, who sail for America next week. Standing room in the Palace was scarce, and the theatre was simply packed to cheer and applaud the two artists who have created a sensation.

The Great Lester's Act.

A new ventriloquist act in London opened at the Hippodrome on Monday. It was noticeable right from the start that the great Lester had landed safely in the good graces of the English audiences, and had made a splendid success. This act will remain over here for some little time, playing the Stoll tour.

Gilday a Booker.

Myron Gilday, of Gilday and Fox, is sure enough booking quite a few acts for the inter-State time. One of the latest to which he has given contracts is Mozetto, a straight and comedy juggler.

Big Reward Offer.

A sign is placed over the piano at the German Club which says, "A substantial reward for information relative to why The Two Shilling Boys, or better known as The Two Bobs, alias Bob Aiden and Bob Adams, have failed to make their appearance for some time among their friends."

H. B. Barnes Back.

Mr. H. B. Barnes (Operating Manager of the International Rink Operating Co., Ltd.) and Mrs. Barnes arrived home from a two weeks' Continental tour. During the trip they covered over 1,600 miles in Germany and France alone, making short visits to all places of interest. Mr. Barnes is making arrangements to open Holland Park and the other rinks of which he is managing-director in September. The big Olympia will not open until late in the fall.

The Diver's Sister to Enter Vaudeville.

The Divine Myrma, who is appearing at the Palace in a pretty diving act, has a sister of rare beauty and form who will shortly enter the fields of variety in a novelty different from anything yet seen upon the stage. Just what the offering is like I am unable to say just at present, but will mention it later.

American Vaudeville Club may be Formed.

I was approached the other evening by a few of the American artists who virtually make London their home now, and they all said there should be an American Vaudeville Club started here in London, and in the neighbourhood of Leicester-square. Each one of the artists was willing to take £100 worth of stock in the venture, while another one said he would be only too anxious to take £200 worth of stock. It will take fully £3,000 to open a good club, and all its equipment, including the fitting up of a nice room for scampers, &c. The shareholders would be sure to get fine dividends. The greatest difficulty would be in getting the place in a location in Leicester-square district. There are already three club at the back of the Queen's, and all seem to be doing land office business, but I guess there is room for one more which would cater for the American artists.

International Support Invited.

There should be an American grill, Budwiser beer, and a breakfast room also, where buckwheat cakes and real coffee could be had with real cream. Artists will pay good prices for good stuff, but it has got to be good stuff. So get together, you financial promoters of the American Vaudeville Club, and do the thing up right, like a real American should do it. Make it open for everyone who is connected with the music hall business. Within a month or two it will become famous through the entire British Isles, as well as the Continent, while every American act which comes across will make its headquarters at the club.

President Meyerfield, Jun., Sails.

The Kronprinz Cecile, sailing from Southampton on Wednesday, had on board President Meyerfield, jun., of the Orpheum Circuit. The big official made a quick run into London and out again. He arrived on Monday night at 7 p.m. and sailed on Wednesday morning, spending one day and two nights in the city. During his stay he jumped up to see a couple of agents, and also had a few minutes with Mr. Butt and others.

Passpart Also Goes Back to Berlin.

Mr. W. Passpart, after seeing Mr. Meyerfield off for America, came back to Leicester-square, packed his collar box, and took first boat to Berlin. Mr. Passpart was booked to go on Monday night, but remained over until Wednesday in order to converse with his chief on matters pertaining to the booking of a number of big actors for the Orpheum. Mr. Passpart has rented a fine house in Golder's Green, and will bring his family here about September 5, when the new London Orpheum offices open their doors.

De Frece houses get Montgomery and Moore for a number of weeks. The act goes to the Palace, Manchester, next week.

Barnes and Crawford at the Tivoli.

The comedy act of Barnes and Crawford, which opened at the Tivoli on Monday night, introduced some brand new stuff that made the house not only giggle but laugh out loud throughout their entire performance. The act, as a whole, got by nicely, and will be a feature on many big bills here in the halls.

Wonder Why?

I have been wondering why President Meyerfield, jun., is making such a quick trip back to the States. I was informed that something rather surprising was ready to be tapped soon as he returned. The report that Keith has ordered the bookings of the Chicago, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, and Louisville houses to come direct from the United office has caused a lot of gossip, and there are all kinds of rumours afloat relative to this move.

Bell a Busy Man.

Jarvis Bell, the secretary of the International Rinking Co., Ltd., is one busy man these days, and Broadmead House sees Mr. Bell there early and late getting things ready for the opening of all rinks of the International, which will be about the middle of September.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

The programme of pictures, farce, and illustrated songs provided by the management of the Alexandra Theatre continues to attract large audiences, who certainly cannot complain either of the length of the entertainment provided for their amusement or of its quality. Whitebait at Greenwich, which is being played during the current week, affords Mr. Fred Lyric many opportunities of scoring in the part of John Small, the waiter; Mr. J. J. Daly as Benjamin Buzzard gives another of his sound performances; Mr. Edward Bonfield makes the most of Glimmer; and as Sally and Lucretia Buzzard Miss May Hallatt and Miss Nellie Dade, both firmly-established favourites at the Alexandra, add to their former successes. The programme of films shown this week is quite up to the usual standard of variety and excellence, and Mr. Alfred Holt is generously applauded for his illustrated songs.

"THE KING OF SLEEPLAND."

Prof. William Pink .....MR. FREDDIE FRENCH
Buzziebazouka .....MR. A. H. WILSON
Jakey Inklestein .....MR. HARRY EGLINGTON
Levi Solomons .....MR. HARRY PHILLIPS
Fatima .....MISS MILLIE WARD
Mrs. Pink .....MISS MARIE LEA

The above sketch is a one-act burlesque of the humorous order, but has a connected plot. The scene is A Glade in Sleepland, an imaginary country in the Far East, and on the rise of the curtains Buzziebazouka, the high priest of the country, is discovered surrounded by a band of native warriors. Their king is dead, and a new king must be found. The high priest himself has aspirations to the throne, but these are upset by the arrival of a white stranger, Professor William Pink, of Park-lane, who is out on a butterfly-hunting expedition. Unknown to himself, the inhabitants select the professor for their new king, and, led by the high priest, they go to prepare for the coronation ceremony. There also arrive two anarchists from Petticoat-lane, who confide to the professor the fact that they have learned of a heathen kingdom possessing treasure-houses full of diamonds. Their mission is to secure those, but, first of all, the king must be killed. The professor is inveigled into the enterprise, and on the throw of the dice it falls to his lot to kill the monarch. Subsequently the professor is informed that he has been chosen king, and is in the awkward predicament of having to kill himself. He invokes the aid of Fatima, a princess of the land, who has fallen in love with him, but she stipulates that he must marry her. At this juncture the two anarchists are made captives by the natives, and the professor sees a way out of the difficulty—why not have three kings? The high priest agrees, to the discomfiture of the anarchists, who naturally do not wish to inflict the death penalty on themselves. The anointing ceremony is about to be proceeded with when Mrs. Willie (the professor's wife) enters and takes up the cudgels on her husband's behalf, suggesting that the professor (a diminutive man) shall wrestle with the high priest (a veritable giant). The priest is eventually overcome by the professor, who is acclaimed king, but abdicates in favour of the high priest on condition that the latter marries Fatima. The two anarchists are sent back to Petticoat-lane, and everything ends happily in the reunion of Professor Willie and his "lawful wedded wife."

The parts were excellently played by the members of Willie Benn and Freddie French's company, Mr. French being irresistibly amusing as the diminutive professor.

"I BELONGED to the Moore and Burgess Minstrels," pleaded John Douglas, a homeless man, who was accused at Woolwich on Saturday of singing in the streets, "but now I am getting old people do not want me." He was discharged.

MR. FRANK COYLE is not likely to forget his visit to Cleethorpes, where he experienced much kindness from Mr. Carter White and his manager, Mr. Johnnie Renson. The chief artists secured by Mr. White were engaged through Coyle's Agency, and both boss and manager are delighted with the turns.

DURING the performance on Tuesday night in the Palace Gardens at Dunoon, Firth of Clyde, a fire extinguisher exploded, and the audience, hearing the noise of the escaping liquid, concluded that there was a fire, and rushed for the doors. It was only when the Provost of the town shouted that there was no fire that the panic was stopped. Many of the audience were English visitors to the Clyde. But for the Provost's prompt assurance a disaster must have taken place.

EARLY on Saturday morning the little brown men who people the Japan-British Exhibition were able to spread their treasures before the eyes of the King and Queen and show their Majesties the rapid rise of the Japanese nation so graphically depicted at the Shepherd's Bush Exhibition. The Royal visit was practically a surprise to the exhibition authorities, for the intimation was not received in time to make any but the barest preparations. The King and Queen were accompanied by Prince Albert and Prince Arthur of Connaught.

PUBLIC displays of wrestling have now been added to the long list of things forbidden by the Berlin police. The reason of this new mandate is said to be the obviously prearranged nature of several "championship" contests which have recently taken place in Berlin.

VISITORS to the Crystal Palace to-day will have the unique opportunity of witnessing over fifty aero-models in competition. There are five classes of open events as well as competitions for boy scouts and youths. The meeting, which is under the auspices of the Aero Models' Association, is the largest of its kind ever organised.

A GOOD programme is submitted at the Theatre Royal, Tyldesley, this week. Some interesting pictures are shown, including The Three Musketeers, The Swashbuckler, and The Miller's Daughter. The Suttons are a clever pair of comedy duettists, Maudie de Vere quickly becomes a favourite, Mr. Raymond Synnott is a vocal comedian of merit.

AT the Tynemouth Palace of Varieties this week, Ethel Pender-Cudlip and Claude Anderson, on a welcome return visit in selections from Il Trovatore, are received with enthusiasm; James and Jennie Jees score in their unique wire act; Cestria, comedy juggler, is highly amusing; Les Andres are seen to advantage in their protean and terpsichorean act; Mabel Mavis, a delightful musical entertainer; and Mabel Watson, vocalist, also contribute.

A DERBYSHIRE miner has invented a new musical instrument which he calls a "pickophone." It has been constructed out of the ordinary colliery pick and shaft with which as a miner he has worked in the pit at Creswell. The instrument has only one string, and Mr. Lord (the inventor) has skilfully attached an old phonograph horn, without which the music would be scarcely heard. A mellow sound is given out by the instrument, and with a pianoforte accompaniment the effect is stated to be pleasing.

THE TERRIERS AT CRICKET.

Through the generosity of Terrier W. R. Dunkley, the Terriers had a most enjoyable outing on Sunday last. About sixty Terriers and the friends assembled at the Three Stags, Kennington, at ten a.m., and proceeded to Cranford Bridge by four-horse brakes. The party arrived at the Berkeley Arms Hotel, Cranford, at one o'clock, and an excellent luncheon was provided by Mr. E. E. Parlby.

The principal event of the day was a cricket match between the Terriers and a local club, The Nondescripts, and resulted in a victory for the Terriers, the scores being as follows: The Nondescripts, 67; Terriers, 99.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

Being a digest of the Law relating to Theatres and Music Halls, and containing chapters on Theatrical Contracts, Theatrical, Music and Dancing, and Excise Licences, Dramatic and Musical Copyright, &c., with an Appendix containing the Acts of Parliament relating thereto, and the regulations of the London County Council and the Lord Chamberlain, by

ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (London), Solicitor.

THE ERA, July 30, 1910.

Important changes in the law affecting the amusement professions have been made since the issue, nine years ago, of the second edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable book on Theatrical and Musical Law, and the third edition, just published, comes opportunely to hand. The work has been greatly enlarged, upwards of sixty additional pages being required to accommodate the mass of new information. The publication has been brought as nearly as possible up to date, and within its pages will be found analyses of important measures which have been adopted both in Parliament and out. There is, for instance, the full text of the recent Berlin Convention, and the new Copyright Act of the United States. The awards governing the relations between managers, artists, and agents are reproduced in their entirety, and a number of fresh cases illustrating the effect of the barring clauses is included.

The Musical Copyright Act by which tardy justice was secured to song-writers and publishers, is given in full, and a digest of the measure, bringing out its salient features is also printed. A whole chapter is now devoted to the subject of children on the stage and the important question of the Workmen's Compensation Act is exhaustively dealt with. All the decisions of the Courts affecting theatres and music-halls are referred to, many notable cases being recalled. The law governing dramatic and musical copyright is defined as clearly as its intricacies will allow, and a reliable indication of the methods to be adopted in securing protection is afforded. The progress made in the question of licensing has been too slow to allow of more than a reproduction of the terms of agreement entered into between the representatives of theatres and music-halls regarding sketches, but pronouncements under that heading are numerous.

THE ENCORE, May 26, 1910.

We have just received the third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's book on Theatrical and Musical Law, which is published at "The Era" Office, 5, Tavistock Street, Strand. Since the second edition of this work was published—nine years—many changes have taken place in the laws relating to entertainments, and these have necessitated a considerable enlargement of the volume. Full texts of the recent Berlin Convention and the United States Copyright Law are included in this edition, in which is also published the awards governing the relations between artists, agents, and managers. A number of new cases are also cited illustrating the effects of the barring clause. The Musical Copyright Act, children on the stage, the sketch question, and the Workmen's Compensation Act are all fully dealt with and in a readable and easy style, as free as possible from legal phraseology and technicalities. It is a legal axiom that ignorance of the law is no excuse for breaking it, and, therefore, it behoves everyone connected with the entertainment world to make himself acquainted with the law as it stands in relation to the profession or business in which he may be engaged. To every one connected with the Drama or Variety Mr. Strong's book is a necessity, and this last edition is so comprehensive that anyone who consults it can have no possible excuse for infringing the law on the ground of ignorance. The work will, no doubt, have a ready and rapid sale, for all artists, managers, and agents should have it at hand.

THE FINANCIAL NEWS, June 13, 1910.

In view of the frequent litigation concerning theatrical matters there can be no doubt as to the usefulness of this little book to those whom it concerns, and, apart from its usefulness, it is really quite an interesting little volume, in saying which we are paying tribute to Mr. Strong's lucid methods of explaining the intricacies of the law. He has avoided legal terms as far as possible, and theatrical cases exemplifying legal principles he has given in full. To make this, the third, edition as complete and useful as possible, Acts of Parliament relating to theatrical matters and the regulations of the Lord Chamberlain and London County Council are set out in full in the appendix, with the text of the recent Berlin Convention and the new Copyright Act of the United States.

THE PERFORMER, May 12, 1910.
THE ARTIST'S LEGAL HANDBOOK.

We welcome a third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" Offices), as it is nine years since the second appeared, and much has happened since then, not least the foundation of the V.A.F. and the resultant Award of 1907. This will be found incorporated in the now greatly-improved and extended Appendix of Statutes, ranging from the Disorderly Houses Act of 1751, to last year's L.C.C. Cinematograph regulations. As far as is possible with further developments in daily progress, this invaluable work of legal reference for all interested in the entertainment profession has been brought up-to-date. Sixty pages have been added, and the whole revised and rendered easier of reference by the re-arrangements that have been made, and the numerous marginal headings that have been introduced. Strong, on "Dramatic and Musical Law," may be regarded as the layman's complete authority on the subject, whether he be PROPRIETOR, MANAGER, or ARTIST, and with a lucid explanation of the law so readily available, the artist will be wise to consult its pages before venturing on new contracts and agreements, whether as employed or—in these days of "combinations," sketches, troupes, and what not—as employer.

To the Publisher.
1, Renfrew-road, Lambeth, S.E.

My Dear Sir,—

I have had an opportunity of looking into the third edition of Mr. Albert Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law," published from your office recently, and I have pleasure in testifying to the great value I have found the previous editions in my practice among ladies and gentlemen connected with the profession for which your valuable paper caters so admirably.

That Mr. Strong has had a wide experience in the matters with which he deals so ably in his book is evidenced by the lucid yet exhaustive manner in which he has treated the various subjects therein, and this last edition is eloquent testimony of the care and ability which he bestows upon his work.

Brought thoroughly up to date it will without doubt find a wide circle of usefulness among the profession whose contracts, Mr. Strong aptly remarks, are so fruitful a source of litigation.

Believe me,
Yours very faithfully,
W. H. ARMSTRONG.

WANTED, Known, Miss Shanara's Great Troupe Deer, Goats, Great Novelty, the only Known Act of this kind; refined, up to date; something out of the usual, Stage Set and Costumes A1. Big Turn for Parks, Fêtes; the one Original. Marvellous performance, including the High-springing Bok. Big Success this week, Aquarium, Scarborough. Wanted, 15th, also September. Aug. 22 and 29, Palace, Sunderland.

Miss Ronna Shanara's Thibet mountain goats, four in number, went through a remarkable performance. It is surely a novelty to have goats on the stage, but the intelligence which they displayed, and the possibilities of their training, disclosed by these animals at the Aquarium, makes one wonder that they have not been exploited before for the variety stage. Perhaps the most extraordinary of the things they did was the balancing by one of them on the bottom of a wine-glass turned upwards. It placed all four feet on the wineglass and stood there quite firmly, and with apparent comfort. This afforded an instructive instance of the sure-footedness of these mountain-dwelling creatures.—Scarborough Evening News, Aug. 9.
